WANT TUBERCULOSIS NURSE

As Soon as One is Found Dispensary Will Be Established.

DEAN TANCOCK OFFERS ROOMS

Funds Are Available to Start Work Designed to Instruct Tubercular Patients to Care for Themselves.

Plans for the tuberculosis dispensary to be established by the Visiting Nurse association are crystallizing into shape. Rooms have been secured, funds are available to start the work, and all that is lacking is a trained nurse to do the practical work of examining and instructing tubercular patients.

Dean James A. Tancock of Trinity cathedral has offered two rooms in Gardner Memorial hall for the dispensary. The Red Cross committee of the state nurses' association has given $20, and the state Red Cross association has $60 ready for use in the dispensary.

Miss Leland McPherson, president of the Nurses association, has communicated with Miss Nancy Dwyer, formerly head nurse of the association, endeavoring to secure her as head of the dispensary, but the latter has refused to leave her activities in St. Joseph. Several other nurses are under consideration.

Aid at Nominal Fee. The aim of the dispensary is to give at nominal fee aid to sufferers who are said to have increased in Omaha to an alarming extent. It is believed that these consumptives will come to a dispensary for aid when they would not or could not from lack of funds seek examination, instruction and care from other sources. The dispensary will not compete with local doctors. Areas of many physicians have offered to operate with the association and wherever possible tuberculous cases will come to the dispensary will be referred back to the doctors.

The association is planning a membership campaign and has appointed Mrs. Luther Kuntze chairman of the subscription committee. From January 15 to February 15 the association cared for 129 patients and made 240 visits. It has now four patients in the last stages of consumption.

COLORED FOLK HELP THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

The colored people of Omaha are raising money for the use of the Associated Charities. John Grant Pegg, city inspector of weights and measures, has circulated a petition and has found the colored citizens almost unanimous in giving something.

make suggestions for improvement in another department, branch or division of the service."
To give the men an understanding of the plan of the company officers of the road prepared a list of suggestions which the men might follow in formulating their ideas, although they were not confined to the suggestions put out by the company. It was suggested that they should seek to effect improvements along the following lines:
To increase efficiency of operation.
To improve methods of operation.
To be beneficial from economical standpoint.
To increase safety and convenience of passengers and patrons of the company.
To increase patronage.
To promote safety of employees.
In any way to promote the interests of the company, whether pertaining to improved mechanism, better office practice or other features.
One thing the company insisted upon. The men were not to use the opportunity to file petty and unnecessary complaints. This was a line in the notice to the employees:
"Suggestions must not include personal complaints or antipathies."
Quick Response.
The men responded to the plan of the company even more readily than had been expected. The officials of the road were surprised that men who were holding subordinate jobs were so keen in picking out defects and pointing the way to overcome them. Naturally many of the suggestions received were not practicable. Some of them had to be discarded because they were impossible of being carried out, although containing much good advice.
When all the suggestions had been sifted the company made some awards. No announcement has been made of the amount of cash premiums paid and the company has not made public the basis on which the amount of each premium was decided, but an official of the company said that the award depended entirely upon the value of the suggestion to the company.
For instance, one of the premiums went to a clerk in the roundhouse who devised a scheme for using carbon sheets in repair card books after the cards had been removed. While it was not a great discovery it meant economy, and any saving in the management of a big railroad is worth something. The clerk figured had been used in the repair-books they were still good to be used in connection with the company's forms for ordering Useful Supplies.

A tinmith in one of the shops came in for an award. He proposed a method, which has been adopted, of fastening in engine cabs boxes which contain flags, torpedoes and a medical case.
A car inspector perfected an appliance for cleaning and sterilizing drinking cups used in coaches. He got a premium.
An award also went to a fireman who suggested that the coal gates on locomotive tenders be standardized. The result was to minimize the loss of coal by vibration.
Whenever the company has adopted a suggestion made it has paid for it. The officials say the experiment is a success, although they are not ready to say whether it will be put into effect on all the branches of the Pennsylvania system. If it is it will involve about 200,000 men. Naturally the mere reading of suggestions and the handling of them would mean much extra work for the company. The Pennsylvania has other ways of rewarding its employees and keeping them interested in their work. Not long ago it gave $5,000 in prizes to supervisors and assistant supervisors who kept their sections of the track in the best condition for a year. The awards were based upon frequent inspections.

One of the methods employed to learn the exact condition of the "line and surface" was to put glasses of water on window sills on each side of an inspection car hitched to a regular train of the road. Each time a glass spilled water a demerit went to the inspector of the section. A machine also was placed on the floor of the car to record jolts.—New York Sun.

of the crop in Utah. The California state horticulturist, Professor Cook, has just sent out a bulletin of warning, in which he describes this new pest, which is said to come from the Mediterranean. It is interesting that the vacuum cleaner is being successfully used to gather the larvae from the fields. Here is another argument for vacuum cleaning railway cars—thirty-seven of the insects were found in one compartment of a Pullman sleeping car. With such de luxe accommodations a plague travels fast.—Spring-Field Republican.
