More Pay-as-You-Enter Cars—Planned with the results obtained by the fare boxes on the pay-as-you-enter cars on the Farnam line, the street railway company will place fare boxes on all the Twenty-fourth street cars tomorrow. General Manager Lousler says the fare boxes have made traffic more regular and satisfactory on the Farnam line by shortening the time required to take on passengers. Whenever passengers have the proper change the conductor does not have to handle it, but has his hands free for giving transfers and handing the bell cord and thus time is saved.

DAHLMAN CURSES KARBACH

Mayor Makes Scene at Meeting of Fire and Police Board. OPENLY ATTACKS COMMISSIONER President of the Board Pours Out His Wrath in Unsettled Volume on Man Under His Displeasure. Flames of rancor that have long smoldered in the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners burst furiously last night, when Mayor Dahman poured forth his wrath against Commissioner Karbach. Other members of the board, notably Hoye, sided with the mayor, and the session was one of the most notable in its stormy history. Mayor Dahman, on calling the meeting to order, began a tirade against an unnamed member, whom he charged with going about circulating false reports concerning the board and the other members. The mayor's remarks were vituperative in the extreme, and at times his language was most picturesquely sulphuric. Without naming the man, and leaving the crowd in attendance in the dark as to who was meant, the mayor breathlessly subsided, when Commissioner Hoye took the floor and emphatically endorsed all the mayor said, and added some notations of his own to the general classification afforded by his honor in the characterization of the offending member. The doubt as to the identity of the member was immediately dispelled. Mayor Attacks Karbach. Mayor Dahman again took the floor, and directing himself to Commissioner Karbach, poured out upon him a torrent of invective and personal abuse, winding up with the declaration: "Karbach, you have gone down the streets of Omaha and shot all the air you are going to shoot, so far as I am concerned. You have made statements reflecting on the honesty of the fire and police board, and intimated there is grafting going on behind closed doors. After this all sessions of the board will be held in the open, and there won't be any more executive sessions." The mayor, before taking his seat again, invited Commissioner Karbach to "jump into the ring." Karbach kept his temper during the scene, and made no reply nor comment on the proceedings. After the session was over, in reply to a request for some expression, he said the mayor was not quite himself, and that reason his words might be overlooked. Wappich Acts for Peace. Commissioner Wappich suggested that the board go ahead with its business, and this was acceded to, although the unpleasantness did not entirely disappear throughout the session, and after adjournment the mayor continued his caustic commentary on Karbach's conduct. Fireman Ed McElrea, brought up because of reporting late for duty, was the first to be heard. The mayor dismissed him, but accompanied the pardon with the remark, "I am captain of this ship, even if for only a short while longer, and I want it known. You'll be discharged from the service if you appear before the board again." Pat Dore and Thomas Healey, firemen, were also reprimanded severely for tardiness. Licenses Granted. The board then reconvened as a license board, granting liquor licenses to W. C. Althoff and M. C. Fortlieb and Farnam and 24 North Twenty-fourth streets, respectively. A protest from N. A. House against the issuing of a license to Jack Suter, 217 South Eleventh street, was read and laid over for two weeks upon the recommendation of the mayor. J. W. Moss, colored, was given permission to operate a saloon at 18 South Twelfth street, and the mayor facetiously remarked that should Moss prove faithless to the trust given him, he would let "Wa-pich on him with his resolution which provides for penalizing saloonkeepers."

Comic Valentines Barred in Schools

St. Valentine's day was observed in only a few Omaha schools yesterday, but in these few joy reigned supreme. Some principals hold that the custom of sending love-like messages among small children is exceedingly foolish, and these refused to allow any time for a "Valentine box" or the reading of St. Valentine day stories to the children by the teachers. In other schools, however, an hour during the afternoon was given over to distributing and reading valentines and stories. A large box was placed in each primary grade room in these schools, where the pupils dropped valentines addressed to their schoolmates. In the afternoon the box was opened and the messages delivered and read. In all schools "ugly" and comic valentines were barred.

Woman Cuts Throat With Razor While in a Fit of Insanity

At the time Mrs. Kotska was alone. Her husband had left the place about 4 o'clock and when he returned an hour later he found his wife dead. Temporary insanity is supposed to have been the cause for the suicide. Mrs. Kotska had been acting in a strange manner and her husband, who is a well-to-do merchant at Brainard, brought her to Omaha to visit friends and for treatment. They came yesterday afternoon and had been in Omaha less than two hours when the woman took her life. Frank Marvicka and Mr. Kotska, after arriving at the former's home at Fifteenth and William streets, left Mrs. Kotska in the house alone while they went to get some lunch. They returned about 5:15 and after searching the first floor of the house and not finding the woman, they went to the second floor, where a bedroom door was locked. The door was forced open and the woman was found lying in a pool of blood. When a doctor arrived she was dead. The body was moved to Janda's undertaking rooms and the coroner will hold an inquest.

D. Bowen, director of the Nonpareil Art academy, 63 and 64 Brandeis Theater building, was unable to attend to the duties in his office for a time owing to injuries received about 11:30 o'clock yesterday when he was attacked by a man unknown to him. The stranger entered the academy in company with his wife and child, armed with a revolver and whip. The stranger asked to see the professor and when Bowen informed him that he was that the justious gentleman the stranger pulled the revolver from his pocket and raised it as if to fire. Bowen jumped at the assailant and struck his finger between the gun and the hammer. The stranger then foiled in his purpose struck Bowen over the head, the weapon inflicting a bad cut over the left eye. He then put the whip into use and after Bowen had received a bad beating the professor escaped to another room and notified the police. Mere Man Invades Sacred Precincts

A full-grown man invaded the cafeteria of the Young Women's Christian association, took a tray, a peach cobbler and a bowl of soup and boldly sat down at a table and ate his lunch. Men are allowed in the cafe at the association, but only small boys accompanied by mother, big sister or aunt, are tolerated in the cafeteria which is reserved strictly for women. The man had rather a searching expression, as if looking for his valentine, and it being St. Valentine's day and leap year, no one had the heart to turn him away. The young women secretaries and serving maids smiled on him kindly and allowed him to remain.
