Miss Ruth Paxton, who is studying in Tien Tsin to be a Young Women's Christian association secretary in China, has written her sister, Mrs. C. W. Hayes, that she just successfully passed her first examination in the Chinese language. Miss Paxton says that the Chinese language is very difficult to learn and even more difficult to pronounce, the reason for this being the same symbol has many different meanings when spoken with different accents. For instance—Pronounced in one way a certain symbol means chicken, in another way it means wife.

She tells this story in illustration: An American in a Chinese eating house ordered in Chinese, chicken. The waiter was gone a long time and came back, saying that he could not find one of the American. The American angrily declared that it was on the list of eatables. Starving Family is Found by Officers of Juvenile Court A Swedish laborer, his wife and the 12-year-old son of dead relatives came before juvenile court to answer to the charge of the boy being delinquent in attendance at school. They left the courtroom a few minutes later in company with a probation officer, who led them as fast as the four could walk to the county commissioner's office to ask for aid. The family had been actually starving.

"I bought six loaves of bread last night," said the man in broken English. "I had bread and a glass of water for breakfast, and that is all." The man had been sick and the boy, a brown-eyed, intelligent little fellow, who had been in the eighth grade at school, had remained at home to care for the other kids and earn what money he could. The man had tramped the streets in search of work, but was unable to find it. "I was ashamed to ask for help," he said. After explaining that it was no shame to ask the county for assistance if it was needed, the judge told the boy to go back and finish his grade. Until the man finds work he will be supported by the county. He objected at first to such support, but was convinced at last that the county deemed it just to pay something to a man who was going hungry and was unable to find work.

Omaha Men Agree that Employee Can Rise Only When Employed

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION WAY

The Bee's Great Educational Offer with La Salle University Gives Opportunity to Ambitious Men.

Managers and presidents of firms in all parts of the country are now promoting only those employees who are able to show that they thoroughly understand the business into which they are to go. For example: A railroad head will give advancement only to those who merit it; a promotion who can show that they are able to handle effectively the work of the position into which they are to go. Men who are pushed ahead must be thoroughly equipped in order to take over the work.

Business leaders of Omaha have been deeply impressed with the educational plan of The Bee, in connection with the famous La Salle university of Chicago. The Bee is getting young and ambitious men to take the course of business administration given by this school. This course has equipped hundreds of men for better positions and is daily sending men to the field of larger salaries.

Good for All Salesmen. "Efficiency in business is the means by which all men succeed," is the comment made by J. W. Stewart of Miller, Stewart, Beaton & Co., the furniture firm of this city. "We get the best results—the larger sales—from our employees who are always trying to get their work done on a scientific basis. The course offered by the La Salle university is the best that I can think of for making better salesmen. Any man who accepts this course and learns what is to be learned in it surely can become a high salaried salesman."

Observation of men with whom one comes in contact proves that the best salesmen are those who have a thorough knowledge of their work. They are men who come to my hotel," explained Herman Peters, owner of the Merchants hotel, "and I have always found that the most successful ones are those who have mastered the details of their business. They have learned, along scientific principles, just how to sell goods. Some of the best salesmen have informed me that they took courses at resident universities and there became equipped to sell goods."

Advantages of Course. The La Salle business administration course, which The Bee is getting for all young men of Omaha or any men who wish to mount higher, gives this same instruction of which Mr. Peters speaks. It has all the advantages of the resident universities and the one accepting the course does not need to leave his home. All men in business realize the advantages of this course.

The Quest for Beauty BY MADAM DE LA VIE. FIGURES do not lie, ruin the old maxim, but every daughter of Eve who has looked into a mirror and seen when referring to her own particular figure.

ages of The Bee's educational offer, and during the last week several young men have come to the educational department with the statement that their employers had shot them. Some young men so explained, had been told they must learn more about business administration or else they would be forced to vacate their positions. There are other young men in Omaha who are not equipped as well as they should be, and they now may be on the verge of losing their positions. If they should inform their employers that they were taking a course to make them more efficient workers there is no doubt they would be looked upon with much more favor.

Engineer Finds Two Armed Guards in Charge of Place

Pete Peterson, an engineer employed by the Western Newspaper Union, at 27th and Howard streets, almost started something Saturday morning about 1 o'clock when he came to work and found the entire building lighted from top to bottom and two men with revolvers in their hands calmly sitting on a counter. The newspaper union offices are directly in the rear of the Western Paper company, in the same building and doors connect the two. Last night the front door of the paper company offices was left open. Two A. D. T. watchmen were put on the job. They lighter all the lights, armed themselves and watched. When Peterson entered the store he was told to throw up his hands. He answered by pulling his own gun and during the other two men to fire. The appearance of a policeman corrected the mistake.

Diamonds--Good Advertising

You advertise yourself and your business every day. You never thought about this fact, did you? You probably do not advertise in the press. But when you go out upon the street you are advertising. Your appearance—your clothes, your shoes, your hat, your ring, your jewelry—is your medium. You know what appearance does toward making an impression. Every hour you see some man who leaves a bad impression. His clothes do not hang right; his hat is not the proper shape for his head; his shoes are not shined—there is something radically wrong with him. If he is a business man he does not create a desire in you to trade with him. You feel inclined to go to the establishment of his competitor, the man who is neatly attired in every respect.

You find that in a great majority of the cases in which a man makes a favorable impression upon you by his appearance that he is wearing a diamond, either a pin or a ring. This stone is everywhere recognized as an emblem of affluence and prosperity. It does more to lend substantiality to the impression a man makes than any other thing—even more than his clothes. Most people who wear diamonds are neat in their appearance—their clothes fit well and are of good material.

To create a good impression—to gain in prestige—one should wear a diamond of quality. Of course a cheap stone or an imitation gem detracts from the first impression. If you recognize a diamond as an imitation, you lose respect for its wearer at once, no matter how well he may be dressed.

Very few people discount the position of the diamond, yet some seek inferior stones. The Edholm store offers a wide assortment of the purest diamonds at prices that will make you change your luck if you have purchased a cheap stone. If you contemplate buying a stone, you owe it to yourself to inspect the Edholm stock.

BE BEAUTIFUL Every Woman Can Be Beautiful—Mrs. De La Vie.

KING SOLOMON of old was called the wisest man and credited with 1000 wives, although the latter fact is hardly demonstrative of his wisdom to modern eyes.

At any rate, he must have had a vast knowledge of the ways of women and the various ways in which they attempted to make themselves beautiful in his sight.

He is on record with the statement that there is no new thing under the sun and this is a big beauty fact worth proving it.

All Oriental women from Cleopatra down—or up—used oil baths or rubs in an efficient and beautiful olive oil or almond or any sweet-scented emollient in the medium, and every part of the body is gone over with a gentle massage movement. The joints are treated to a little extra attention to make the body more supple.

The fair beauty-chasers of to-day use a good, pure cold cream (Melrose preferred) and get the same effect. This cold cream rubs in a sensible and cannot fail to produce good results. It fills out hollows and really acts as a figure clearer and better and excess fat melts away. The girl who takes a cream bath each night for a month will actually wonder at the change for the better in her general health, which, of course, makes for beauty.

There is a soothing, sedative effect on the mind which smooths out wrinkles and tight lines in the face, and the general relaxation of the body makes every movement a thing of grace and beauty.

Here is the new fad, the Melrose cold cream bath. It is a rub of the soft ages, if you will, and nothing new, but it is a great factor for increasing your beauty.
