

Desperate Desmond

The Villain Even Takes Advantage of the Red Cross of Mercy

By Hershfield

The villain Desmond is now up against it far fair, enclosed in an abandoned building...

But Desmond, ever alert, notices an ambulance running away and observes that it will pass between him and the firing party...

Inside the swaying ambulance the villain sees the clothing of the surgeon and puts it on. He does not hesitate to use the badge of mercy as a cover for his own base person and his evil designs.

The noise of battle arouses Claude and he rushes to join the Italian side. With him goes the beautiful Rosamond, who has become a nurse, with the two-fold purpose of aiding the wounded and of being near her hero, Claude, where the fighting is hottest.

And the noble act only puts her into the power of Desmond. That reckless scoundrel, leaning out from the bounding ambulance, snatches up the devoted girl and once again has her in his power.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I can make this ambulance travel some."

"Away he goes with Rosamond, while Claude, with unconquerable pluck, dashes madly after the fleeing villain. It is a mad chase, and we can't tell who will win until we see to-morrow's paper."
