Says Water Company Would Milk City for Another Year.

HE EXPLAINS FLORENCE OFFER

Declares Water Board Does Not Propose to Wait Until Next Fall to Begin Extension of the Service Mains.

Speaking of the proposition of President Woodbury of the Omaha Water company to lay new mains and make extensions to the Omaha water plant, H. Beecher Howell of the Omaha Water board said: "Immediately after the report of the appraisers in 1906 the water company brought suit to compel the city to take the plant at the appraised value and to pay therefor. The court of appeals has recently held that at no time since commencement of that suit has the water company been in a position, or done those things which it could easily have done to place itself in position, to afford the city a good title to the water plant. In short, the water company has been in default in this matter during all these years.

Waiting for Perfect Title. "Recently the city has made application to the court to allow it to pay the purchase price to a trustee under the control of the court, and the same to be held by such trustee until the water company shall perfect the title of the property in the city, with the further provision that the city shall immediately be granted possession of the water plant. This application is now pending and the water company not desiring its money, but anxious to retain possession of the water plant, now proposes to the city that it will construct a new main from Florence and then make water extensions in the city under certain conditions. However, it will be noted that the water company in its letter guardedly provides that no extensions shall be undertaken until after the completion of the new Florence main about next July.

Death Bed Repentance. "It is very evident that the water company's proposal to do now what it should have done of its own motion long ago in the interest of the city and water users is a sort of death bed repentance—a petting attempt to influence the court in connection with the present application or future moves of the Water board to oust the water company.

"The great change that the present emergency has caused in the water company's attitude is apparent when it is remembered that within the last month the company's manager, Fairfield, publicly announced that the water company would not turn water into the mains now being constructed by the water board. Stripped of all verbiage the water company's proposition, embodied in its letter, is merely this: We will build the new Florence main at your expense; we will extend water mains in the city, also at your expense, after the Florence main is completed, some time in the latter part of next year, and allow you all but 25 per cent of the income from these new mains; provided you will let us milk and skim from the water plant for another year.

Florence Plans Ready.

The water board now has plans for the new Florence main in preparation and does not propose to wait until next fall to begin the extension of service mains. On the other hand the board proposes to push work on both the big main and the service mains at the same time, so that there shall be no delay in the enjoyment of the benefits of the Florence main when it is completed.

"The water board has already completed the School for the Deaf main and the new Dundee supply main will be ready for use by the first of the year.

Departs Bachelor, Returns Benedict

Philip C. Lindberg, who has been connected with the Browning-King company for many years, sprung a neat surprise on his many friends when he returned to Omaha yesterday with a bride. He was united in marriage Thursday afternoon in St. Joseph, Mo., to lady O. Sackett. The wedding is the culmination of a boarding house romance which had its inception nearly two years ago. Both boarded at the Martin's home, 111 South Twenty-fourth street. Though they were known to be close friends, none of their acquaintances suspected that a bond of love existed between them. Mr. and Mrs. Lindberg do not have any housekeeping plans for the present and have decided to remain at the Martin's home until a residence is provided.

HAUNTED BY CRIME, GIVES UP

After Wandering Eighteen Years Denver Man Reveals Identity.

CASE AGAINST HIM IS NOLLED

James W. Russell Walks Into Office of United States Marshal Warner and Tells of Crime Committed Years Ago.

After eighteen years of wandering around the world, with his conscience continually reminding him that he was a thief, Elmer E. Johnson, walked into the United States marshal's office in the federal building late Thursday afternoon and announced that he was wanted by the federal authorities in Denver for embezzlement. He was taken before the United States attorney, where he told the story of his offense. In 1903, Johnson says, he was in charge of a United States land office, and he had in his possession $20,000 which he had collected as fees from homesteaders. He deposited all but $1,500 in a bank and several days later the bank failed. As he deposited the money, regardless of a rule which stated that he should not place public funds in a bank not secured by the government, he feared the consequences for his act and fled with the $1,500 which he had not deposited. He was arrested several months later in Fort Worth, Tex., where he was taken before a commissioner and extradited to Colorado, where he was indicted. He was later released on a $2,000 bond. Johnson had been at liberty only a few days when he disappeared and, since 1903 nothing had been heard of him, although federal officials kept on the trail for several years. In 1909 the officials gave up hope of ever finding him so the case was nolleed.

Fought in Boer War.

When Johnson fled the country he went to Africa, where he enlisted in the Boer war. After the war, he came out a captain and went to Australia, from where he journeyed to South America. Later assuming the name of the bondsman he had betrayed, Johnson enlisted in the United States army and fought in the Philippines. He remained in the islands several years and returned to the United States, handsome and penniless.

He picked up the printer's trade and worked for a while in New York, where he joined the Typographical union. He later drifted west and had been in Omaha only five days when he passed Captain Hayes on the street. Hayes gave him only a passing glance, but to Johnson, who recognized the deputy as a federal authority, the glance had a peculiar effect. He went over to Council Bluffs, but his conscience refused to let him live in peace and yesterday he appeared in the marshal's office and made a clean breast of his crime. He was placed in the Douglas county jail and the United States attorney at Denver notified by telegraph. This morning Mr. Howell received a reply informing him that the case against Johnson had been nolleed and said that there was no reason for holding him. Johnson when released and told that the case had been dropped fifteen years ago, instead of being overjoyed, wept like a child. He says he is going back to Denver and square himself with the men who went his bonds and he says that he will pay back to the government the $1,500 he stole.

Cornish Rounds Out Full Half Century

E. J. Cornish, lawyer and business man, was 50 years old yesterday. He was born at Sidney, Fremont county, Ia., and began his career in the Iowa State university, completing the classical course. At the age of 20 he graduated from the law course in the college of law at Iowa City. He began practice in Omaha when he was 21 years old. At school he was the youngest boy in a class of forty. In Omaha he has held the position of assistant city attorney and has been in charge of the Carter White Lead company. Upon the death of Levi Carter he assumed the vice presidency of the National White Lead company, which position he now holds. A keen and able lawyer Mr. Cornish is also a successful business man. Of late he has spent much of his time in the east looking after his extensive business interests, but he still retains his residence in this city.

Thieves Ransack the Entire House

The home of A. A. Egbert, 333 North Forty-first avenue, was entered by burglars between 1 and 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and ransacked from garret to cellar. All the silverware and jewelry of value was stolen from the place. The robbery was reported to the police, who are making an investigation. The loss is estimated at about $300. Mrs. Egbert left her home shortly after 1 o'clock Friday to go downtown shopping. Before leaving she fastened all the windows and doors. When she returned at 3 o'clock she found the front door open. Entering her gaze was met by a disheveled man. Drawers in desks, tables and bureaus in all rooms of the house were torn out and the contents scattered over the floor. Nearby neighbors all say they did not see any one enter or leave the house during the time Mrs. Egbert was downtown.

SATURDAY IS CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE SHEEP SHOW

Today is school children's day at the Sheep show at the Auditorium and all children will be admitted for 10 cents. The management will not allow the removal of any exhibits until Sunday, so the public may be sure that the show will be just as good Saturday evening as now. Today will be the best day of the show, as the judges have finished awarding prizes and visitors can see what see what sheep won prizes. Two thousand persons saw the show yesterday.

It Never Flickers
The long winter evenings give a woman a splendid chance for sewing or embroidery; but her eyes suffer from the strain unless she has a good light. The Rayo is the best lamp made.

It gives a strong, diffused light that is remarkably easy to the eyes. There is no glare to it; no flicker. It lights up a whole room. The Rayo is an economical lamp, too. You get the most possible light-value for the oil burned; and the Rayo itself is a low-priced lamp. Yet it is a handsome lamp—an ornament to any room in the house. The Rayo Lamp is easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and revivified. Made of solid brass, nickel-plated; also in numerous other styles and finishes.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of the
