He is also alleged to have put in shorter hours at times than he was supposed to have done, and State Accountant Tullogh is said to have discovered a shortage of $68 a few months before Stewart left the service of the state. On these grounds Land Commissioner Cowles has refused to give him a warrant for the amount in question.

Frank Gorty Found
Guilty of Shooting
With Intent to Kill

NEBRASKA CITY, Dec. 9.—The jury in the case of the State vs. Frank Gorty, after being out for two days and two nights, found the defendant guilty of shooting his wife with intent to murder her and the penalty is from two to fifteen years. Gorty was sentenced some time in January, as Judge Travis has adjourned the present term of the court until that time. Frank Gorty came here from Oklahoma, with his wife and they went to work in a restaurant. He intercepted notes written by her to other men and they quarreled over them. He went home one morning after working in the restaurant all night and got into a quarrel with his wife, and before her slayer, who was in the house could prevent him had shot his wife three times, once through the right lung, and then tried to shoot himself, but the cartridges failed to explode. He then grabbed up forks from the table and stabbed himself in the breast a half dozen times, trying to reach his heart. When overpowered there were four forks sticking in his breast. The wife recovered despite the opinion of the physicians that she would not and appeared against him and told the story of the trouble and the shooting. The attorneys for the husband entered a plea of insanity, but failed to convince the jury of their view of the case. The parents reside in Oklahoma on a farm and furnished what funds they could for the defense of their son.

Wagon tracks indicated to the coroner that the driving had been irregular and that official decided no inquest to be necessary. The country in this section is rolling and the incline down which the wagon went was about ten feet deep. He was found about midnight by Earl Van Winkle, who immediately summoned help. The horses were still hitched to the wagon. It required the strength of three men to lift the wagoned from the dead man and death is believed to have been instantaneous.

"I never sought a political office in my life. I have made a record for governor, for congress and for the legislature, but never by my own seeking. Yet somebody considers that at this time, six months before the primaries, I might be feeling around to see what my chances are. I suppose the report originated because I called on Commissioner Winnett of the State Railway commission yesterday and had a lengthy personal conference with him. There is no secret why I was at the commissioner's office. A young friend of mine is an applicant for the position of secretary of the commission. I want to tell the commission what I know about him, but finding only Mr. Winnett present, I poured my troubles into his ear."

Gardner is Given
"Another Chance"
By Judge Estelle

Lylvia Gardner, over whom hangs a penitentiary sentence for breaking and entering and who had been given "another chance" twice by Judge Lee S. Estelle, was given one more yesterday when the judge paroled him.

"You've taken advantage of me," said Judge Estelle. "I treated you right, tried to help you make a man of yourself, and you thank me by getting into more trouble. I'll let you have one more chance, though I'm not sure but what I ought to send you to the penitentiary right now. Get to work and the next time you come before me you'll get at least ninety days in jail and maybe I'll send you to the penitentiary."

Gardner pleaded guilty to breaking and entering more than a year ago and was paroled. He has got into trouble with the authorities since then, but never committed a serious crime. Recently he started an "athletic club" under a pool hall and got into trouble with the members. He entered the club rooms and carried off some property, claiming it as his, and the other members charged him with breaking and entering. When paroled men get into trouble it is the custom not to try them, but to sentence them under the first conviction or guilty plea.

Gardner told Judge Estelle he didn't want to be put in jail because he wanted to support his sick mother. Witnesses said he has contributed $2.75 to her support during the last year. Judge Estelle told him to really support his mother, go to work, quit being a big, worthless loafer and do honest toil instead of running athletic clubs under pool halls.
