Merry War Waged by Justices of Peace

A merry little war is raging among Omaha's justices of the peace, because of Judge William Altstadt's position in having Judge Barker ejected from the Paxton block. Altstadt has been in the building for over thirteen years, and because of his opposition to any proposition whereby another competing justice could enter the building, he has always been the only justice in Paxton block. Recently Judge Barker sub-leased offices from an attorney on the same floor with Altstadt, and immediately the battle was raging. Altstadt finally got the superintendent of the building to erect the interlocker, and as a result, all of the other justices are much enraged. They say that if Altstadt does not immediately square matters so that Barker can have offices in the building, they will prefer charges of improper conduct in office against him. Altstadt and his friends who have taken the position that "dead competition tells no tales," and are "rattling on their ears," but the other justices and friends of Barker are exceedingly wrath.

PEGG SAYS RECORDS SHOW HE PAID THE MONEY BACK

John Grant Pegg, city inspector of weights and measures, says there is nothing to the report that he "borrowed" money of coal dealers. He says he bought coal and stuff of them on time, but has always paid it back. Speaking of the cancelled checks H. Gross wanted to submit showing Pegg had received money from a coal dealer Mr. Pegg said: "These cancelled checks were written, and I received the money, but it has all been paid back, as records in Judge Kennedy's court will show. When the case came up in his court it was not thought important enough to call me in as a witness. Mr. Meierstein testified that the checks were for money borrowed and paid back, and his affidavit to that effect is on the records. "Mr. Gross wanted to show the checks when he was brought to trial in police court by myself for refusing to repair scales at Eleventh and Iard. I didn't know who was operating the scales, but Mr. Gross owned it. Mr. Gross evidently thinks I have it 'in for him,' but there is no foundation for any such opinion as that. I notified him on January 21 to have the scales repaired, and he didn't do it. I simply acted in this case as I have with other owners of large concerns, with no intention of casting any discredit on anyone."

TROMBONE PLAYER DIES WHILE PLAYING IN THEATER

Fritz Groebler, trombone player in the orchestra at the Brandeis theater, collapsed Wednesday afternoon and a few moments later died. Heart trouble was the cause. Groebler had been feeling ill for some time and just before he was to begin playing, he complained of feeling dizzy. As the other members of the orchestra struck up a tune his trombone slipped to the floor and he uttered a sharp groan. He was taken unconscious to the room under the stage and Dr. Goetz called, but he died in a few moments. The body was taken to the Dodder undertaking establishment and embalmed and it will be sent to New York, where Groebler's wife, Little, is known of the dead man by other members of the company, as he joined only recently in New York. The show continued and few persons in the large audience that was being amused knew that the hand of death had fallen in the theater.

WILL MAKE PAPER FOR THE BLIND INTERNATIONAL

Plans are being made by the Christian Record Publishing company of College View, a suburb of Lincoln, to make the paper an international publication. This paper is a publication for the blind. Although the paper now covers the United States, Canada, England and Mexico, it is the intention of the management of the paper to circulate the paper through all the countries in the world. Different systems of printing for the blind will have to be used to meet the requirements of the different races, and the management is adding these as fast as possible. In order to care for the increased circulation a large press capable of turning out 2,500 sheets an hour has been installed. Only one of the four persons actively engaged in turning the paper can see. It is necessary to have a stenographer who can see in order to answer the correspondence necessary with those of the outside world who cannot read the dot system. CHARGE AGAINST PINKETT

Accused of Obtaining Money from Car Company Fraudulently.

ACCOMPLICE HELD BY THE JURY

Indictments Said to Have Been Ordered Against the Judges and Clerks of Election Are Still Held Up.

Sensational testimony of Oliver Stevens, a colored waiter, to the effect that he and Harrison J. Pinkett, a colored lawyer obtained money from the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company in false pretenses, resulted in Stevens' arrest in the Douglas county grand jury room yesterday. No charge has been placed against Stevens. The grand jury after hearing his testimony decided he should be held pending further developments. He may be used as a witness against Pinkett if the lawyer is indicted and he himself may be indicted for obtaining money by false pretenses.

Grand jury's investigation of charge of obtaining money fraudulently against Pinkett is the result of efforts of colored people of Omaha in retaliation against Pinkett's activities in securing indictments against Thompson & Rountree and Jewell & Phannix, proprietors of two cigar store-pool halls for colored men. They were indicted on charges of keeping gambling houses.

The charge against Pinkett is that he engaged Stevens to aid him in fraudulently securing $25 from the street railway company for injuries suffered by Frank H. Bradley of St. Paul, a waiter, who was hurt in a street car accident in Omaha last year. Bradley also was a witness against Pinkett.

Keeps the Money. According to Bradley's story to the grand jury, he employed Pinkett to represent him and either effect a settlement or start suit for damages. Pinkett finally told him he could get only $5, Bradley said; he said that would be satisfactory, but Pinkett never turned over any money to him.

Stevens told the grand jury Pinkett engaged him to accompany him to the offices of the street railway company, represent himself to the railway claim department as Frank H. Bradley, and get the money. For this service, said Stevens, he was given $5.

After hearing Stevens' story the grand jury telephoned the sheriff's office to come down and arrest the man. An order for the arrest was secured from Presiding Judge A. L. Sutton. Later the grand jury released him on his own recognizance.

At the time indictments were returned against the cigar store and pool hall proprietors they and their friends declared the indictments were based upon evidence furnished up by Pinkett, Tom Mahammit, editor of the Enterprise, and other colored men. The whole matter, they asserted, was the result of a factional fight in the colored Masonic lodge.

Result of Feud. The indicted men and their friends declared they would not stand for "persecution," and would see to it that information regarding alleged dishonesty of Pinkett would be placed before the grand jury. They made their word good yesterday.

The grand jury's indictments against certain judges and clerks of election who served in the Second precinct of the Third ward at the primary election last August, ordered prepared Tuesday, were not presented yesterday. The grand jury made its presentation and took a recess until this morning. Deputy County Attorney Magney is finding the drawing of the indictments no simple matter. Yesterday afternoon the grand jury visited the Child Saving Institute and the Good Shepherd home.

Johnson Acquitted of Selling Liquor

Robert Johnson, manager of the Idlewild club, a North Twenty-fourth street club for colored men, was acquitted of the charge of keeping liquor for sale by a jury before Judge Day in the criminal and law division of the district court yesterday. Ben S. Baker, attorney for Johnson, defended him with the contention that he was not in the liquor business, but simply a member of the club and its managers, each member paying his share of the expenses. The jury took his view. The Johnson case was the first case growing out of Sheriff McShane's raid to be tried to a verdict. McShane raided the club only a week or two after he took office.

THESPIAN IS ARRESTED FOR UNIQUE BUNKO GAME

Federal authorities are investigating the case of George Neal, an actor living at 424 Harnes street, who was arrested upon a city warrant Wednesday night by the police, but who is being held for an alleged scheme to defraud by the use of the mink. Neal's scheme is said to have been to pretend that he was organizing a show, and he advertised in local papers for actors, unexperienced ones preferred. He would charge them enormous sums for costumes and makeup boxes. It is said that he caught a number of stage-struck Omaha boys and girls and that he has been working successfully for the last few months. He was arrested upon the complaint of J. D. Wyman, a youth who was victimized.

Three Prize Idiots Face Cupid Furry on the Same Day

If any person shall set about making a list of the twenty greatest idiots in marriage license clerk in the county court office, can contribute three names which probably will prove available. Two niftily gowned young women appeared before him yesterday and announced one of them wished a marriage license. It is a bit unusual for women to secure licenses, the groom generally attending to this, but it occasionally happens that the blushing bride looks after the detail.

Furry questioned the girl as to her age. She was old enough, but she didn't know her prospective husband's age. She thought a while and concluded he must be over 21. Furry said that was sufficient. "What's his name?" he asked.

"Steve," was the illuminating answer. "What's his last name?" The girl didn't know. She said he was stopping at a hotel down town. She telephoned to the hotel and asked for Steve. He wasn't there, she asked the clerk for Steve's last name, but he couldn't help her any. Furry told her she would better give up trying to get a license until she should become more familiar with the facts in the case and better acquainted with Steve.

A half hour later came a man and a woman from South Omaha. They asked for a license to live together. The woman explained that she had a husband in Austro-Hungary, but he was a hard drinker and she didn't care for him. She said she and the man who accompanied her were informed by South Omaha friends that a divorce was unnecessary; that all they need do was to go to the county court and get a special license to live together.

Root Sells Control of Printing House

Stockholders of the Omaha Printing company have bought a controlling interest in the printing house of A. I. Root, incorporated. The plants will be consolidated, but will be run as entirely separate corporations with no change in the personnel of the present managers. A. I. Root expects to spend the summer in Europe and has sold a large stock of his stock in his printing company. It was rumored that the two concerns would be consolidated and a large new house built to house the two, but Frank B. Johnson, head of the Omaha Printing company, says they will be operated entirely separate.

NEBRASKA CORPORATIONS MUST REPORT BY SATURDAY

Ross Hammond, collector of internal revenue, has issued his final warning to Nebraska corporations relative to filing their business reports for 1934. Every concern in the state that is incorporated must render a statement of its affairs to the collector, no matter what its profits or losses are, and negligence to do this can be punished by inflicting a penalty of from $10 to $10,000, according to size of the concern. These reports are due Saturday morning at the very latest, and Mr. Hammond has in his power the right to demand the penalty for delay after that date. There are still about 500 corporations who have not filed returns, but they are coming in rapidly, and Mr. Hammond believes that by the time Saturday rolls around this number will have been greatly diminished. There are about fifteen corporations in the state who have not filed their 1934 returns, and against these suits to recover $10,000 penalty are now pending in the United States court.

LOAN SHARKS WILL GET JOLT

Move Made to Organize Chattel Bank Along Charitable Lines.

PROMINENT MEN INTERESTED

Wealthy Citizens Probably Will Give Use of Money and Charity Will Receive Five Per Cent for Its Use.

There is on foot a scheme to aid the needy poor which will make Omaha loan sharks feel blue. This is a plan to establish a loan bank from which people in need of money may borrow at a nominal rate of interest. The bank, if the plan materializes, will be started in connection with the Associated Charities, with headquarters in the City Hall, under Secretary Jontz.

A. D. Brandeis said yesterday that the Associated Charities had proposed to pay interest on money loaned for the enterprise, but that probably he, C. T. Kountze, E. W. Dixon and K. C. Barton, all of whom are on the charities board, would furnish the money without exacting interest for its use by the charities.

Low Rate of Interest.

Mr. Brandeis says the rate of interest charged borrowers would probably not be over 5 per cent. "It will be the finest kind of thing for the people it is planned to help. After paying excessive and extortionate interest there is not much left," he said. Miss Jontz said that the plan had grown from the great need of it in Omaha. The charities secretaries have been gathering information on similar bureaus in other cities and Miss Jontz hopes the bureau to be started by October 1, the beginning of the charities' year. The matter will be brought up for more definite decision probably at the board meeting March 5.

"We have so many people come to us who have fallen into the hands of loan sharks," said Miss Jontz. "We have some families almost ruined by them. We have one family that paid interest on carpets and curtains after the articles were worn out."

Drinks Carbolic Acid and Will Die

Mrs. Annie Anderson, aged 77 years, living at 204 North Fifteenth street, drank one ounce of carbolic acid yesterday morning in a fit of despondency and is dying in the Omaha General hospital. Mrs. Anderson was married forty years ago and two months ago her husband left her. The woman has been pining for her husband ever since. There is no chance for her to live.
