

GET HAY AND I AM FORCED TO PIERCE MY LOVER, OH!

Desmond, with Claude and Rosamond, bound seress the camel, makes his way acrons the desert, a moving picture man, taking was scenes in Tripoti, runs off a film which eatches the villata and his victims. But what recks Desmond of a moving picture mant Answer: He recks nothing at all. Reaching a barn, Desmond forces Rossmoud to hold a sharp pitchfork above the deer. The villata knows that the hungry camel will dash through the door to obtain key, and that Claude will be transfixed.

It is a double death for Claude to be pinin by a weapon in the hands of Resamend. but, game to the last, he faces his fate unafraid. The camel rushes madly forward—in a moment our here will be a dead here, which is not quite so good in some ways as a live coward. But, stayt What are the tittle Arab boys doing? They are playing one of childhood's pet games-riding on the sliding doors. And just as they swing the door across, bump! goes the poor exmel's head against it and Cinude's life saved.

Naturally the camel is judg nunt. Nobody likes to run their head into a door, and accordingly the thoroughly infuriated animal rushes madly across the burning sands with Claude bound tightly to its back. But the moving picture man is at hand, and he may aid the here if he can overcome his professional desire to take pictures. In the meantime Desmond has one of the lovers in his power, and no one can predict the outcome except the artist, and he wen't tell before to-morrow's pletures.
