IGNORE WAR DECLARATION

National League Does Not Consider Seriously Action of American.

WANT LAW ON TICKET SCALPING

Organization Will Pay Reward of One Hundred Dollars for Information Leading to Conviction of Base Ball Gamblers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The American league's "declaration of war" was pigeonholed for at least two months and prohibited for all time, by the National League today. It was not even seriously considered. President Lynch said, at the conclusion of the session. None of the magnates could decipher its purport he said, so they tabled it.

In the final session of the three-day meeting the National league adopted two resolutions today, one calling upon the six states containing clubs on the circuit to make ticket scalping punishable by fine and imprisonment, the other declaring war on base ball pools and offering $100 reward for the conviction of persons gambling on the game.

The organization also voted President Lynch with power to act for it in dealing with the request of the three principal minor leagues for higher classification. A list of recommendations in this connection was approved. Among them were the following: That major league clubs not be allowed to play in minor league territory and vice versa, either before or after the playing season; reduction of the drafting season to five days, beginning September 15; drafting of umpires; an amendment requiring the major leagues to increase the salaries of drafted players $50 a month over their minor league salaries; the adoption of salary limits for minor leagues; restriction of playing time in all leagues to twenty-five during the playing season, and thirty-five during the off season; the retention of players in the highest class league in which they are purchased, so far as possible; drafting prices of $2,500 in class AA; $1,250 in class A; $1,000 in class B; $750 in class C and $500 in class D, that players drafted from class A should be offered back to class A at the draft price before being offered to a higher class.

While it was recommended that President Lynch vote for these amendments to the national agreement, the entire situation was left in his hands and Mr. Herrmann's for action at the next meeting of the national commission.

The league also adopted unanimously a resolution submitted by President Dreyfus declaring it to be the sense of the gathering that in future world's championship games the contesting clubs be required to turn over 25 per cent of their share of the receipts to the treasury of the two leagues. The resolution advocated an amendment to this effect to the national agreement and provided that a copy of the measure be sent to the American league.

Playing next year will cease on or about October 6, a week earlier than formerly; the season will open on or about April 11, a resolution to this effect being unanimously adopted. Final action before adjournment was the appointment of the following committees:

Schedule—Dreyfus, Hildner, Lynch. Constitution—Brush, Herrmann, Locke. Rules—Ward, Bresnahan, Emalle.

The only other echo of the world's series ticket scandal was the resolution calling for legislation on ticket scalping. It recited that present laws were inadequate to protect the public interest and in addition to calling upon the states to enact legislation making ticket speculation punishable, included the club cities in the appeal.

War on gambling.

The resolution declaring war on gambling recited that organized base ball is determined to keep the national game free from the evil; promises the league support to any movement with that end in view and concludes:

"The National league will pay a reward of $100 for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons guilty of using the national game as a basis for making a wager or conducting a pool, or any other gambling device whatsoever."

Simultaneous with the announcement that the Providence club of the International league had been sold to Frank Mavin for $70,000, Samuel Lichtenheim, principal owner of the Montreal club said he had declined two offers for his interest. One, he said, came from T. Hubert Cushing, the other from E. R. Carrington, both of Montreal.

Charles W. Murphy, owner of the Chicago club, announced tonight that he had given two players and $5,000 for First Basemen Gandil of the Montreal club. One of the players, he said, was Pitcher Slapnicka, the other was yet to be determined.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 15.—An interview with Foreign Minister Sergius Zasonoff in regard to the claim of the United States for recognition by Russia of passports issued to American citizens of the Jewish faith is published today in the Novoye Yevreye.

The foreign minister said that the matter did not directly concern the Russian Foreign office. Neither the Russian ministry of the interior nor the Russian consuls had raised any obstacles against the entry into Russia of American commercial men or financiers of the Jewish faith.

The present agitation, however, did not relate to that class of persons. Many agitators, revolutionaries and anarchists who were adherents of the Hebrew religion had emigrated to America during the recent troubles, and it was not, concluded Zasonoff, to be expected that Russia should encourage the return of these elements.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—As the result of an understanding reached here today it is believed that the senate will pass before the Christmas holidays the house resolution terminating the treaty with Russia because of discrimination against American Jewish citizens.

"COMBINGS OF HUMAN HAIR" STILL MAY ENTER DUTY FREE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The free entry into this country of "combing of human hair," practically in their crude condition, from China and other lands for the manufacture of wigs, puffs, "rats," switches and other articles of personal adornment will not be disturbed by the Treasury department.

Assistant Secretary Curtis today decided that duty should not be assessed, although the appraiser at New York contended that hair partially prepared should be charged 20 per cent ad valorem duty.

Investigation of the subject developed the fact that the imperial Chinese edict ordering the clipping of the historic queues of the subjects of the celestial empire has had no effect on the available supply of human hair for commercial purposes. The market has not been swamped with Chinese "pig tails," for the sons of China are carefully enclosing the clipped queues in boxes of gold for preservation as relics to posterity.

NELIGH, Neb., Dec. 15.—A half-breed Indian from Cody, Neb., named Graham was so badly injured last evening while beating his way on a westbound freight train, that he died early this evening.

The accident occurred in a peculiar manner, the victim striking the post of a cattle guard with such violence as to break it off at the ground. He must have been clinging to the side of the moving train and hit the cattle guard with terrific force as his right leg was crushed.

CHERRY COUNTY HAY LAND CASE TO U.S. SUPREME COURT

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Dec. 15.—(Special.)—What is known as the "beer bottle corner case," involving the title of land in Cherry county, which was decided by the supreme court in favor of the state, probably will be carried to the United States supreme court.

According to an allegation made by Baxter and Van Dusen, attorneys for one of the claimants of the land named Bahl, a litigant by the name of Bachelor, is attempting to take hay from the land in dispute. This information has been filed with Attorney General Martin. A request is added to the information that Bachelor be required to desist.

The attorney general is informed that a motion for a new trial has been made in the supreme court, the case being an original one in that court, and that a motion for a rehearing will be filed.

Thousands of acres of hay land, now claimed by ranchmen in the grazing region of the state, is affected by the suit. It is declared that ranchmen interested in the land will carry the case higher.

MAINE REPORT TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Taft today sent to congress a brief formal message transmitting the full text of the report of the investigating board which found that the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor by an external explosion.

The board in its report emphasized the fact that it found what is called the port starboard strake—a continuous line of planking running from stem to stern—was "dished upwards as much as twenty-four inches from a straight line," that another strake, technically called "cc," was displaced "upwards and inwards for 100 square feet," and that part of the inner bottom planking was "displaced up-

The destruction wrought by the two explosions "of distinctly different character" was found to be much more extensive than had been anticipated. The report, in technical terms, described how plates were crumpled, how some portions of what had once been a great battleship were turned inside out and how parts of the bottom works generally were displaced.

Debris Widely Scattered.

"The debris of one-pounders, six-pounders, six-inch and ten-inch ammunition was found widely scattered through the wreck," the report said. "The location of much of this material bore little relation to its original stowage condition. Powder tanks were torn asunder, or crushed and flattened.

"The condition of the vertical keel and flat keel at frame 18 was ascribed by the court of inquiry of 1898 (the year of the war with Spain) that followed the blowing up of the Maine) to the direct effect of an explosion exterior to the ship in that vicinity."

Because of its better opportunity for a detailed examination of this wreckage, now fully exposed, the present board concluded that the external explosion, which ignited the magazines, was not in the vicinity of this frame 18.

"The protective deck and hull of the ship," the report said, "formed a closed chamber in which the gases were generated and partly expanded before rupture."

The bow portion of the Maine was found pointed nose downward in the mud, to port and lying on its starboard side. The upper part of that portion of the ship, in the vicinity of the forward magazines was swept away. Only about one-half of the bottom was left in position.

The Maine explosion occurred almost fourteen years ago. In that disaster two officers and 261 of its crew perished.

Cyclone Visits Texas When Mayor Dahlman is Born

Jim Dahlman, the cowboy mayor of Omaha, celebrated Friday. He took his first whiff of ozone in a little log cabin at Yorktown, Tex., 14 years ago. There was an awful wall in the neighborhood that day, said the mayor, although he doesn't distinctly remember it all. The shack wasn't commodious enough to hold a fitting barbecue, and so a large tent was set up and the neighbors notified that the first boy in the family was born. They held a great feed. When the merry-making was at its height the sky darkened, the kid voiced his loud lamentation and suddenly a nor'-wester was upon them. The tent was wrecked and the table overturned. The food was scattered and the barbecue was the first of a series the new-born son was to participate in, came to an inglorious end. "Yes, I was born early in life," said the mayor, "my mother told me I was and the squalls that broke the quiet of the Texas plains that day are still remembered. When I was in Texas last week they reminded me of it and commemorated the occasion with a barbecue. They announced that the one I was to hold on the capitol grounds at Lincoln had been transferred to Francetas." And the mayor tapped the cigar box.
