How vigorously Germany is working to overcome the American lead in the manufacture and export of machinery is indicated by the "export number" of Berlin weekly. Die Woche, which des a large section to manufactures and exports. The principal article is by Prof. Schlesinger of Charlottenburg on "The Place of German Machinery in the World Market." He shows that while exports of German machinery between 1909 and 1506 increased from 11,600 tons to 58,000, the imports, 7,000 in 1900 and 2,000 the year following, grew to 8,500 in 1906, but since then have declined to about 5,500.
