JANITORS WANT MORE PAY

Twenty-One in Federal Building Preparing a Petition.

WILL PRESENT IT TO CUSTODIAN Are Not Permitted to Send Petition to Secretary of Treasury—Say Cost of Living Increases, but Not Pay.

Asserting that they are forced to lead a hand-to-mouth existence because of the increased price in foodstuffs and the smallness of their wages, the twenty-one janitors, watchmen and elevator men employed in the Federal building are preparing to circulate a petition to be presented to the custodian of the building, who will be asked to present it to the secretary of the treasury with the recommendation that an increase in wages all around be given.

The men say they have all proven their competency to hold jobs, by passing civil service examinations, and that although they have all been in the government's service from five to fifteen years, they have received no increase in wages, while the cost of living has been greatly increased in that time.

No strike or anything of that nature is expected, but the minor federal employees say that they are in desperate straits and they believe their sufferings could be relieved if they could only reach the ear of the secretary of the treasury.

An act of congress prevents them from directly petitioning the secretary, so their plea must be made through the custodian of the building, who will be asked to present it to the secretary of the treasury with the recommendation that an increase in wages all around be given.
