

the city. The loss to the tobacco crop will be more than half a million. The usual fresh features were present.

The Smith family, which was almost wiped out, were seated at the table at their home near Janesville. The home was thrown to the road and landed on the roof of another.

Mrs. John Cleaver, 50 years old, was alone in her home near Orfordville. The house was demolished.

Mrs. Brody, a bride of six weeks, was instantly killed at her home in which she had lived but a few days. Her husband was not far from the house when the storm came up. He remained in the barn, caring for his stock, until he realized that the storm had developed into a tornado.

Running toward the house in the darkness, he discovered that it had been demolished and that his wife was killed.

Frank Welsh, a rich farmer, was on a path of the storm, sat in his home when he saw his barn, tobacco and sheep sheds and other buildings torn from their foundations and demolished. The tornado also damaged the house, but the family escaped unhurt. He placed his loss at $15,000.

Boy Meets Death.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Henry Meyer, 13 years of age, of Bolivar, Ill., was killed yesterday when the storm tore the roof from a barn in which he had taken refuge. Rockford, in Wisconsin county, suffered a heavy property loss, but no fatalities.

Tornado Hits Virginia, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—A tornado swooped down upon Virginia, Ill., at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, dealing destruction right and left and leaving ruin in its wake. A score of persons were seriously injured, while the town was completely wrecked. Many had miraculous escapes, but some were killed. The most seriously injured were Earl Whitaker, the little son of William Whitaker; Fred French and Otis Middleton.

The Whitaker boy was the most seriously injured, being caught under the wreckage of the Whitaker home, which was demolished.

The storm swept with terrific force through the center of the town, not a business building or residence that lay in its wake escaping damage. One hundred dwellings were unroofed or sustained serious injury in another manner, while the business section is a mass of wreckage. A drenching rain followed the violent wind, and tonight the town was in total darkness.

The path of the storm was half a mile wide. Many small buildings were wrecked. Telephone wires are down and it is difficult to get details from nearby towns in the storm's path.

The tornado followed a hot, sultry day. At noon the mercury stood at 90 degrees. Rain turning to snow followed the wind and a rapid fall of temperature began. At 10:30 o'clock tonight the mercury stood at 22 degrees.

Storm Hits Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 12.—A wind and rain storm swept over Peoria at 4 o'clock yesterday, causing property damage of several thousand dollars. The wind reached a velocity of forty miles an hour, and a quarter of rain fell in half an hour. The temperature dropped 15 degrees in eight hours, registering 15 degrees at 10 o'clock. Telephone and telegraph communication tonight is practically at a standstill. The storm seemed to follow the river and more than twenty motor boats were sunk in the river. No one was injured.

Death Record.

Carl Gustave Levene.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The funeral of Carl Gustave Levene was held here Saturday. The services were from the First Methodist church, of which the deceased was one of the charter members, and interment was in the Merrick county cemetery. Mr. Levene was in his seventy-fourth year and had been engaged in the tailoring business in Central City for upwards of thirty years.

ALL NATIONS ON SHIP'S LIST

Remarkable Babel of Races and Tongues on an Atlantic Liner.

The most remarkable collection of passengers ever arriving at the port of New York on one steamship, according to the immigration men, came in last week on the American liner St. Paul. It was a ship of all nations, for according to an official, who went over the lists, nearly every country in the world was represented. It brought 199 first, 40 second and 63 steerage passengers.

The most picturesque passengers were fifty American Indians of the Sioux tribe, led by Chief Little Bull, a medicine man of note. Flat Iron, who says he is 105 years old; spotted Wenas, and Good Horse. They are returning to the Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota, after a not too successful tour as amusement providers abroad.

Besides the Americans and Englishmen, Japan, China, Portugal, Ceylon, Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Russia, Poland, Ireland, Italian, Persia, and Turkey were also represented.

Somebody on the liner called the reporters aside when the vessel was boarded at quarantine and advised them to go into the steerage.

"There is a fellow down there with a history," said the stranger. "You who are always looking for tales of the sea will find a little volume when you run across John Dillon."

In the steerage the news hunters found a weather-beaten man with one arm who said he was Mr. Dillon of Portland, Ore., fighter and adventurer, who had "been up against it more'n a year." He denied any intention of publishing his story in book form. This is the substance of it:

The young man left Portland in the early part of 1890, traveling with a medicine show and "charismatic company." There had been rough sledding until the show reached New Orleans, and there it went to pieces. The steamship Etanah was ready to start for England, when Dillon found it, and he signed as a coal trimmer. In England he went aboard the Norwegian bark Haun, bound for Lisbon.

He liked Lisbon, and had about decided to make it his home, when one night as he was strolling down one of the dark streets he felt a blow upon the head. He remembered nothing for two days, and then, on regaining consciousness, found that he was in a hospital and that an arm had been amputated. The harbor-master of Lisbon told the authorities that he had found Dillon, bleeding and unconscious, by the side of a railroad track, with his pockets turned inside out.

From Lisbon Dillon went to Cardiff, Wales, and later the American consul at Southampton being his home on the St. Paul. The passengers subscribed enough money to take the wanderer to his home in Oregon.

PIONEER OF POLK IS DEAD

L. A. Beltzer Expires Unexpectedly Following a Hearty Dinner.

ENLISTED DURING CIVIL WAR

Served in Last Session of Legislature as Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms and Was Otherwise Prominent in State.

OSCEOLA, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—L. A. Beltzer, pioneer and one of the best known residents of Polk county, died at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Though he had been in poor health for some time, death came unexpectedly. He had eaten a hearty dinner, after which he was seized with pains in his heart. He died before the family physician arrived. Mr. Beltzer would have been 72 years old next Christmas. He was prominent in Grand Army of the Republic circles, having enlisted during the civil war in Company F, Eighteenth Iowa Volunteer Infantry. He was assistant sergeant-at-arms during the last session of the Nebraska legislature. Besides his wife he leaves three sons, L. D. Beltzer, editor of the Monitor at Bradshaw, Neb.; Dr. Charles Beltzer and another son at Butte, Mont.

Running toward the house in the darkness, he discovered that it had been demolished and that his wife was killed.

Frank Welsh, a rich farmer, was on a path of the storm, sat in his home when he saw his barn, tobacco and sheep sheds and other buildings torn from their foundations and demolished. The tornado also damaged the house, but the family escaped unhurt. He placed his loss at $15,000.

Boy Meets Death.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Henry Meyer, 13 years of age, of Bolivar, Ill., was killed yesterday when the storm tore the roof from a barn in which he had taken refuge. Rockford, in Wisconsin county, suffered a heavy property loss, but no fatalities.

Tornado Hits Virginia, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—A tornado swooped down upon Virginia, Ill., at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, dealing destruction right and left and leaving ruin in its wake. A score of persons were seriously injured, while the town was completely wrecked. Many had miraculous escapes, but some were killed. The most seriously injured were Earl Whitaker, the little son of William Whitaker; Fred French and Otis Middleton.

The Whitaker boy was the most seriously injured, being caught under the wreckage of the Whitaker home, which was demolished.

The storm swept with terrific force through the center of the town, not a business building or residence that lay in its wake escaping damage. One hundred dwellings were unroofed or sustained serious injury in another manner, while the business section is a mass of wreckage. A drenching rain followed the violent wind, and tonight the town was in total darkness.

The path of the storm was half a mile wide. Many small buildings were wrecked. Telephone wires are down and it is difficult to get details from nearby towns in the storm's path.

The tornado followed a hot, sultry day. At noon the mercury stood at 90 degrees. Rain turning to snow followed the wind and a rapid fall of temperature began. At 10:30 o'clock tonight the mercury stood at 22 degrees.

Storm Hits Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 12.—A wind and rain storm swept over Peoria at 4 o'clock yesterday, causing property damage of several thousand dollars. The wind reached a velocity of forty miles an hour, and a quarter of rain fell in half an hour. The temperature dropped 15 degrees in eight hours, registering 15 degrees at 10 o'clock. Telephone and telegraph communication tonight is practically at a standstill. The storm seemed to follow the river and more than twenty motor boats were sunk in the river. No one was injured.

Death Record.

Carl Gustave Levene.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The funeral of Carl Gustave Levene was held here Saturday. The services were from the First Methodist church, of which the deceased was one of the charter members, and interment was in the Merrick county cemetery. Mr. Levene was in his seventy-fourth year and had been engaged in the tailoring business in Central City for upwards of thirty years.

ALL NATIONS ON SHIP'S LIST

Remarkable Babel of Races and Tongues on an Atlantic Liner.

The most remarkable collection of passengers ever arriving at the port of New York on one steamship, according to the immigration men, came in last week on the American liner St. Paul. It was a ship of all nations, for according to an official, who went over the lists, nearly every country in the world was represented. It brought 199 first, 40 second and 63 steerage passengers.

The most picturesque passengers were fifty American Indians of the Sioux tribe, led by Chief Little Bull, a medicine man of note. Flat Iron, who says he is 105 years old; spotted Wenas, and Good Horse. They are returning to the Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota, after a not too successful tour as amusement providers abroad.

Besides the Americans and Englishmen, Japan, China, Portugal, Ceylon, Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Russia, Poland, Ireland, Italian, Persia, and Turkey were also represented.

Somebody on the liner called the reporters aside when the vessel was boarded at quarantine and advised them to go into the steerage.

"There is a fellow down there with a history," said the stranger. "You who are always looking for tales of the sea will find a little volume when you run across John Dillon."

In the steerage the news hunters found a weather-beaten man with one arm who said he was Mr. Dillon of Portland, Ore., fighter and adventurer, who had "been up against it more'n a year." He denied any intention of publishing his story in book form. This is the substance of it:

The young man left Portland in the early part of 1890, traveling with a medicine show and "charismatic company." There had been rough sledding until the show reached New Orleans, and there it went to pieces. The steamship Etanah was ready to start for England, when Dillon found it, and he signed as a coal trimmer. In England he went aboard the Norwegian bark Haun, bound for Lisbon.

He liked Lisbon, and had about decided to make it his home, when one night as he was strolling down one of the dark streets he felt a blow upon the head. He remembered nothing for two days, and then, on regaining consciousness, found that he was in a hospital and that an arm had been amputated. The harbor-master of Lisbon told the authorities that he had found Dillon, bleeding and unconscious, by the side of a railroad track, with his pockets turned inside out.

From Lisbon Dillon went to Cardiff, Wales, and later the American consul at Southampton being his home on the St. Paul. The passengers subscribed enough money to take the wanderer to his home in Oregon.

Northwest Farmers' Institute.

CHADRON, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The Northwest Nebraska Farmers' institute, that has been in session here since November 6, closed yesterday. It has been successful in every respect. The attendance has been a surprise to the most sanguine of the promoters, prominent among whom is Charles Mann, the president, and E. P. Wilson, secretary. The men's class of 101 has been enrolled, while in the women's there are 202. Instructors: Dr. Carlson, ex-authority on the horse; W. W. Burr from the North Platte experiment station; Regent Campbell and H. J. Gramlich. Prof. C. W. Pugsley of the state university was expected, but owing to serious illness of his wife was prevented from attending.

HYMENEAL.

Springer-Watson.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—Sylvester Springer of this city and Miss Anna Watson of Alexandria, Neb., were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Shook Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Only immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony.

Few, if any, medicines have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has effected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation. For sale by all dealers.

Omaha Men First to Cross Bridge Over the Platte

The new Duff-Pollock wagon and motor bridge near Plattsmouth was crossed for the first time at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning, by Richard Stewart and F. E. Jacquith of Omaha, riding in a new six-cylinder automobile. The automobilists then drove into Plattsmouth, where, with President Pollock of the Plattsmouth Commercial club, they made arrangements for a celebration of the opening of the new bridge. This celebration will be held in Plattsmouth Wednesday and attended by delegates from every city along the new Omaha-Plattsmouth-Kansas City automobile road. D. E. Watkins will be the principal speaker at the meeting, at which an association will be formed whose purpose will be to improve the roads in Cass county and the Omaha-Kansas City road.

ENLISTED DURING CIVIL WAR

Served in Last Session of Legislature as Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms and Was Otherwise Prominent in State.

OSCEOLA, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—L. A. Beltzer, pioneer and one of the best known residents of Polk county, died at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Though he had been in poor health for some time, death came unexpectedly. He had eaten a hearty dinner, after which he was seized with pains in his heart. He died before the family physician arrived. Mr. Beltzer would have been 72 years old next Christmas. He was prominent in Grand Army of the Republic circles, having enlisted during the civil war in Company F, Eighteenth Iowa Volunteer Infantry. He was assistant sergeant-at-arms during the last session of the Nebraska legislature. Besides his wife he leaves three sons, L. D. Beltzer, editor of the Monitor at Bradshaw, Neb.; Dr. Charles Beltzer and another son at Butte, Mont.

Running toward the house in the darkness, he discovered that it had been demolished and that his wife was killed.

Frank Welsh, a rich farmer, was on a path of the storm, sat in his home when he saw his barn, tobacco and sheep sheds and other buildings torn from their foundations and demolished. The tornado also damaged the house, but the family escaped unhurt. He placed his loss at $15,000.

Boy Meets Death.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Henry Meyer, 13 years of age, of Bolivar, Ill., was killed yesterday when the storm tore the roof from a barn in which he had taken refuge. Rockford, in Wisconsin county, suffered a heavy property loss, but no fatalities.

Tornado Hits Virginia, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—A tornado swooped down upon Virginia, Ill., at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, dealing destruction right and left and leaving ruin in its wake. A score of persons were seriously injured, while the town was completely wrecked. Many had miraculous escapes, but some were killed. The most seriously injured were Earl Whitaker, the little son of William Whitaker; Fred French and Otis Middleton.

The Whitaker boy was the most seriously injured, being caught under the wreckage of the Whitaker home, which was demolished.

The storm swept with terrific force through the center of the town, not a business building or residence that lay in its wake escaping damage. One hundred dwellings were unroofed or sustained serious injury in another manner, while the business section is a mass of wreckage. A drenching rain followed the violent wind, and tonight the town was in total darkness.

The path of the storm was half a mile wide. Many small buildings were wrecked. Telephone wires are down and it is difficult to get details from nearby towns in the storm's path.

The tornado followed a hot, sultry day. At noon the mercury stood at 90 degrees. Rain turning to snow followed the wind and a rapid fall of temperature began. At 10:30 o'clock tonight the mercury stood at 22 degrees.

Storm Hits Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 12.—A wind and rain storm swept over Peoria at 4 o'clock yesterday, causing property damage of several thousand dollars. The wind reached a velocity of forty miles an hour, and a quarter of rain fell in half an hour. The temperature dropped 15 degrees in eight hours, registering 15 degrees at 10 o'clock. Telephone and telegraph communication tonight is practically at a standstill. The storm seemed to follow the river and more than twenty motor boats were sunk in the river. No one was injured.

Death Record.

Carl Gustave Levene.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The funeral of Carl Gustave Levene was held here Saturday. The services were from the First Methodist church, of which the deceased was one of the charter members, and interment was in the Merrick county cemetery. Mr. Levene was in his seventy-fourth year and had been engaged in the tailoring business in Central City for upwards of thirty years.

ALL NATIONS ON SHIP'S LIST

Remarkable Babel of Races and Tongues on an Atlantic Liner.

The most remarkable collection of passengers ever arriving at the port of New York on one steamship, according to the immigration men, came in last week on the American liner St. Paul. It was a ship of all nations, for according to an official, who went over the lists, nearly every country in the world was represented. It brought 199 first, 40 second and 63 steerage passengers.

The most picturesque passengers were fifty American Indians of the Sioux tribe, led by Chief Little Bull, a medicine man of note. Flat Iron, who says he is 105 years old; spotted Wenas, and Good Horse. They are returning to the Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota, after a not too successful tour as amusement providers abroad.

Besides the Americans and Englishmen, Japan, China, Portugal, Ceylon, Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Russia, Poland, Ireland, Italian, Persia, and Turkey were also represented.

Somebody on the liner called the reporters aside when the vessel was boarded at quarantine and advised them to go into the steerage.

"There is a fellow down there with a history," said the stranger. "You who are always looking for tales of the sea will find a little volume when you run across John Dillon."

In the steerage the news hunters found a weather-beaten man with one arm who said he was Mr. Dillon of Portland, Ore., fighter and adventurer, who had "been up against it more'n a year." He denied any intention of publishing his story in book form. This is the substance of it:

The young man left Portland in the early part of 1890, traveling with a medicine show and "charismatic company." There had been rough sledding until the show reached New Orleans, and there it went to pieces. The steamship Etanah was ready to start for England, when Dillon found it, and he signed as a coal trimmer. In England he went aboard the Norwegian bark Haun, bound for Lisbon.

He liked Lisbon, and had about decided to make it his home, when one night as he was strolling down one of the dark streets he felt a blow upon the head. He remembered nothing for two days, and then, on regaining consciousness, found that he was in a hospital and that an arm had been amputated. The harbor-master of Lisbon told the authorities that he had found Dillon, bleeding and unconscious, by the side of a railroad track, with his pockets turned inside out.

From Lisbon Dillon went to Cardiff, Wales, and later the American consul at Southampton being his home on the St. Paul. The passengers subscribed enough money to take the wanderer to his home in Oregon.

Northwest Farmers' Institute.

CHADRON, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The Northwest Nebraska Farmers' institute, that has been in session here since November 6, closed yesterday. It has been successful in every respect. The attendance has been a surprise to the most sanguine of the promoters, prominent among whom is Charles Mann, the president, and E. P. Wilson, secretary. The men's class of 101 has been enrolled, while in the women's there are 202. Instructors: Dr. Carlson, ex-authority on the horse; W. W. Burr from the North Platte experiment station; Regent Campbell and H. J. Gramlich. Prof. C. W. Pugsley of the state university was expected, but owing to serious illness of his wife was prevented from attending.

HYMENEAL.

Springer-Watson.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—Sylvester Springer of this city and Miss Anna Watson of Alexandria, Neb., were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Shook Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Only immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony.

Few, if any, medicines have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has effected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation. For sale by all dealers.

STOCK FOOD MEN IN COURT

Case in Keokuk to Break Law Requiring License.

SEEK TO EVADE THE BIG FEE

Enforcement of Anti-Gambling Law Will Result in Putting Turkey Raffles Under the Ban Over State.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The state has pending in the district court at Keokuk a case that is important to the state food and dairy department and to the stock food men of every city along the new Omaha-Plattsmouth-Kansas City automobile road. D. E. Watkins will be the principal speaker at the meeting, at which an association will be formed whose purpose will be to improve the roads in Cass county and the Omaha-Kansas City road.

Running toward the house in the darkness, he discovered that it had been demolished and that his wife was killed.

Frank Welsh, a rich farmer, was on a path of the storm, sat in his home when he saw his barn, tobacco and sheep sheds and other buildings torn from their foundations and demolished. The tornado also damaged the house, but the family escaped unhurt. He placed his loss at $15,000.

Boy Meets Death.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Henry Meyer, 13 years of age, of Bolivar, Ill., was killed yesterday when the storm tore the roof from a barn in which he had taken refuge. Rockford, in Wisconsin county, suffered a heavy property loss, but no fatalities.

Tornado Hits Virginia, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—A tornado swooped down upon Virginia, Ill., at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, dealing destruction right and left and leaving ruin in its wake. A score of persons were seriously injured, while the town was completely wrecked. Many had miraculous escapes, but some were killed. The most seriously injured were Earl Whitaker, the little son of William Whitaker; Fred French and Otis Middleton.

The Whitaker boy was the most seriously injured, being caught under the wreckage of the Whitaker home, which was demolished.

The storm swept with terrific force through the center of the town, not a business building or residence that lay in its wake escaping damage. One hundred dwellings were unroofed or sustained serious injury in another manner, while the business section is a mass of wreckage. A drenching rain followed the violent wind, and tonight the town was in total darkness.

The path of the storm was half a mile wide. Many small buildings were wrecked. Telephone wires are down and it is difficult to get details from nearby towns in the storm's path.

The tornado followed a hot, sultry day. At noon the mercury stood at 90 degrees. Rain turning to snow followed the wind and a rapid fall of temperature began. At 10:30 o'clock tonight the mercury stood at 22 degrees.

Storm Hits Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 12.—A wind and rain storm swept over Peoria at 4 o'clock yesterday, causing property damage of several thousand dollars. The wind reached a velocity of forty miles an hour, and a quarter of rain fell in half an hour. The temperature dropped 15 degrees in eight hours, registering 15 degrees at 10 o'clock. Telephone and telegraph communication tonight is practically at a standstill. The storm seemed to follow the river and more than twenty motor boats were sunk in the river. No one was injured.

Death Record.

Carl Gustave Levene.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The funeral of Carl Gustave Levene was held here Saturday. The services were from the First Methodist church, of which the deceased was one of the charter members, and interment was in the Merrick county cemetery. Mr. Levene was in his seventy-fourth year and had been engaged in the tailoring business in Central City for upwards of thirty years.

ALL NATIONS ON SHIP'S LIST

Remarkable Babel of Races and Tongues on an Atlantic Liner.

The most remarkable collection of passengers ever arriving at the port of New York on one steamship, according to the immigration men, came in last week on the American liner St. Paul. It was a ship of all nations, for according to an official, who went over the lists, nearly every country in the world was represented. It brought 199 first, 40 second and 63 steerage passengers.

The most picturesque passengers were fifty American Indians of the Sioux tribe, led by Chief Little Bull, a medicine man of note. Flat Iron, who says he is 105 years old; spotted Wenas, and Good Horse. They are returning to the Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota, after a not too successful tour as amusement providers abroad.

Besides the Americans and Englishmen, Japan, China, Portugal, Ceylon, Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Russia, Poland, Ireland, Italian, Persia, and Turkey were also represented.

Somebody on the liner called the reporters aside when the vessel was boarded at quarantine and advised them to go into the steerage.

"There is a fellow down there with a history," said the stranger. "You who are always looking for tales of the sea will find a little volume when you run across John Dillon."

In the steerage the news hunters found a weather-beaten man with one arm who said he was Mr. Dillon of Portland, Ore., fighter and adventurer, who had "been up against it more'n a year." He denied any intention of publishing his story in book form. This is the substance of it:

The young man left Portland in the early part of 1890, traveling with a medicine show and "charismatic company." There had been rough sledding until the show reached New Orleans, and there it went to pieces. The steamship Etanah was ready to start for England, when Dillon found it, and he signed as a coal trimmer. In England he went aboard the Norwegian bark Haun, bound for Lisbon.

He liked Lisbon, and had about decided to make it his home, when one night as he was strolling down one of the dark streets he felt a blow upon the head. He remembered nothing for two days, and then, on regaining consciousness, found that he was in a hospital and that an arm had been amputated. The harbor-master of Lisbon told the authorities that he had found Dillon, bleeding and unconscious, by the side of a railroad track, with his pockets turned inside out.

From Lisbon Dillon went to Cardiff, Wales, and later the American consul at Southampton being his home on the St. Paul. The passengers subscribed enough money to take the wanderer to his home in Oregon.

Northwest Farmers' Institute.

CHADRON, Neb., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The Northwest Nebraska Farmers' institute, that has been in session here since November 6, closed yesterday. It has been successful in every respect. The attendance has been a surprise to the most sanguine of the promoters, prominent among whom is Charles Mann, the president, and E. P. Wilson, secretary. The men's class of 101 has been enrolled, while in the women's there are 202. Instructors: Dr. Carlson, ex-authority on the horse; W. W. Burr from the North Platte experiment station; Regent Campbell and H. J. Gramlich. Prof. C. W. Pugsley of the state university was expected, but owing to serious illness of his wife was prevented from attending.

HYMENEAL.

Springer-Watson.

Few, if any, medicines have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has effected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation. For sale by all dealers.

ALDRICH DEFENDS MONETARY PLAN

(Continued from First Page.)

able, by influencing a sufficient number of banks in these local associations, to turn the balance of power into their favor. In its present form the Aldrich plan renders criticism possible."

A. C. Bartlett, president of the National Citizens' league:

"From a business man's standpoint there should be called into being an association of banks whose co-operation would make the association a bulwark of strength in times of financial disturbance and an equalizer of burdens and benefits in the financial world in times of peace."

Former Governor Joseph Folk, Missouri:

"I would suggest a national department of finance, with fifteen directors appointed by the president, one from each of the fifteen districts into which the country is to be divided."

E. D. Hurst, vice president Merchants' Loan and Trust company, Chicago:

"Unlimited inflation is dangerous under the plan. To guard against dangerous expansion we should have gold for our reserve, leaving other securities for emergencies."

MacVeagh Suggests Amendments.

Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, in an address here tonight before the Western Economic society gave his reform to the plan of currency reform which has been suggested to the National Monetary commission by former Senator Nelson W. Aldrich. Mr. MacVeagh declared, however, that he believed the plan would be received with prejudice in congress unless it contained some provision to prevent banks from controlling stocks in other ways.

"I believe the holding of shares in another bank by a bank which is a member of the National Reserve association should be prohibited," he said. "This should be made to apply not only to the corporate action of the bank, but to action by substitute method accomplishing the same purpose. I feel sure that American conditions are permanently opposed to any semblance of branch banking and to any concentration of bank ownership or control."

"I feel that the proposed new monetary system will be prejudiced in congress and in the public mind unless provision is made against this ownership of bank stock. In my opinion this should be dealt with in the Monetary commission's report. Otherwise I am sure congress will deal with it on its own initiative."

Urges Prompt Action.