Learning to Cook at State University

When the representatives of the South Omaha stock exchange interests and their guests—200 in number—paid their annual visit to the University of Nebraska experimental farm at Lincoln the girls of the home economics department, knowing how a man's heart is found, served them a delicious luncheon. Upon their arrival at the home economics building the South Omaha men were surprised and surrendered to a brigade of pretty junior girls—Della Yates, Madge Maloy, Gail McConnell, Louise Fuerst, Frances Larsen and Mayme Maloy—who pinned on each a huge chrysanthemum and then escorted them to the dining room, where the luncheon was served by representative students of the "309" in the department. There are fifty-seven members of the junior class this year and they are conceded to be the best looking class that ever learned to cook at Lincoln, or, for that matter, anywhere else.

"We have learned to cook and to keep house," said one of the girls, "and when we graduate next year—" She's wearing a diamond and several other members of the class will begin housekeeping as wives of prosperous Nebraska men as soon as they graduate. The luncheon served the South Omaha men was all prepared by the girls. "If I wasn't married," mused one of the stockmen, forgetting his wife had come with him, "I'll tell you what I would do—" "You would do no such thing, John Henry," said his wife, and John Henry agreed that he wouldn't, although he did not agree his wife could cook better than the "13 girls."

FRED HERRLEY ADMITS GUILT

Accused of Murder, He Faces Bench He Carved Many Years Ago.

KILLS WIFE OF A POLICEMAN

Finds Marriage a Failure and Takes Up His Home with Mrs. Florence Morris, Whom He Afterward Slays.

Twenty-seven years ago the handsome solid cherry judge's bench and dias in the criminal court room of the old court house was constructed. Two men did the work. The elder, the man in charge, sang and whistled as he labored, for he loved his work. He was a cabinet maker and more. He was an artist. He was but 24 years old and yet he was recognized as a complete and unusual master of his trade—his art. His assistant did his bidding, followed his instruction with never a question. This man he knew to be a master.

The cabinet maker was still young. He was in his prime. He hummed and whistled merry tunes as he labored. He had many things for which to be thankful. The sorrow that had followed the loss of his first wife had worn away. He had remarried but recently. He was happy in his new found love. He looked into a rosy future. Little he dreamed that twenty-seven years hence he should be led up before that bench, created by his own handwork, and charged with the murder. Little he dreamed that he should be led away to the county jail and within thirty days to be taken by the sheriff or some other duly appointed and authorized officer to the state's prison and there kept in close confinement for a period of not less than one nor more than ten years.

Charge is Modified.

Fred Herrley, cabinet maker, 61 years old, who on the night of September 25 shot and killed Mrs. Florence Morris, wife of a member of the police force, with whom he was living at 301 North Twentieth street, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Sears in the criminal division of the district court. He was charged with first degree murder. He offered to plead guilty to the charge would be reduced to manslaughter, and County Attorney English accepted the offer. He was given the required indeterminate sentence of one to ten years.

Usefulness of a Passport.

"Until you go home to a foreign country you never can realize just what a useful thing a passport is," said the man. "It not only enables you to get into a country, it also helps you to get out, sometimes in a most unexpected way. Everybody abroad thinks well of a passport, but nobody sets quite so high a value on it as a pawnbroker. Owing to a delayed remittance I had occasion to hold one of these on my person. The article I offered for security was worth many times the loan requested, but my refusal to advance on account of unsatisfactory references. My temporary address in Paris and my permanent address at home were not sufficient guarantee of my honesty. Just as the case assumed a desperate complexion the broker suggested a solution of the difficulty."

"Have you a passport," he asked. "I had at the hotel," he said. "If that looks right I'll let you have the money." "Up to that time my passport had been a lounge piece of paper, from a blessed forethought that had hidden me secure it,"—New York Sun.

Increase is Shown in Freight Traffic on Union Pacific

Notwithstanding the report of bad railroad business this fall, during October the Union Pacific passed 10,000 more freight cars through North Platte than during the corresponding month of one year ago. Presumably the increase held good over the entire system, being much heavier west of Cheyenne, at which point cars going to Denver and Kansas City and points to the south are diverted.

The increase in freight traffic came as something of a surprise, as it was not expected so soon. In a measure it was due to the heavy fruit crop in Washington, Idaho, Montana and Utah, which this year was a little earlier than usual. While the rush shipments are over, business continued to hold up unexpectedly well. Now the orange movement has started from California and there is a large amount of live stock coming in from the northwest.

During August the Union Pacific laid off a large number of men and discontinued many of the freight trains. When the increase in business came all trains were put back and employment given to the old men. As a result the road is now running the full quota of trains and the normal force of men.

HIGH ART IN DIPLOMACY

Occasion, Method and Apt Illustration Are Dextrously Woven Together.

"Diplomacy is hard to define," said Senator Curtis at a luncheon in Topeka, Kan. "It is, however, easy to illustrate. Here is an illustration of diplomacy: 'A Topeka girl one brisk autumn evening sat beside the warm and clanking radiator with a young man. This young man was a good catch. But, though he called often, and though he showed many evidences of affection for the girl, he had not yet mentioned marriage. He seemed uncertain. He seemed to be still on the fence.'"

"Well, the brisk evening I'm speaking of, at about 9 o'clock, the cook knocked at the parlor door, entered and said, respectfully: 'What shall I give your father for his breakfast in the morning...?'"

"'Deviled kidney, I think, Hannah,' said the Topeka girl. 'Father, these cold mornings, is so fond of deviled kidney.' 'Yes, miss; and would you mind telling me how to prepare it, miss?'"

"'Soak the kidney,' was the reply, 'for three hours in cold water, changing the water twice. Then cut into slices, season highly with salt and pepper, and fry a light brown. Now add a little warm water and stew very gently. Meanwhile prepare the sauce—four tablespoons of cold gravy, one of Chutney paste, one of ketchup, one of vinegar, two teaspoons of made mustard, two of salt and four of butter. Mix well, pour on to the kidney and stew gently again till done.'"

"'Oh, thank you, miss,' said the cook, gratefully. 'The cook had hardly gone when the young man, a new and tender light shining from his eyes, flopped down on one knee.'"

"'Miss Converse—Mildred—dear one,' he began,"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The New Fatality.

The player seized the ball as it rolled away from the halfback and started down the field with it. Just as he crossed the goal line he stumbled and fell and broke his neck. "What was the cause of death?" they asked the coroner. "An accident!" "A fluke," replied the official as he read a note of R.-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"To Be Big Advertise Big" is Rigorous Hospe Rule

"To be big, advertise big!" This word from A. Hospe, owner of one of the largest music supplies houses in the west, who began business in Omaha thirty-seven years ago, ought to be convincing. Mr. Hospe of the A. Hospe company, has built up his great business through the use of newspaper space, and in this issue of The Bee he has published a four-page advertisement that will be of particular interest to Christmas shoppers. It is the biggest advertisement Mr. Hospe or any other Omaha merchant has attempted. Four full pages, a complete section, is it.

For ten years in Omaha, Mr. Hospe was located on Dodge street, and for more than twenty-seven years he has been on Douglas street, and now occupies a big store at 1515 Douglas street. The business of this firm has gone ahead rapidly every year, and today it ranks among the greatest of his line in the country. Mr. Hospe says advertising "does the business," and that the reason he is using a four-page section in this paper is to tell Christmas shoppers about the presents they should buy.

A. HOSPE.

FARMERS' CONGRESS HERE

Winter Convention to Be in Omaha January Nine to Twelve.

OTHERS TO MEET WITH THEM

Farmers' Co-Operative Shipping Association and Nebraska Rural Life Commission to Join the Convention.

The Nebraska Farmers' congress, which held its first annual session at Lincoln last winter, has decided to hold this winter's convention in Omaha, January 9 to 12.

With it will come the Farmers' Co-Operative Shipping association and the Nebraska Rural Life commission, a state official body organized under a law passed by the last legislature. Close to 1,000 persons, in all, are expected at the meeting. There were 400 or 500 at the first meeting at Lincoln.

There are 400 farmers' organizations in the state, each one of them being entitled to one delegate at the congress for every thirty members. All farmers, whether accredited delegates or not, are welcome at the sessions.

The congress has already committed itself to the following: Enlarged and improved rural schools, where agriculture and domestic science shall be a part of the curriculum; better organized and more highly developed social life in rural communities; parcels post; better farm sanitation; lightening of the burden of labor for farm women; better roads; system of taxation that will place tax burdens on those best able to bear it; equitable pay for farm labor; co-operation in buying machinery and stock, in the marketing of produce and in financial affairs; conservation of soil.

Methods of attaining these desired ends are the problems to be worked on at the Omaha convention.

Officers of the congress are: President, L. C. Lawson, Clark, Neb.; first vice president, A. M. Templin, Palmer; second vice president, C. W. Sanborn, Gretna; third vice president, J. D. Ream, Broken Bow; secretary, W. S. Delano, Lincoln.

Members of the Rural Life commission, appointed by the governor, are: Charles R. Bessey, University of Nebraska; George E. Condra, University of Nebraska; J. W. Crabtree, formerly president of the Peru Normal school; J. D. Ream, Broken Bow; J. A. Ollis, Ord; J. S. Canaday, Minden; and W. S. Delano, Lincoln. The commission held its last session in Omaha in July and since then its committees have been busy on various lines of work.

FEEDING PEOPLE AT PANAMA

Activities of the Commissary Department of the Canal Army.

Of no less magnitude than the job of digging the Panama canal is the task of feeding the people who are engaged on the work. The commissary is on a scale equal to that of a large army in the field, while the articles that it handles embrace all sorts of luxuries that are unknown to the soldier.

During the last fiscal year there were imported into the canal zone 5,164,969 pounds of cured and pickled meat. The canal diggers and their families ate 962,000 dozens eggs, 38,000 pounds of butter, 254,000 pounds of poultry, and drank 57,000 gallons of milk and 2,950 gallons of cream.

The importations also included 5,330,000 pounds of white potatoes, 767,881 pounds of sweet potatoes, and 1,111,921 pounds of onions, to say nothing of enormous quantities of turkeys, beans, carrots, cabbage, celery, tomatoes and squash. Apples to the extent of 58,663 pounds were consumed. The canal zone also assimilated 22,984 dozen oranges.

The bakery used 14,638 barrels of flour, and produced therefrom 5,236,474 loaves of bread, 27,867 rolls and 2,881 pounds of cake. The coffee roasting plant handled 330,481 pounds of coffee. The ice plant produced 12,267 tons.

There is an ice cream plant at the lathums, and the demand for its product grows steadily. Last year this plant manufactured 120,226 gallons of ice cream, an increase of nearly 2,000 gallons over the previous year. Because of
