AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Movement on Foot for Viaduct on Railroad Avenue.

ROAD BLOCKED DURING COLD

Japanese Laborer Robbed of All His Money and His Overcoat by Highwaymen-Roberts Has Not Given Up Trip.

Because of the obstruction to traffic at Railroad avenue and Washington street the city may force the Union Uncitic Ratiroad company to build a viaduct at that point.

Vesterday at one time traffic was blocked for fifty mignes and from fifteen to twenty teams were builted in the frees ing cold while a Union Pacific train. blocked the track. The trainmen finally cut the train in two and allowed the wagons to mass.

Complaints were made to the police and Chief of Detectives James Sheehan made an investigation of the matter. Peamsters and residents in the vicinity of Railroad avenue and Washington street say that yesterday's blockade was not an exceptional happening and they will probably ask the council for relief.

Robbed of Coat and Cash. Yama Okasaki, a Japanese laborer, lost his overcoat and $27 at Thirty-sixth and O streets last night at 9 o'clock when his jiu jitsu failed to work on two unidentified stickup men.

Okasaki, who was, on his way home to the Japanese colony, which lies in the outskirts of town, was stopped by the two men near the corner of Thirtysixth and Q streets. Without further ado they set upon him and took his money. Okasaki tried the tactics of his national defense, but was overpowered by the men. After baying obtained the money the men considered a moment and then appropriated the overcoat of the shivering Okasaki, who reported the matter to Officer Charles Morton. One of the thugs is said to be much shorter than the other. Protects City's Coal.

Jimmie McInany, custodian and night fireman at the city hall, shortly after going on duty yesterday evening found two men loading coal into a wagon that was backed up against the side of the city hall coal cellar at Twenty-fourth and O streets.

Said Councilman Miller last night: "My rest of the council feel the same way, The city is not now in a position to grant to take money from the different funds

'Any use of my name in such a statement is unwarranted and untrue," said Council- St man Miller last night. "I will not agree to spend the city's money that way."

Another councilman said that he and his associates were bent upon keeping their pledge of retrenchment and would not allow the money.

Brady Secures Cash.

James Brady, who explained to the police that he lived on Q street, was arrested yesterday for passing $46 of worthless paper on Del Green and Barney Coogan, two saloon keepers of this city. It is said that he was under the influence of liquor at the time he is alleged to have passed the checks. Del Green suffered loss of $36 and Coogan $10. Priends of Brady have arranged the matter it is understood.
