MANY IN DYNAMITE PLOTS

Indications that McNamara Conducted a Clearing House.

FEE FOR EACH EXPLOSION $200

Letters Say This Amount and Fifty Dollars for Expenses Was to Be Forwarded to John J. McNamara.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 15.—Examining papers taken from the offices of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers since the arrest of John J. McNamara, the convicted secretary-treasurer, and the subsequent finding of stores of explosives in the basement of the building, was continued by the federal grand jury today in its investigation of the alleged dynamite plots.

Mrs. Andrew J. Hull of Council Bluffs, Neb., once bookkeeper for the union, and other clerks, who worked under McNamara, again were questioned by District Attorney Charles W. Miller. Their appearance indicated the intention of the government to begin the inquiry at a point from the inside which would disclose the identity of all those remotely and directly responsible for explosions. Private detectives had advised the government authorities that some of the letters indicated men in various states had written to McNamara asking him what the cost of a "job" would be. McNamara would reply, according to this information, that the "fee" would be $200 and the expense $50, to be forwarded to him. Clearing House for Explosives. All through the confession of Orrie McNaminal it is indicated that he was paid "after each 'job' not in the city where the explosion occurred, but by a messenger from McNamara. To show that plans were laid for dynamiting by many others than McNamara and that he conducted a "clearing house" for them was the task set for the investigators. An instance cited is that on March 27, 1909, the new Boston Grand Opera house was damaged by an explosion. An employer of nonunion iron workers had a part of the contract. Four nights later a viaduct being built by an open shop iron concern at Hoboken, N. J., was blown up.

In McNamara's statement submitted to the grand jury he says a man whose name is withheld by the authorities instructed him to go to Boston and Hoboken and "do the jobs"; that he was successful and that the man paid him. Who are the various persons alleged to have met McNamara on his tours to point out the "jobs" to be done will be exposed, according to the National Erectors' association officials, who have been active in gathering evidence.

Movements of J. B. McNamara.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—A half-day session of the grand jury here today nearly used up the string of witnesses summoned from San Francisco and Oakland to describe the activities in those cities of James B. McNamara and others. Miss Ethel Gill, telephone operator in San Francisco hotel, where McNamara used to stop, testified today. While at this hotel, McNamara had many long distance telephone conversations with men whom it is said his brother, John J. McNamara, told him to see in California. These men are supposed to have told him where dynamite would be most effective, in their opinion.

INDIAN POPULATION GROWS

Increase During the Last Decade is Twelve Per Cent.

DISTRIBUTION OF ABORIGINES

Oklahoma Leads, with Nearly Seventy-Five Thousand—Arizona is Second with Nearly Thirty Thousand Indians.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—A preliminary statement giving for continental United States the distribution of the Indian population by states and territories, as shown by the returns of the thirteenth decennial census, taken as of April 15, 1910, was issued today by Director Durand of the bureau of the census, Department of Commerce and Labor. The statistics were prepared under the supervision of William C. Hunt, chief statistician for population in the census bureau, and are subject to later revision. In 1910 the Indian population of continental United States was 266,822, as compared with 237,196 in 1900 and 248,252 in 1890. According to these figures there was an increase in the Indian population from 1900 to 1910 of 29,626, or 12 per cent, as compared with a decrease from 1900 to 1900 of 11,056, or 4 1/2 per cent. The decrease in the decade 1890-1900 suggests the possibility that the enumeration in 1900 was not so accurate or complete as in 1900 or in 1910. For the twenty-year period from 1890 to 1910 there was an increase of 27,196, or 7 per cent. The Indian population in 1910 is distributed among the several states and territories, arranged according to geographical divisions, as follows:

BOYLES URGES BUSINESS COLLEGES TO GET TOGETHER

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Manager H. B. Boyles of the Boyles Commercial college of Omaha was the first speaker at the National Private Commercial Schools Managers association convention, which opened here today. The subject of his address was "What We Ought to Accomplish at this Meeting." His talk was full of life, and he touched on the essential lines an association of this sort must follow to be successful.

In his speech he said the managers of the commercial schools should have the "get-together spirit" and exchange methods which they have followed in advertising and which have proven profitable. He also advocated that they come to some conclusion on adopting a code of ethics whereby the managers can keep proper control over their solicitors, keeping them from promising too much to prospective students of the schools they are working for.

He advised the members association to take decided steps to formulate ways and means to help each other meet undesirable competition. The managers of the association, he said, are running their schools as an accredited school, and because they are doing this they all ought to adopt a minimum tuition charge for accredited schools; making one of the requirements for a commercial school to be an accredited school to have a membership in the association. In the course of his talk he said that the Boyles college was making great progress in its salesmanship department, and advised that all the managers present introduce such a department in their schools if they did not already have such a one.

The convention lasts through Saturday. Commercial men from all parts of the country are in attendance.

TAFT IS SHOWN HOW THE MAINE WAS DESTROYED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Taft and his cabinet today were given a demonstration of how the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. Rear Admiral Vreeland and Chief Constructor Watt of the navy, both members of the Maine investigating board, staged the show.

A model of the Maine, constructed in Havana and brought here, was placed on the mahogany table in the cabinet room, and Mr. Taft and his advisers watched closely while the two naval officers explained. First, the Maine was shown riding at anchor in Havana harbor. Suddenly Admiral Vreeland pulled a string or two and the model battleship was a ruin in exact reproduction of the Maine as it lay at the bottom after the explosion.
