

New Books

THE LIFE EVERLASTING. By Marie Corelli. 69 Pp. $1.25. George H. Doran company.
The story is told in the first person by the heroine. In itself, it is a simple love story, but the story is only an excuse for a dissertation. The text is, "There is no death, what seems so is transition." The lovers have been lovers through several incarnations, but have been separated through their own hesitancy or errors. They see visions of approaching happiness, but the heroine longs to reach the plane of perfection with Rafael Santoris, and like him become master of all the forces of nature. Concentration of thought, command of the will, hypnotic suggestion, all play their parts.

ROSE OF OLD HARPTH. By Maria Thompson Dabney. 313 Pp. $1.25. Bobbs-Merrill company.
The scene is laid in the south, where a very sweet, strong young woman is trying to help some old people to save their home from the fangs of a mortgage. A mining engineer from New York finds a deposit of coal on the farm and puts through the necessary business just in time to save the place and prevent the girl from making that sacrifice of herself which would stay the hand of the man who holds the mortgage.

SOMETHING ELSE. By J. Breckenridge Ellis. 429 Pp. $1.25. A. C. McClurg & Co.
Irving Payne is a New York boy, whose only spiritual preoccupation in an otherwise happy-go-lucky existence, is the mystery of his parentage. The promise of the revelation of that mystery is given him in a letter from an old lady who keeps a boarding house, and who turns out to be as untrustworthy as she is prim and respectable. Once started on the trail, his interest deepens, transforms his inner life, and brings him into mysterious contact with men of the underworld and kings of finance.

THE LOTUS LANTERN. By Mary Taylor and Martine Sabine. 308 Pp. $1.25. Little, Brown & Co.
The scene of this story is laid in Japan. Lieutenant John Holland, a military attaché of the British embassy, and betrothed to the daughter of the British ambassador, while witnessing the Buddhist festival of lanterns, symbolizing ships of the souls of the dead, meets Ume-San, who has been sold by her relatives and has become a geisha girl in a Tokyo tea garden. A plot has been formed to place her in the power of an unscrupulous and cruel Japanese prince. Holland's sympathy is first enlisted, and finally he forms a passionate love for the little Japanese girl, who is pure, sweet, and devout, notwithstanding her surroundings.

VAGABOND CITY. By Winifred Boggs. 232 Pp. $1.25. G. P. Putnam's Sons.
The hero of this story is of an independent stamp, who will not accept the hundred standards that govern the majority, and who lives a life free and untrammelled. Between him and his wife, who is an embodiment of the conventions, comes another woman, the dream woman.

THE NINE-TENTHS. By James Oppenheim. 329 Pp. $1.25. Harper & Brothers.
The scene of this story is laid in New York, and the real quality of the hero, Joe Blaine, is laid bare when a fire sweeps through the building, and he feels himself responsible for the girls who worked on the floor above. Joe and his mother go down among the poor to live, and he seeks to wield an influence through a paper which he establishes and edits. He and his work become a center for factory workers, and finally for the wealthy who are interested in humanity.

LOVE IN A LITTLE TOWN. By J. E. Buckrose. 303 Pp. $1.25. G. P. Putnam's Sons.
The heroine of this romance is a spoiled heiress who is sent back to the little town to find reality among her grandfather's people. How she bears the immense change from wealth and position to Mr. Wallerby's circle and surroundings—whether the lover proves faithful under the altered conditions—and what Celia really finds in the little town, are the questions upon which the story hangs.

THE LOSER PAYS. By Mary Openshaw. 327 Pp. $1.25. Small, Maynard & Co.
This novel is written around the French revolution. We are introduced to such celebrities as Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, also Napoleon Bonaparte in his days of obscure poverty, the Marquis de Lafayette and Rouget de Lisle, composer of the "Marseillaise." The other characters, not so celebrated, are typical of the various social ranks of that theatrical period.

Juvenile.
FIREBRANDS. By Frank E. Martin and George M. Davis. 219 Pp. $1.25. Little, Brown & Co.
This volume has been written for the purpose of teaching children how to avoid setting a fire, how to extinguish one and how to hold one in check until the arrival of help. The stories are full of vivacity and animation, and none of them are over the heads of young readers.

TWO NOBLE LIVES. By Laura E. Richards. 75 Pp. 60 cents. Dana Estes & Co.
In loving memory this author of tales for readers of all ages has pictured for the young her own earliest recollections and impressions of the character and personality of her distinguished parents, Samuel Gridley and Julia Ward Howe. These reminiscences of these two wonderful individualities are of universal interest.

TIMMY TINKER'S BOOK. By Mary Frances Blaisdel. 117 Pp. 60 cents. Little, Brown & Co.
Tommy Tinker and little Polly Flinders spend many a happy day together, with Skip and Spider, Roseland and Mr. Teddy Bear for their playmates. They go nutting in the woods, they make pumpkin-lack-o'-lanterns to frighten their friends, they have a May party and a Christmas tree, they build a bird house for Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow and feed the birds through the cold winter weather.

A CHEVALIER OF OLD FRANCE. By John Harrington Cox. 181 Pp. $1.25. Little, Brown & Co.
The thrilling story of the valor of Roland and Oliver, the treachery of Guenecoung and the avenging might of Charlemagne will never grow old, and one gets from this translation the atmosphere and the soul of the age of chivalry.

NIBBLES POPPETTY-POPPETT. By Edith B. Davidson. 68 Pp. 75 cents. Little, Brown & Co.
Nibbles is "a nice, plump little mouse, with bright, black eyes, and a silky coat of soft gray fur." He lives with his mother and his brothers and sisters, Sniffy and Snuffy, the twins, Gobble who is very greedy, and little Topsy, the baby. Mrs. Poppety-Poppett being poor, Nibbles goes out into the world to seek his fortune.

YELLOW STAR. By Elaine Goodale Eastman. 272 Pp. $1.25. Little, Brown & Co.

"Yellow Star," or Stella, an unknown waif, found alive in the arms of its dead mother after the wiping out of the Indians at Wounded Knee. At the opening of the story Yellow Star is brought to a New England village by her adopted mother. She becomes one of the most popular girls in the village, leading all in scholarship, quickness, grace and resourcefulness. After completing her course at the academy, she goes back to her own people as a field-matron for the government.

ALYS-ALL-ALONE. By Una McDonald. 301 Pp. $1.50. L. C. Page & Co.

A delightful, well-written, happy-ending story which will gladden the hearts of many a reader. Though dearly loved above all else, a little girl, Alys, must be left somewhat alone. Indeed she feels and call herself "Alys All Alone." The story closes with the little girl happily established in a real home.

FAIRMOUNT GIRLS IN SCHOOL AND CAMP. By Maud Toussay. 271 Pp. $1.50. Little, Brown & Co.

In this third volume of the "Fairmount Girl Series" many of the leading incidents, in the school portion, are a country club winter carnival with a bob-sled contest a masquerade party, the comical occurrences at the Rosebuds' clothing sale, and the complications caused by a new girl. The vacation chapters deal with the gay camping party taken west by Mr. Archer in his private car and an abandoned mine near which they camp and a mystery connected with it.

THE OAK STREET BOYS' CLUB. By Warren L. Eldred. 344 Pp. $1.50. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard company.

The author tells of rival clubs in the same parish, and for the triumph of common sense and business-like methods over jealousy and intrigue, though in the face of great odds. The power to be exerted by one boy possessing the qualities of a leader and the value of having such a boy on the right side are strikingly shown.

THE AIRSHIP BOYS' OCEAN FLYER. By H. L. Saylor. 327 Pp. $1. The Reilly & Britton company.

This story has to do not only with aerial navigation, but also with the workings of a great newspaper. Mr. Saylor knows about newspaper work and also about airships, in consequence of which he has produced an interesting tale.

Corn Pours Into the Omaha Market

One hundred and thirty-one cars arrived on the Omaha Grain exchange market yesterday, the record for the 1911 crop so far, and the largest amount ever received in one day this early in the season.

Over 50 per cent of the new corn grades No. 2, the highest it can grade until it has dried out more. Another cold snap of two or three days would make heavily all of it grade No. 3, says Chief Inspector George B. Powell of the exchange.

BOONE GIVES FEAST TO NORTHWESTERN MEN

S. F. Miller, general passenger and freight agent of the Northwestern, returned from Boone, Ia., where he went to attend a banquet given by the Commercial club of that city.

The Boone banquet was tendered the officials of the Northwestern and was attended by about fifty of them. A number came on from Chicago and in addition there were those from the Iowa and several from the Nebraska divisions. The guests sat down at the tables at 5 o'clock Thursday night and did not leave until after midnight. There was a most sumptuous dinner, which was followed by numerous speeches.

SANTA CLAUS ORDERS HIS GOODS BY WIRELESS
Santa Claus does not propose to be caught with a toy supply that does not meet the demand. While he is acting as his own advance agent in Brandeis Toyland he is keeping his North Pole toy shops and warehouses advised by means of his own wireless telegraph.

It is a real wireless instrument by which Santa Claus sends his messages. The flagpole at the northeast corner of the Brandeis building serves as the upright for the station and connections have just been made that enable the flashing of code messages. The sending and receiving instrument is in Santa Claus house in Brandeis basement.
