

What Club Women Are Doing

NE of the most remarkable personalities of modern times will be in Omaha this week. Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who has been styled the "fourteen-inch gun of the militant suffrage party," will speak at the Boyd theater Friday evening on "The English Woman's Fight for the Vote."

Mrs. Pankhurst comes naturally by her "militantism." She was born in Manchester, England, of revolutionary stock, and on the anniversary of the storming of the Bastille, which opened the French Revolution, while a student in Paris she absorbed the republican spirit, and in her marriage to Dr. Pankhurst, a barrister, she found an earnest coworker in the cause of woman's enfranchisement. After Dr. Pankhurst's death, Mrs. Pankhurst left with a young family to care for, occupied political and government positions of importance.

In 1905 she and her daughter, Christabel, founded the Women's Social and Political Union, with its slogan, "Votes for Women." Starting with a few women, the demands of the party have grown to be a national issue. Twice the bill for woman suffrage has been read in Parliament, but has been kept from a third reading and final vote by the British cabinet.

Once, thoroughly discouraged, a body of the suffragettes went to ex-Premier Balfour, who is a suffragette, and asked him what they should do. He said, "Kick up a row."

They followed his advice. With Mrs. Pankhurst as the inspiring genius, they kicked up a row that has amazed the entire civilized world. Whether one approves of Mrs. Pankhurst's militant methods or not, it cannot be denied that they have shaken the walls of Westminster and made a breach through which future generations of women are destined to enter into undisputed possession of citizenship.

Mrs. Pankhurst, the English interviewers say, is the symbol of an idea—an idea which excludes every other motive and interest in life. The idea is that women are the victims of an age-long tyranny imposed on them by men.

Mrs. Pankhurst's purpose is to bring about a complete emancipation of women for full and equal citizenship with men, equality of social conditions and equal justice.

Omaha club women are beginning to follow the lead of the eastern clubs in having more sociability and less intellectualism at meetings. More tea and less program is to be carried out in the open meetings of the Omaha Woman's club, beginning with Monday's meeting at the Metropolitan building.

The principal feature of the meeting will be tea at the close of a short program given by the literature department. The tea will be given by the music department, with Mrs. W. A. Challa chairman of the social committee in charge. There will be two tea tables. Among the servers will be Mrs. Edith Wagner and Mrs. F. H. Cole, leader and secretary-treasurer of the music department, and Mrs. A. V. Shotwell. The ex-presidents of the club will assist.

The short program which Mrs. Cole has arranged consists in a paper on "Local Color and Dialect in the Short Story," by Mrs. A. B. Somers, and two violin numbers by Miss Lucy Miller, first assistant director of the Moller violin school at Lincoln. The selections will be "Romance" by Gandolfo and "Mazurka" by Zarycki. Miss Edith Miller will be the accompanist.

Paper has cookery and ready-made clothing will be the subjects of discussion at the meeting of the household economics department of the Woman's club Thursday, November 16, at 10 o'clock. Mrs. F. J. Burnett, leader of the department, will distribute bags and recipes among the women so that they may experiment with the new method of cooking and report their luck at the next meeting. Miss M. L. Thompson, buyer for Benson & Thorne, will talk to the women about "Ready-Made Clothes and How to Buy Them."

The literature department of the Woman's club will meet Wednesday at 10 a. m. Mrs. Theodore Mayer will be leader. A paper contrasting "Medea" by Euripides with "Asterion's Medea" will be given by Mrs. Lanskay Smith. Mrs. F. A. Shotwell will tell of the similarity between Sophocles and the music dramas of Wagner.

The oratory department of the Woman's club will meet Tuesday at 10 a. m. Mark Twain's "Puddinghead Wilson" will be the book reviewed at the meeting of the Dumbies Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. N. C. Syke. Mrs. C. W. Drew will report on current topics.

The Benson Women's club will have an Emerson program Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. B. Hoyt. Mrs. Charles Tracy will lead the lesson on the "Sage of Concord." Mrs. H. L. Rivett will read a paper on "Emerson, the Poet." Holmes' "Life of Emerson" will be reviewed and several of the nature and patriotic poems read.

British portrait painters will be the subject of study at the meeting of the Society of Fine Arts Thursday morning at the public library. Among the paintings studied will be those of George Romney, Sir Henry Raeburn, Sir Thomas Lawrence and John Hoppner.

Miss Madeline Hill will lead the meeting of the Story Tellers' league Thursday afternoon at the public library. The myths of Ariadne and of Achilles and Thetis will be told and there will be a talk on Homer's "Iliad."

American authors is the broad topic of study, which the University-Extension club will have at the meeting Tuesday evening at the Omaha Commercial College building. The members will respond to the roll call with current events. Lowell's "Fable for Critics" will be reviewed, and there will be a paper on "Hawthorne as a Model Short Story Writer."

"Meats" will be the subject of discussion at the meeting of the Household Economics department of the South Omaha Century Literary club Tuesday. Mrs. C. R. Orchard will have a paper on "Cuts and Marketing." Miss Lottie Schroeder will explain "Principles of Meat Cookery." Mrs. C. L. Talbot will speak on "Composition and Food Value."

Dr. W. M. Davidson and Henry Curtis to Social Workers

The Omaha Social Service club had the largest turnout in its history Saturday at noon, to do honor to Dr. William M. Davidson, formerly superintendent of the Omaha public schools, and Henry S. Curtis, prominently identified with the movement for organized playgrounds.

Over 120 sat down to lunch in the large banquet room at the Home. Judge Sutton, president of the club, was ably assisted by Secretary E. F. Denison and Mrs. Draper Smith in the arrangements for the luncheon, which was attended by city officials, judges, teachers, social settlement workers, playground promoters, newspaper men and members of the Omaha School and Park boards.

Mr. Curtis told of the steps taken to organize the playground campaign in Washington and other places, and advised that those interested in Omaha adopt some definite plan and work at it without tiring. He thought that eventually at least twenty-four playgrounds would be required, one for each square mile of territory. At the beginning, he said, those enlisted in the work should find out just what plots the city owns that might be devoted to playground uses, and asserted that once the plan is properly started it will be no trouble to carry it to full fruition.

Dr. Davidson made an inspiring address, during the progress of which he several times admitted that Omaha is one of the grandest young cities in the world. He also congratulated his hearers on the fact that nowhere in the country are there any better schools than right here, and nowhere is the physical training feature better developed or athletics more wisely cultivated. Using the great cathedral of Cologne as an object lesson—conceived as an ideal in one man's heart and carried through six centuries to completion—he urged that the small groups now interested in movements for social service, playgrounds, child labor and the like hold fast to their ideal and work for it through every discouragement until eventually thousands will be interested in these good things where now there are but dozens.

"But when you get these playgrounds," he said, "see that there is a man behind each one, a director who will make the play effective and not allow them to become useless and covered with dust." Dr. Davidson illustrated his thought by saying that he would rather have one inspired teacher with a piece of chalk and a blackboard than all the charts that ever were made, if they had no teacher behind them.

A group of girls from the Bemis Bag company will meet Tuesday at 10 o'clock at the Young Women's Christian association in a club for candy making in the domestic science kitchen, under the direction of the extension secretary.

Prof. Paul A. Grunmann of the University of Nebraska will lecture on the "Odin" and "Wotan" of German mythology, and on Wagner's "Lohengrin" at the Young Women's Christian association Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Ida Hanchett's class in Persian history will meet Tuesday morning at the public library. Her class in French history will meet Friday morning at the library.

The Woman Suffrage society will meet Wednesday afternoon at the Union-Union fitting company parlor to complete plans for the Pankhurst lecture. Monday at 11 a. m. the heads of the women's organizations of Omaha will meet at the Young Women's Christian association to arrange for the visit of Mrs. Pankhurst this week.

The Visiting Nurse association will meet Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the Paxton hotel.

The Association of Collegiate Alumnae will sew for the Child Saving Institute at its meeting Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Gertrude White. Mrs. S. E. Davies, president of the association, who has been attending the national association convention in New York will tell about the doings at the meeting.

The Women's club of the railway mail service will have an afternoon of Bible study Wednesday at the home of Mrs. F. H. Cole. Mrs. E. F. Wallace will lead the lesson.

Samples of cooking will be brought to the meeting of the P. E. O. sisterhood Saturday at the meeting at the home of Mrs. F. D. Wilson and will be auctioned off by Mrs. Campbell. The committee in charge of the day are Mrs. W. A. Shropshire and Mrs. A. Traynor.

Between 3,500 and 4,000 garments were distributed to charity organizations and hospitals at the annual distribution of the Nechodsky Guild Thursday at the Jacoby Memorial hall. The entire corps of officers were elected to serve again for the coming year. They are Mrs. S. A. Collins, president; Mrs. M. B. Newman, vice president; Mrs. W. W. Carmichael, secretary, and Mrs. George J. Henderson, treasurer.

Connell Puts Ban on Frozen Potatoes

Health Commissioner R. W. Connell has issued a warning to Omaha people against the purchase of frozen potatoes, which, he says, are being sold by many dealers in Omaha.

"In a great many cases," says Dr. Connell, "I have found that potatoes shipped in, especially from Michigan and South Dakota, are partly frozen. Because only a part of them are frozen I have not been justified in condemning entire cars at a time, but after examining fifteen carloads, I have had them sorted and the frozen ones taken out. People should investigate before they buy potatoes, for they are likely to find their purchases decaying in a few days if they don't."

The fight against the sale of frozen potatoes has been taken up by the health department in conjunction with Mrs. Harriet MacMurphy, the government pure food and dairy inspector here, and as soon as she returns from Crawford, where she is now visiting, the campaign will be carried on until it becomes very unprofitable for dealers to dispense such merchandise.

Fullerton Man is Sought by Parents

Claude E. Bailey, aged 23, of Fullerton, Neb., bade his father and mother goodbye at the station at Perisval, Ia., Sunday evening, October 23. Since then no one who knows him has either seen him or heard from him. His father, A. S. Bailey of Perisval, is in Omaha trying to secure some clue to his son's whereabouts. A search through hotel registers failed to show that Claude Bailey registered here, although he was to stop in Omaha Sunday night and go on to Fullerton next day.

Young Bailey has been farming near Fullerton and owns the land he was working. He told his parents, when leaving Perisval, that he expected to be married in the spring and would bring his wife back to visit them. He had no troubles or worries that his parents know anything about and they fear he may have met with an accident.

Examine the Chassis First—

Recent advertising of electric vehicles lays stress on tires, batteries and bodies, as though these were the most vital parts of the machine. They are not. The important thing in any motor car is the chassis. Upon motor, driving system and brakes depend the safety and efficiency of your car. The rest are accessories furnished to suit purchasers.

The secret of the Baker's silent, smooth running, its simple control, its freedom from accident, its low consumption of current, its unusual mileage, is the Baker chassis. Be sure to see it before purchasing any electric motor car.
