

MANY HEAR MRS. PANKHURST

English Woman Describes Battles Fought by Suffragettes.

VIOLENCE CALLED NECESSARY

Done to Compel Attention of Government to Demands—One Centennial Round of Rebuffs from Those in Power.

Before an audience, thoroughly representative of Omaha citizenship, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant suffragettes, pleaded and argued for woman suffrage and told the story of the struggles of the suffragettes at the Boyd theater Friday. She showed herself a cultured, well informed, and an able and charming woman. Her address was a plain story told with great accuracy and careful choice of language; a simple argument in favor of "votes for women."

Mrs. Pankhurst preceded her story of the recent struggles of the suffragettes with a brief history of the movement in Great Britain.

"The movement is more than fifty years old," she said. "Early in the last century the battle was begun. Before the reform act of 1832 there was no law to prevent women's voting other than that which denied suffrage to most men. It was a high property qualification. Men found difficulty in meeting it and the difficulty was so great that comparatively few enjoyed the right of suffrage. Women who could meet this property qualification were privileged to vote."

"The first suffrage society was organized by John Stuart Mill in his own home, Manchester, in the '60s, though there had been agitation for a number of years prior to that time."

Will Start Movement.
"In 1867 there was another reform bill and Mr. Mill moved an amendment that would have extended the suffrage to women. Those who opposed the amendment declared that the bill in its original form would extend suffrage to the sex. The word 'man' and 'person' were used. It was contended that the word 'man' was used in its broadest sense and that there could be no question but that 'person' included both sexes. After passage of this bill 400 women in Lancashire were registered, but the revision courts struck their names from the books, holding that they were persons in paying taxes, suffering penalties and pains for violating laws, but were not persons when it came to exercising the rights and privileges of citizenship. Under the university suffrage women graduates of our universities sought to vote, but the house of lords recently as a year ago held as did the revision courts in 1892."

Commencing Attention.
Mrs. Pankhurst followed with an argument for woman suffrage and continued with the story of the more recent struggles of the suffragettes.

"We found we had not gained ground," she said. "We studied the situation and found that the movements that had progressed had been those that forced their way to public consideration. Before the act of 1832 there was voting and the city of Bristol was almost burned down. The bill was passed. There was voting at other times and other reform acts were passed. All the parties had favored woman suffrage for years, but they had not put it among their working principles."

"We started out to win the liberal party because it was apparent it was to go into power. At their meetings we simply asked them when they were going to be true to their principles and give votes to women. Meetings, but we were resolute. When they thought they had kept us out of the question would come, sometimes from among the organ pipes, sometimes from a remote corner of the building, sometimes from a window. I have known women to stay in hiding thirty-six hours before a meeting to ask that question and I have known them to search a building as often as six times a day to make sure we were not there."

Exaggerated Reports.
Mrs. Pankhurst declared reports of the stone-throwing have been exaggerated, not more than 100 stones having been thrown since the struggle was started. The women simply wrapped around stones alps of paper on which the question was written and threw them into the buildings where the liberals were meeting, taking care to send the stones where they would strike no persons.

Finally the suffragettes resorted to their right to petition the premier for votes. He refused to see them and it was because of their insistence that they were arrested and imprisoned.

"He received a deputation of working men," said Mrs. Pankhurst. "They had votes and he didn't want to offend them, but when we went to see him he called out five policemen to keep thirteen women from getting through the door."

A year ago, Mrs. Pankhurst said, the premier and Parliament no longer could refuse to consider the suffrage movement and the concession bill was decided upon. "The premier assured the women this bill, extending the suffrage to all women who are heads of households, would be freely discussed and passed if there was a majority, and for years there has been a majority for suffrage in the House of Commons."

Not in Manhood Bill.
"Today I have a cable from my daughter," said Mrs. Pankhurst. "Telling me that they have refused to include women in the manhood suffrage bill, which will extend the suffrage to all men who are 21 years of age. They have played a contemptible trick on us, but we yet shall win. Relying upon the promise of the premier, we have done nothing to further the cause for a year. We see we had too much faith."

After her address Mrs. Pankhurst answered several questions propounded by auditors.

Upon her own initiative and without consulting the Omaha Woman Suffrage society, which brought her here, Mrs. Pankhurst asked that a collection be taken to help defray the expenses and replenish the treasury of the local organization. Before the informal reception was ended Mrs. W. E. Shafer, head of the society, announced the expenses had been more than met.

For half an hour Mrs. Pankhurst received in the foyer. Hundreds of women and many men grasped her hand. Some women called her "dearie" and "honey." A few who had lived in states where women enjoy the privilege of suffrage told her how they had been delegates to political conventions and had voted.

Suffrage Debate Recalled.
Victor Rosewater was chairman of the evening. With a few words he complimented Mrs. Pankhurst and the many able women who are forwarding the suffrage movement. He recalled the debate between his father, the late Edward Rosewater, and Miss Susan B. Anthony thirty years ago, spoke of the lasting friendship between his father and Miss Anthony and of his own admiration for the famous suffragist and others who were associated with her.

In the audience were society men and women, business men, school teachers, temperance workers, socialists and philosophical anarchists. Some of the two last named classes asked questions, the socialists calling attention to the fact that their party is the only active party in the United States which champions equal suffrage.

Magnates Would End Betting on Base Ball

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 18.—Betting on base ball games was scored as of the greatest detriment to the game before the National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues today. At the suggestion of President Baum of the Pacific Coast league, the attorney general of the United States as well as the legal authorities of the states will be petitioned to exercise their power to stop pool selling, lotteries and other gambling devices affecting base ball.

Territorial jurisdiction and players' contracts were discussed today. It was pointed out that the rules, with respect to minor and major league territory, conflict and the national board of arbitration was instructed to adjust the matter with the National commission.

That negotiations are under way looking to the replacing of Hal Chase as manager of the New York Americans next season by Harry Wolverton, now manager of the Oakland team of the Pacific league, was persistently reported today. It is understood that Wolverton will confer with directors of the New York club in Philadelphia next week.

None of the persons interested would be quoted definitely.

Milwaukee was selected as the meeting place of the association in 1912 and annual "umpire" and "play grounds" days were endorsed.

Tomorrow old time stars will play ball for charity.

For the East the batteries will be George Leyds and "Jim" O'Rourke and for the West "Bill" Dalley and "Happy" Hogan.

Others who will be in the lineup for the East team are Charlie Carr, first; Bill Clymer, second; Dick Phelan, third; Jim Burke, short; Horace Fogel, center and Charles Ebbetts, right. The left fielder has not been decided upon.

For the West team Jack Holland will be on first base; Frank Isbell, second; Harry Wolverton, third; "Tip" O'Neill, center, and Charles Murphy, right. A short stop and left fielder are to be chosen.

Extra Hour of Marie An Expensive One For Abortories

Steve Abortories is the proprietor of a candy kitchen. In his employ he had Marie Whalen. One night she put in an extra hour, working after 10 o'clock.

The laws of Nebraska prohibit females doing any kind of labor after 10 o'clock at night. Will Maupin of Lincoln, a former deputy commissioner of labor, heard what Marie had been doing and filed a complaint, alleging that Abortories had been compelling her to violate a state law. In court yesterday the candy-maker admitted the truthfulness of the charge and was fined $25 and costs.

Associated Charities Hold Annual Meeting

The Associated Charities of Omaha held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon at the close of the convention of the League of Nebraska Municipalities. The delegates to the municipal convention were invited to hear the work of the charities discussed and many accepted.

Mrs. K. R. J. Edholm outlined the work of the charities and Mrs. George Tilden discussed the value of the Old People's Home. The program was in charge of the Nebraska Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis and the Young Woman's Christian association.

ATTACH "DR." VENO'S GOODS

Miracle Cure Doctor Sued by Masseur for His Wages.

ASSISTANTS LEAVE HIS EMPLOY

Young Physician Tells How He Made Examinations and Veno Took the Money and Prescribed Treatment.

"Dr." Dudley N. Veno, alias "The Marvelous Mayo," alias the "Hot Springs Doctors," who has been advertising himself as a miracle doctor for the last few weeks in Omaha by means of faked testimonials, is in trouble. Three of his assistants have left him because they would not countenance his fakery any longer and one of them, G. Koovary, has brought suit against him for wages and attached all his office furniture and appliances.

Mr. Koovary brought suit yesterday in Judge Altstadt's court for $4 and got out a writ of attachment on Veno's effects at 106 Farnam street. He also replevined some instruments which he said Veno had kept from him.

Real Name Dickinson.
It developed that the "marvelous doctor's" real name is Dudley N. Dickinson, and the suit was brought against "D. N. Dickinson, alias Veno." The "doctor's" bank account is in the name of Dickinson.

The case is set in Justice Altstadt's court for 9 o'clock Monday morning. Former employes of Veno said last night they thought he had been getting ready to leave Omaha, as The Bee's exposure of his fakery had cut his business down to almost nothing, but as he has about $100 worth of furniture under attachment and has put up a cash bond of $100, he may stay and defend the suit.

"I quit Veno because he was robbing people," said Koovary, who is an expert in electrical treatment. "He takes anybody for treatment, whether the disease is incurable or not, and gets all the money he can out of the patient."

Short Shift for Patients.
"One deaf man came," found that the drum of his ear was broken and told Veno it was no use for us to give him treatment. He told me not to say anything about it to the deaf man. Then he told him he could cure him and took his money. He kept growing at me and the other assistants because we took so much pains with our work."

"Put them through faster," he would say. "You are wasting too much time on them. We'll get their money and make room for somebody else."

"When I left he refused to pay me and kept my electrical instruments. He said he needed them in his business. I had no money. If I had, I wouldn't have worked for him as long as I did. I had to promise $13 to a man for putting up a $100 cash bond so I could go into court to get my money and instruments."

"Veno is not a doctor," said a young physician who was employed by Veno. "He gets around the law by hiring a real physician, who is supposed to do the actual practicing. It is all a farce. Veno had me make the examinations, but he extracted the money from the patients and told me what treatment to give them."

"I needed money and was willing to take almost any honest job when Veno offered me employment. When he persisted in bleeding poor people for their money when he knew he could do nothing for them and didn't intend to, I had to quit."

Masseur Quits Employ.
Another employe who quit was a masseur who worked for Veno when he was here fourteen years ago. He said Veno assured him he would be "on the square" this time, but the "doctor" didn't live up to the promise and the masseur, having the reputation to sustain, quit him.

These ex-employes say Veno has made several thousand dollars during his present short stay in Omaha, practically all of it before The Bee called public attention to his methods. They say that Veno boasts that he took $25,000 out of Omaha after his visit here fourteen years ago. He took $12,000 in eleven days at Butte, they say, soon after leaving Omaha in 1897.

If Veno cannot get cash in advance, according to them, he takes a note for $100 or $150 or whatever he can get, saying he will hold the note until the patient is cured and gives the patient a guarantee that he will be cured or his note will be returned.

Convicted of Using Whisky Bottles Twice

The jury in the federal court in the case against Edward Rothery, a saloonist at 111 South Fourteenth street, charged with refilling bonded whisky bottles with liquor and raising revenue stamps, returned a verdict of guilty yesterday afternoon.

Rothery was indicted last March upon information furnished by a dissatisfied customer, and the case came to trial Wednesday. Whisky experts from the distillery at Conestoga, Pa., which made the liquor which Rothery was said to have sold under false names, testified for the prosecution, and it was largely on their testimony that the conviction followed.

In his defense Rothery claimed that he was innocent of refilling the bottles and raising the stamps, and said that if the bottles were used again it was without his knowledge and consent by a porter discharged by Rothery and whom the government officials were unable to locate.

Hogan Has Better of His Bout with Brown

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—"One Round" Hogan easily had the better of seven of the ten rounds in a bout with "Knock-out" Brown at the Madison Athletic club tonight. It is the second time that Hogan has been credited with a victory over Brown.

Although at their previous meeting there was some division of opinion, the California undisputedly had the popular decision tonight.

Hogan began to get his man in the third round, when he sent a left uppercut to Brown's right eye. Thereafter Brown's eye was practically closed.

In the seventh Hogan got at Brown's bad eye again and sent three rights in quick succession to the New Yorker's face.

In the eighth Brown made the better showing and in the ninth sent a left to Hogan's face. Hogan came back with two rights, one on the body and one on the jaw, almost sending Brown through the ropes.

SCORING FOR CITIZENS' UNION

Mayor Dahman Says Members Seeking Control of City.

MUNICIPALITY MISREPRESENTED

Executive of Omaha Declares Organization Has Not Proved Any of Its Charges—Addresses Central Labor Union.

Mayor James C. Dahman, in an address before the Central Labor union last night, denounced the Citizens' union as being a body of men who have organized purely for the purpose of gaining control of the city government for the next three years at the polls next spring. He declared they were working under the guise of making clean politics by eliminating illegal registration.

"What is the Citizens' union anyhow?" asked the mayor. "What have they done? I will tell you what they have done. They have put a blot on the good name of Nebraska by sending out broadcast reports to the effect that the city is swarming with men who registered illegally. Although they have sent out these reports they have failed to prove a thing. Not a single conviction has been made. What, then, is their object? Simply to get control of the city government. We will go out and organize the struggling masses of humanity in this city and see who will run this government for the next three years."

"We don't propose to have this city ruined by this body of men. We will elect who we want at the next election and not who the Citizens' union wants. Since I have been mayor of this city I challenge any man in the Citizens' union to point out a dishonorable act that I have committed."

As to Candidates.
Although the mayor did not say he would be a candidate for one of the seven commissionerships at the coming election, he got about it in a roundabout way. The word "we" was used by him profusely when he came to the point of the coming election. The mayor said he was in favor of organized labor and recited instances where he had done so, but he said: "I have been, as friendly to organized labor as any man you may get in the city hall for some time to come, especially if you elect Citizens' union candidates. I am not afraid to go before the tolling masses and talk, because I have not taken a penny which did not rightfully belong to me since I have been the chief executive of this city, and I will do the same in the future if I see fit to take another try at it under the commission form of government."

Councilmen Schroeder and Kugel, who were also present at the meeting, made short talks on behalf of the barbers' ordinance, as also did C. M. Peider, national organizer for the barbers' union.

Anniversary of the Manchester Martyrs

With Dr. Mullen, P. C. Heafey, M. P. O'Connor, J. TePoel and M. Hogan in charge of the arrangements, the members of the Emmet Monument association next Thursday night at the Creighton university auditorium will observe the forty-fourth anniversary of the execution of the Manchester martyrs, O'Brien, Larkin and Allen. The address of the evening will be by Father Thine of Plattsmouth, the Ancient Order of Hibernian band of South Omaha furnishing the music.

Railroads Denied Right to Increase Their Sand Rates

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Representatives of the Burlington, Northwestern, Rock Island, Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads, who applied to the State Highway commission for permission to raise rates on sand from various pits which they serve to South Omaha, Omaha and Lincoln, have been denied their request. An increase from 1 1/2 cents per hundredweight to 2 cents per hundredweight was asked by the roads concerned.

Freight agents who testified before the commission during the time that the matter was under advisement declared that the 1 1/2-cent rate existing at the present time was hardly compensatory and that in some cases of short hauls the receipts did not justify the expenditures of carrying the sand.

In the order denying the request the commission sets out that, taking into account the value of the commodity, the tonnage moved to the points named and that claims are rarely presented or paid and that the tracks serving the sand pits are usually constructed by the shippers themselves, the petition could not consistently be granted. "Further," reads the order, "when it is taken into consideration that the applicants are carrying this commodity on their lines at many points in other states where the traffic is heavy at as low or lower rates than are now in effect to the points of South Omaha, Omaha and Lincoln and that they are carrying many other commodities of greater value at an equal or less earning per ton per mile, the prayer of the petitioners should not be granted."

Mill Changes Hands.
DENISON, Ia., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—The Boyer Valley Mills at this city erected in 1897 by George Menagh have been sold to the Grand Milling company of Manning. The mill has modern machinery and capacity of 125 barrels per day. George Menagh, the head of the firm, has been engaged in buying stock and grain at this place for thirty years.

Breaks a Cold in a Day
And Cures any Cough that is Curable. Noted Doctor's Formula.

"From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and a half ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whisky. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age. This is the best formula known to science. There are many cheaper preparations of large quantity, but it does not pay to experiment with a bad cold. Be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it in stock he will get it quickly. Smaller doses to children according to age. This has been published here every winter for six years and thousands of families know its value.—Adv.

President Is Likely to Retain Secretary Wilson in Cabinet

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—Unless unexpected contingencies arise President Taft will retain Secretary of Agriculture Wilson in his cabinet through the present administration. It is possible to say this with authority, now that the row over Dr. Wiley has settled down.

While undoubtedly there have been influences at work adverse to the retention of Secretary Wilson in his cabinet, they have not in anywise affected the president's regard for his secretary of agriculture and according to reports Mr. Wilson has done the president some good

Girl Charged with Riding Away Finest Wild Horse in Herd

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 18.—Marion Kirkpatrick, a handsome young woman of 22, is under arrest here on the charge of being a daring and successful horse thief. It is alleged that, unaided, she rounded up a large band of wild horses belonging to a cattle company in a lonely part of Owyhee county, selected the best horse of the band, roped, threw and saddled him and rode him into Butte where she sold the steed for $40.
