TIMELY REAL ESTATE GOSSIP

Hastings & Heyden Plan to Build Hundred Houses This Year.

WESTERN MEN WILL VISIT HERE Biggest Public Sale in Omaha Monday, in Which Thomas H. McCague Will Sell Eighty-Three Old Buildings.

One hundred houses, to be completed by August and sold this year, are planned by Hastings & Heyden. They will be scattered around the city on some of the 300 to 400 lots owned and controlled by the firm.

The Real Estate exchange has decided not to spend $400 on a relief map of Omaha to be exhibited at the national realty convention at Louisville, but instead it will spend the money in entertaining the western real estate men, who will stop in Omaha next summer on their way to the convention. The exchange decided last week that such entertainment would be excellent advertisement for Omaha.

A committee appointed by President Morton of the Real Estate exchange to make recommendations as to the advisability, desirability and probability of attaining a system of exclusive listing, has so far been unable to agree on a single recommendation. Members of the committee have been instructed to report separately.

ately. If they cannot report collectively and the exchange will debate the separate recommendations.

The biggest public sale of old houses ever held in Omaha will be started by Thomas H. McCague Monday morning at 10:30 at 1039 South Eighteenth street. He will sell eighty-three dwellings and other buildings, now situated on the Rock Island terminals, the Great Western terminals and the ground which the school board has bought for playgrounds, adjoining the Vinton school.

M. I. Sugarman has sold his house and lot on Nineteenth street between Leavenworth and St. Mary's avenue to George Cosmas for $5,000.

Dr. H. L. Burrell has sold his ten-room house and two lots at 130 North Twenty-sixth street to the Allen Bros. Realty company for $10,000. Dr. Burrell will go to California soon to live.

Discussion at the convention of county treasurers in Omaha last week revealed the fact that in all counties of the state the new mortgage tax law has the effect of compelling the owner of mortgaged land to pay the tax on his equity in the land and also on the mortgage. For the seller of the land puts in the mortgage a clause by which the buyer agrees to pay the mortgage tax.

C. F. Harrison of the Omaha Real Estate exchange has the following to say in the current number of the National Real Estate Journal regarding the curbstone broker "evil" in Omaha: "It has been very difficult in Omaha to get our organization to go on record against what are called curbstone brokers. In fact, some of our leading real estate men, I think, deal with men who are not in the business, and for that reason do not wish to have the curbstone man eliminated.

"Frequently when a firm is laying out an addition, instead of paying the regular agents a commission to help sell their ground, the agents get some local people who buy lots to bring in other buyers and receive compensation for bringing these further buyers to them. These men who bring in buyers and get compensation for it are nothing more or less than curbstone brokers, although they may not do any further business than what is done by them in helping to sell this particular addition. I suppose there is no way to bar this kind of assistance when an agent is putting an addition on the market and wishes all the assistance of every kind he can get to sell his property.

"I see no difference, however, between men who are paid for assisting in selling out an addition and the curbstone man who simply picks up a customer on the street and calls at an agent's office and gets compensation for it. It naturally takes that compensation away from some other agent who might get the same customer. However, it is possible that some liberality in compensating parties bringing in purchasers tends to increase the business. At any rate, that is the way some of our brokers seem to look at the question."

Harry Wolf, of the firm of Robinson & Wolf, has leased a suite of rooms at 65-34 Brandeis building, where he will conduct a general real estate, insurance and rental business after February 1.

Harry Wolf is one of the younger set of real estate men in the city. He has made a successful study of a square value and is considered an authority on local realty investments among the Real Estate Exchange members.

I Bring Thee Nuts, Quoth Crafty Fred

"I brought you some nuts, darling," quoth Fred Bass, a visitor at the county jail, as he attempted to pass a paper bag containing something to Dora Banks, who is doing ten days for vagrancy.

"I'll see those nuts first," interrupted County Jailor Cahill, whose sixth instinct is pretty well developed. He took the paper bag and peeped in. Out were nuts sure enough. Cahill drew out one and with the delicate touch of a squirrel "hefted" it in the palm of his hand.

The nut seemed about a half grain short of weight and he examined it more closely. Then the truth became known. The nut had been hulled and hollowed, the void filled with gum opium and the shells glued together again.

Judge Foster gave Fred ninety days in jail for his cleverness.

RAILROADS STEALING CARS

Empty Freight Car is Safe Nowhere Around This City.

GRAIN MUST BE MOVED AT ONCE January Deliveries Force Roads to Strenuous Action to Take Care of Their Customers with Large Elevators.

With the end of January almost at hand the freight car question is rapidly becoming serious. It has reached the stage where the stealing of "empties" has become a common practice. This stealing of cars started a couple of days ago.

There is not an elevator in the city that has not sold large quantities of grain for January delivery. There is a large quantity of wheat that has been sold for delivery in Chicago and Minneapolis, but by far the greatest portion of the grain that has been sold to go out within the next three or four days is corn, consigned to St. Louis and points farther south. It is estimated that in Omaha and Omaha county sold to be delivered in southern points during the present month. But how to get the freight cars to more to its destination is the problem that is agitating both elevator men and railroad freight agents at this time.

It is said that in Omaha not less than 300 cars were stolen by roads having elevators on their lines, set in on their sidings and gotten ready for loading out to night. There was one case in particular, where a road had gathered up a string of eighteen empties to be taken to a Council Bluffs elevator to be loaded and sent on their destination. During the day, a switch engine of another road ran onto the siding, hitched onto the cars and pulled them over to Omaha, where they were turned over to another elevator company and during the afternoon loaded and sent on their way.

Courtesy Forgotten. Among railroads there is a certain degree of courtesy, but in this emergency, it does not count. In the jobbing district, if a car loaded with merchandise is set in, a switching crew of the railroad owning the track on which the car is sitting, runs a switch engine up to the track and as soon as the car is unloaded, it is whisked away to some elevator on the road that is anxious to get the grain on its way to market.

At the country towns, east and west of Omaha, the situation is equally as bad as here in the city, the only difference being that at these places there is no way by which the elevator men can secure cars, all of them being taken over by the shipping center.

There was one instance here in Omaha where a switch engine of one road laid around three hours waiting for a car of coal to be unloaded. As soon as the last shovelful of coal was got off the freight car, the engine backed in on the switch of another road, hitched onto the car and in half an hour had it on an elevator siding, where it was being filled with grain. An hour later, with other cars, this particular one was moving out of town, while the road that owned and had promised the car had its men hunting all over the different switch yards, looking for and trying to locate it, that it might be loaded for a customer.

Warnings Are Posted in All the Local Dance Halls

Chief of Police Donahue has had half a hundred placards printed and will post one on each of the forty-seven dance halls in the city. These cards forbid "obnoxious and degrading or immoral dances." The card reads:

"Notice is hereby given that the following named dances are strictly prohibited under penalty of arrest and prosecution for disorderly conduct: Moonlight dances, ragging, mooching, turkey trot, grizzly bear, Texas tommy or Texas grind or any other dance of like character. For all dance lights must be kept bright."

Dance hall proprietors have been instructed to post the instructions in a most conspicuous place. A few have already complied with the chief's request and others have signified their willingness to post the placards on the walls of their halls.

Frozen Potatoes Are Good to Eat

Charles Crowley, gas commissioner and city chemist, has ruled that olives and potatoes are not unfit food after being frozen, although the flavor may have been destroyed or impaired.

This statement by Mr. Crowley followed the examination of several jars of high grade olives that had been frozen. The "flesh" had softened and the flavor was somewhat changed, but the food value of the olives was practically the same.

Dr. E. W. Connell, of the city health department, thinks the people should not be imposed upon by having frozen fruits and vegetables sold them and so condemn such frozen food as soon as it is discovered.

GETS FINE AND ORDER TO CLEAN UP HIS DAIRY

A. F. Anderson, proprietor of the Puritan dairy at Sixteenth and Grover streets, pleaded guilty to the charge of selling adulterated milk in police court and was fined $10 and costs. Dairy Inspector Boode said the dairy was very unsanitary and Judge Foster gave Anderson forty-eight hours to put his cows and dairy in a sanitary condition.

EXPERT JEWELERS BUNGOED

Convincing Salesman Unloads Bogus Elk's Teeth on The M.

It is learned that there is a company in the West that manufactures the Teeth of Walrus Tusks.

Several Omaha jewelers have been nearly buncoed by a convincing individual who sold them large quantities of bogus elk's teeth, representing them to be genuine. In fact, the teeth were so much like the genuine that experts were puzzled even after the severest tests had been made. It was through the effort of Albert Edholm that it was learned that the teeth were manufactured from walrus tusks.

The men who unloaded the teeth on the Omaha jewelers gave the name of R. C. Boyer of Lander, Wyo. He began operations in Omaha late in December and has been selling false teeth here since then. Among the dealers victimized by Boyer are Reese, Brown, Lewis and Edholm. Jeweler Reese bought $300 worth of the teeth.

Suspicious Aroused. Boyer offered his goods at such ridiculously low prices that Mr. Edholm's suspicions were aroused. He submitted the teeth to other experts and in almost every instance they were declared genuine. He was persistent, though, and learned in the end that there is a company in Seattle that manufactures the teeth out of walrus tusks. Mr. Edholm wrote to this company and got a reply to the effect that he could buy all the bogus teeth he wanted at 10 cents apiece.

The jewelers who have sold the manufactured elk teeth assert that they will refund all money to people who have purchased them. Some action will be taken to apprehend Boyer.

Expressman Accused of Extorting Patrons

License Inspector Schneider is on the warpath for the grafting expressman, and threatens to revoke license of all who are caught overcharging. Instances of gross overcharges for work done for strangers in the city have come to Mr. Schneider's attention and he is making an investigation.

Within a certain limit the charge an expressman may make is fixed by ordinance at 50 cents. Cases where trucks were hauled a distance well within the limit, but where the charge was as high as $2 and $2.50 have been reported to the license inspector.

Persistent Advertising is the Road to Big Returns.

Confiding Lad Loses His Money

R. T. Valentine of Ottumwa, Ia., reported to the police that because he was 18 years old and uneducated and had a trusting nature he had been euchered out of $50. Valentine was coming to Omaha. At Fremont he met a "heavyset, light-haired and light-complexioned man who was nice and well dressed." This man represented to the boy that he would make him a rich and influential citizen if he would come and work for him. Valentine promised to do so.

When they arrived in Omaha they went to the postoffice. The "heavyset" man borrowed $50 of his young friend, went into the registry division and came not forth again. After a vain search Valentine was compelled to report to the police, who are looking for the man described. Valentine did not know the man's name to whom he gave the money, nor was he informed of what business he was in, nor in what manner he was to make the lad a rich and influential citizen.
