TELL OF KELLY'S ACTIONS

Witnesses in Murder Trial Seek to Show His Condition.

CARELESS ABOUT HIS LIFE

At One Time Shuffled Tablets, One Poisonous and the Other Not, and Swallowed One by Chance.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, Nov. 24.—(Special Telegram.)—Defense in the Kelly murder trial has subpoenaed W. R. Burns of Omaha, who will tell of Dr. Kelly's actions while he was in the state of the Kansas institute a year ago, also Frank Capell of Council Bluffs, who was present when he was committed to the inebriate hospital at Knoxville.

The defense will also ask for several witnesses in Des Moines, who will give evidence of insanity in Kelly just before the tragedy of March 24.

Dr. MacDiarmid of Omaha gave testimony today in defense of Dr. Kelly in line with other evidence to show how the defendant had broken down mentally early this year and the effect of his long career of drinking and using drugs.

When Kelly was practicing in Waterloo, Neb., he came to MacDiarmid's office twice a month and was generally intoxicated. Once when the witness was called to conduct a post-mortem he prevented Kelly from incurring great danger from infection by deliberately placing his bare hand upon the gangrened parts of the body.

Dr. Stephens of Treynor told on the stand how Kelly had on one occasion mixed up several tablets of poison and one that was not poisonous and had then shuffled them about and shutting his eyes selected one, which he swallowed. It proved to be of cocaine and the witness saved his life.

The court adjourned the case until Monday morning when it will be continued.

Auto Plates Barred.

Automobile plates are not considered as printed matter and cannot be sent through the mails at third-class rates. The Postoffice department has made a ruling to this effect in answer to a request made by Postmaster Kurts on application for a ruling made by Secretary of State Haywood.

It was the hope of the State department to secure permission to enter the plates as third-class matter and cut the expense of delivery of the plates in two.

Notice of Safe Robbery.

The headquarters of the State Bankers' association here was notified today of the robbery of $4,000 from the Derby State bank of Derby, Lucas county, and detectives have been sent to work on the case. The safe was blown open.

The Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern railway has bought the abandoned Newton & Northwestern railroad. It plans to electrify the Newton line in a short time from Colfax to Newton and it will be operated by the Des Moines Interurban.

Iowa Engineer Will Help Make Plan for Railway Valuation

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Dean William G. Raymond of the college of engineering of the University of Iowa, has just been appointed a member of a special committee selected by the board of directors of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the purpose of which will be to formulate principles and methods for the valuation of railroad property and other public utilities. Every county of every state in the union is to be affected by the report of the committee. Other members will be Robert Noble, who was in charge of the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels under the Hudson river, New York; T. H. Johnson, consulting engineer of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh; J. P. Snow, chief engineer of the Boston & Maine railroad; C. L. Strobel, president of the St. Paul & Northern Pacific construction company, Chicago; Frederick P. Stearns, consulting engineer of Boston, Mass.; Leonard Motz, consulting engineer, Boston, Mass.

Funeral of Engineer Haywood.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—The funeral of W. J. Haywood, Illinois Central engineer killed in the Logan wreck, was held Thursday in this city and a special train with a great delegation of railroad men from Waterloo and Fort Dodge and with relatives and other friends went to Cherokee at noon, where the body was to be interred beside that of Mr. and Mrs. Haywood's child.

Superintendent Downs has not given out his decision about the cause of the wreck. He held an investigation all day yesterday.

Bankers Meet in Detroit Next Year

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 24.—Detroit today was selected as the meeting place of the 1912 convention of the American Bankers' association here. The time of the next convention will be named by the executive council at its meeting in the spring.

HYMENEAL.

CLARK-SEERLEY.
CEDAR FALLS, Ia., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—In the beautiful home of President Homer H. Seerley of the Iowa State Teachers' college, his younger daughter, Miss Helen C. Seerley, was last evening united in marriage with Atherton B. Clark of Cedar Rapids, son of Colonel Charles A. Clark, a prominent attorney and grand army man of Iowa. The officiating clergyman was Rev. E. E. Day of the First Congregational church, and about 100 guests were present.

Cheyenne Men Pay Thirty Thousand for Territorial Rights

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 24.—(Special.)

A number of prominent business men are mourning the loss of sums aggregating $30,000, and the men who "worked" them have departed for greener fields, although they cannot be prosecuted even if their victims wished revenge.

Last summer two men appeared here as agents of a pressed metal kitchen cabinet. They did a land office business, and after disposing of 300 cabinets in Cheyenne interested local business men in outside territory, which was disposed of at from $1,000 to $12,500, according to the size of the said territory. A retired ranchman purchased the state rights for Idaho, paying $12,000 for same; a dairyman purchased Natrona county, this state, for $4,500; a physician purchased rights in another county in the state for $3,000, while a well known postal clerk running between Cheyenne and Pocatello paid $5,000 for the Utah state rights. In addition to this the purchasers advanced $1 per cabinet on a certain number of cabinets which they contracted to buy.

Agents of the local kitchen cabinet magnates were placed in the field, but with indifferent success. In some instances they found their territory had been sold to others, who had already canvassed same.

BEATTIE ADMITS MURDER OF WIFE

nesses to the execution tolled through the murky dawn up the hill to the penitentiary, that looks down on the city. They were quickly conducted, single file, through gates of steel bars to the chamber where Beattie was to offer his atonement. There was no conversation.

Within the chamber all was in readiness. The chair, a solid structure of oak, would ordinarily have appeared like the chairs seen in libraries. In the somber bare chamber, however, it was sinister. Straps dangled from its arms and back, and shining steel clamps appeared in the light of the electric like tentacles outstretched to clasp a victim.

The witnesses were seated six abreast, in an angle of the room. They shuffled their feet uneasily and when one leaned forward to speak to another, his action was received with frowns.

Major Woods, with two deputy wardens, addressed the witnesses, going through some small formalities demanded by law. Then, with his two men trailing behind him, he passed out into the building, where Beattie awaited the summons in his cell adjoining.

Death March Is Short.

In the death chamber the voice of the warden could be heard plainly reading to the doomed man the final summons. The warden's voice droned on, it seemed to the witnesses interminably. In reality the compliance with the law occupied only a brief moment. Then, with Beattie between them, the deputy wardens began their progress toward the chair, only a few feet away.

When the procession, followed by Superintendent Woods started, a signal was given which plunged the death chamber into blackness, save for a single light immediately over the chair. This was so hooded that it outlined the chair in a circle of blinding radiance so intense that the remainder of the room seemed in utter darkness. The witnesses scarce could see each other. The prisoner saw nothing but the chair. There was no delay in preparing for the end. Beattie took his place, the prison surgeon and electricians adjusted the straps, a half dozen clamps were quickly thrown into place and snapped.

The cap, resembling a leather foot ball head harness, was adjusted, and the men stepped back.

The warden raised his hand. Instantly Beattie's body stiffened with such violence that the straps creaked with the strain, the clamps rattled as though they were castnets in the hands of death, and then that which once had been Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., relaxed.

It was just 7:28 a. m. when the shock was applied. One minute later Beattie was dead.

The surgeon had gone forward and with a stethoscope had listened for another faint beating of the heart that less than sixty seconds before had lived. He stepped back.

History of Crime.

The crime for which Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., was executed today was one of the most sensational in the criminal history of Virginia. Interest in the murder was country-wide owing to its unusual features and the swift movement of justice.

On the night of July 19 last Beattie drove his automobile into Richmond, carrying with him the body of his wife, which had a gaping shotgun wound in the head. He declared that a tall bearded man had accosted him on the Midlothian turnpike five miles from Richmond, and when he had requested the man to make room for him in the road the stranger without warning had fired the shot which killed Mrs. Beattie. He added that he had grappled with the man, but was overpowered and that the murderer had fled, leaving the gun behind. This story of the crime was maintained by Beattie to the end.

For a brief time Beattie's story was given some degree of credence, but within a day or two suspicion began to point to him and he was kept under closest surveillance. Bloodhounds taken to the scene of the crime refused to leave the place, circling around the blood spot on the road.

Beattie, it eventually transpired, had thrown the shotgun into the tunnel of the automobile after the shooting, but in passing over the same railroad tracks not far from the scene it had been jolted out and was picked up later by a negro. This gun, which Beattie alleged had belonged to the mysterious highwayman, proved the means of sending the young man to the electric chair.

At the coroner's inquest the weapon was identified by Paul Beattie, a second

Juniors' and Small Women's COATS

Reduced for Saturday

After several weeks' heavy selling we find that we have about 100 beautiful coats in odd sizes for juniors and small women.

Because of their odd sizes we have made price reductions which will sell every coat Saturday. Your size is doubtless included, and this is an unusual opportunity to secure your coat at far below its real value.

Every coat is of the same high grade material and exclusive style which has made our coats so popular this season—including the Polo, Reversible and Sailor Collar styles, in beautiful plain colors and fancy mixtures.

We urge an early selection.

Sizes for juniors and small women up to size 38.
