PROMOTIONS FOR R. M. S. MEN

Omaha Employees Will Have Choice of New Division Jobs.

MAKE CHANGES IN JANUARY

Superintendent Mastens is Getting Matters in Shape and Will Have Force Organized by January 15.

Speculation is rife in the Omaha branch of the railway mail service as to which of the employees will be promoted to the various desirable offices in the new Fourteenth division. Superintendent Mastens says there will be at least a score of promotions, but that none would be made before the first of the year. He adds that men employed in the Omaha branch would in all probability be given preference.

"Just now we are working slowly, because we not only have to wait for the furniture, but this is the busiest season in all the twelve months. Until January 15 we will not be working with full force, although I will start some of the work of the new division December 1. Approximately 1,000 men will work in the Fourteenth division.

Redesigned by Landis. In the last two days Mr. Mastens has been besieged by boarding house keepers who wanted him to direct boarders to them. The new superintendent was at loss to know how to answer them, but he finally struck the plea of telling them that he had no authority to board boarders in his official capacity, and that if he attempted to do so without authority he would be "indicted for treason and malfeasance in office." These words were usually too much for the enterprising women and they lost no time in assuring him that they did not wish to "get him in bad."

Superintendent Mastens this morning received a visit from Assistant Superintendent George A. Gardner of New York and George I. Porter of Washington, who are here inspecting the inaugural program of the new division. Mr. Porter is to take the position of assistant superintendent of the railway mail service under the supervision of the second assistant postmaster general, which job was made vacant by the promotion of Mr. Mastens.

Extra Track Needed by Missouri Pacific

E. J. Pearson, first vice president; J. W. Higgins, general manager, St. Louis. A. De Bernardi, general superintendent; R. T. G. Matthews, assistant general passenger agent; A. M. Wherry, general freight agent, Kansas City; and J. R. Rufford, superintendent of the western division, Falls City, all of the Missouri Pacific, arrived on a special and spent several hours in the city yesterday. The Missouri Pacific officials came in over the Belt line and made a number of stops between Gilmore and the Webster street station, examining the topography of the land along the line and the manufacturing establishments that have been located in close proximity to the Belt line tracks within the last year. None of the officials would say when the second track would be put in, but all agreed that it would have to come in the near future, perhaps early next spring.

SENATOR BROWN VISITS WITH FRIENDS IN OMAHA

Senator Morris Brown is in the city on his last visit before leaving for Washington to resume his senatorial work. "I am just shaking hands with my friends here," he said, "and congratulating them on the success of the republican ticket in the general election. We are all congratulating Chairman Kennedy of the state central committee on the manner in which he handled the campaign. I leave next week for Washington and my family will go with me."

Exploding Torch Breaks Windows

Lloyd Walton lit a gasoline torch in the basement of the Bennett Electrical company's building at 20 South Nineteenth street at 8:30 o'clock yesterday. He tripped upstairs for a moment to secure something he had forgotten, and in his absence the torch exploded. The windows in the building were shattered and other slight damage was done, but no one was hurt.

The damage done by the explosion is estimated at $75.

WILL OF C. B. KOUNTZE FILED FOR PROBATE

The will of Charles B. Kountze of Denver, brother of the late Herman B. Kountze of Omaha, has been filed for probate in the county court in Denver. One hundred shares of the capital stock of the First National bank of Omaha and 200 shares of the capital stock of the Colorado National bank, of which Mr. Kountze was president, go to his son, Harold B. Kountze of Denver, who also receives 25 per cent of his father's interest in the banking firm of Kountze Bros., New York. He is given the right to purchase the remaining interests from his mother and sisters.

The widow receives the family home, Churches, hospitals, other charitable institutions and a minister receive $50,000; employees of the Colorado National bank, $12,500.

J. R. Contee, a negro janitor at the bank, employed by Mr. Kountze since the bank's establishment, receives $500.

MANY WOULD FURNISH BONDS

Lively Scramble to Provide Sureties for Treasurer-Elect Ure.

PREMIUM TO BE QUITE LARGE

Separate Bonds to Be Provided for the County, City, Schools and Later for Treasurer of the Water Board.

A lively scramble is going on right now to get in on the job of furnishing the official bond for County Treasurer-elect Ure. Mr. Ure will be custodian of public funds in various capacities, as county treasurer, as city treasurer, as school district treasurer, and probably later as Water board treasurer, and in each case is by law required to give a bond. The total of the bonds now exacted is $530,000, which will call for the payment to the companies furnishing the same of a premium of $4,150, which will come out of the county, city and school district funds. It is to get a slice of this $4,150 that the competition is so fierce.

An interesting development also arises from the sparring to get in on one bond or the other. One bond company, for example, is represented by a member of the city council and another by a member of the Water board, who are supposed to have a pull because of their official positions, but the charter expressly prohibits an officer of the city from having a contract with it or benefiting directly or indirectly from a contract with the city, so these agents, if they are to be taken care of, must be permitted to write the county bond instead of the city bond. As all of the bonds have to be underwritten, still further trouble is presented by the refusal of certain companies to become joint sureties with other companies. In the meantime Mr. Ure is said to be working on the puzzle.

Keck is Fined for Lifting the Lid

J. H. Keck, who was arrested recently for selling beer and whisky to his drug store at 316 South Tenth street, was fined $25 and costs in municipal court for selling whisky without registering the purchaser and was bound over to the district court on $250 bonds for selling beer without a license.

MILWAUKEE INAUGURATES NEW PALATIAL TRAIN

On its Pacific coast line the Milwaukee road has installed the "Olympian," a train that runs from Chicago to Seattle—a train that in point of elegance and comfort has few equals. The "Olympian" leaves Chicago in the evening and during that night, the following day and the next night, passes through a country that, to a degree, is old, so far as the mid-west is concerned. The second day out, the "Olympian" reaches the country of wonders, and until the coast is reached, surprise after surprise greets the traveler. After crossing the Missouri river at Mohrville in North Dakota broad plains, occupied by the newer settlers, are seen for hundreds of miles. Then the train dives into the mountains, passing peak after peak, many of which are snow capped; it crosses innumerable mountain streams that go rolling and tumbling over the rocks and through the canyons as the waters rush on toward the Missouri. In these streams, and from the car windows, in hundreds of pools and upon the riffles, can be seen the rainbow and brook trout, their sides glistening in the sun. Many of these fish weigh as high as six pounds each. On its westward way, the "Olympian" passes through many new towns that are rapidly growing into cities, as well as through the famous old city of Butte, where hundreds and hundreds of fortunes have been taken from the mines in the vicinity.

The last day of the westward journey takes the traveler through the Cascades and through the great and wonderfully rich grain fields of the Palouse country, within sight of the glaciers system of Mount Rainier and through wide areas that are covered with Alpine flowers that bloom on the very edge of the snow on the sides of the mountain.

Key to the Situation—See Advertising.

Building Permits. George Grabe, 1111 Castellar, frame dwelling, $200; J. W. O'Brien, 316 North Fourteenth street, frame dwelling, $1,500; Hattie McGreer, 2816 North Forty-fifth street, frame dwelling, $2,500.
