Two Hide Warehouses at Grand Island Robbed

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 14.—(Special.)—Burglars, to whose identity there is no clue, entered the storerooms of the James C. Smith Hide company and of the Chicago Hide and Fur company and made away with about $50 worth of hides. Entrance to the former was gained by breaking a lock and here most of the booty was secured, the best of the skunk, muskrat, coon and badger hides being taken. Of the first named ninety-four are missing, and of the latter kinds only a comparative few in number. At the Chicago company's house only about $5 worth were taken, appearance indicating that the men were frightened away from this place before completing their work. In all their booty is said to amount to about $75.

Petitions placing in nomination for the republican nominations for representatives J. M. Weldup of Wood River and P. E. Sussner of this city have been filed, as also that of William F. Two Sets of Delegates in Third Oklahoma

TULSA, Okl., March 14.—Taft and Roosevelt adherents had rival conventions here today, each claiming to represent the Third congressional district republican convention of Oklahoma. Each convention seated contesting delegations which the other refused to recognize. A "peace" committee was appointed from each convention to attempt a compromise. Unable to agree the conventions convened separately. The Taft convention named as delegates to the national convention John Gilland of Holdenville and Joseph A. Gill of Craig. The Roosevelt convention at a late hour had not named its delegates.

Fifth District Candidate For Delegate Favors Taft

OXFORD, Neb., March 14.—To the Editor of The Bee: As my name will appear on the primary ballot of the Fifth Nebraska district for delegate to the republican national convention, I believe it is just to the republicans of my district, with whom I have no personal acquaintance, to make a brief introductory statement that will assist them to intelligently accept or reject my services in harmony with their personal ideas of the necessary qualifications for that position.

Thirty-four years' actual farming on my homestead in Furnas county combined with an energetic study of farm conditions and farmers' needs for improvement in industrial and legislative matters, ought to qualify one to represent that interest which is the cornerstone of the nation's and the whole building of Nebraska's prosperity.

For over thirty years I have been an active worker in the republican ranks for clean candidates and sane, beneficial laws. I have never held public office (unless continuous service on the school board be considered such) yet, I have nearly continuously served on the republican county committee, several times as chairman, and many times in district and state conventions, and four years ago was elected alternate-at-large to the national convention. While I have met disappointments and sometimes been discouraged in my political work, I yet have faith to believe the republican party is head and shoulders in advance of any other political organization through which to secure good government; and I believe the nation's best interest will be served by the success of that party in November. I base my reasons for my belief on the historical fact that our greatest national achievements and most prosperous citizenship have come through its administration.

I fully realize that we are in the midst of a spirited, and what is becoming in some instances a bitter contest as to who shall be our nominee for president. I am sorry this is true, certainly if we hope for success at the polls this contest should be conducted with a gentlemanly consideration of each other's views, and a willingness to abide by the results of the convention.

With all due respect to fellow republicans who differ with me and the acknowledgment that all candidates, whose castors or hats, are in the ring would make good presidents if elected, I desire to make plain to the voters my position. I hold that Mr. Taft has proven himself a good president; fearless and unwavering in championing what he believes to be right, regardless of strong opposition from powerful interests, calm and firm in administering the law, and diplomatic in foreign affairs. When he received the nomination, four years ago, Theodore Roosevelt, then president, said: "I feel that the country is indeed to be congratulated upon the nomination of Mr. Taft. I have known him intimately for many years, and I have a peculiar feeling for him because throughout that time we worked for the same object with the same purpose and ideals. No matter what a man's occupation or social position, no matter what his creed, his color or the section of the country from which he comes, if he is an honest, hard working man, who tries to do his duty toward his neighbor and toward his country, he can rest assured that he will have in Mr. Taft the most upright of representatives and the most fearless of champions. I do not believe there could be found in all the country a man so well fitted to be president."

Today the world recognizes Roosevelt's power of discernment by the literal fulfillment of his prophesy. By the re-nomination of such a man we can go before the people showing a guarantee of good faith in the honesty and ability of our administration, and asking the voters' support on the merit of our record. By all ethics of politics, by all precedents of the republican party, the president is entitled to a re-nomination; and I shall support him for Nebraska's preference at the primary with all the ability at my command. Should a majority of Nebraska republicans override my choice at the primary and I should be elected delegate, I shall work with the same energy to make Nebraska's preferential candidate the nominee of the national republican convention, and, later, the convention's choice, the president of the United States.

I believe our platform should be a short, easily understood, business advertisement of what the people may expect on leading issues if our party is entrusted with power. I yield to no man in championing the right of the people to rule. And, as the nomination of candidates is the primary start for good or bad government, I have long contended that party nominations should be made by the rank and file of its members and not by the support of their party. I hold that the voice of our republican governors, even in blocks of seven, should be no more potent in creating candidates or making nominations for our party than the same number of honest republican merchants, farmers or blacksmiths. Concluding my letter, I thank my fellow republicans in advance, whether they elect me to go to Chicago, or to stay on Prairie Grove Farm. In either case I will do my best, believing both positions are honorable. And, when our little family jangle, as to candidates, is settled at the convention, you will find me marching to the polls, boasting for good farming, good republicanism and that which they make, good government.

Milady's Toilet Table. One great advantage of a dry shampoo is that it requires only a few minutes. It takes out all the dust, excess of oil and dandruff, and leaves the scalp clean, cool and refreshed. The best shampoo powder is a mixture of a cupful of cornmeal and a small original package of therax. Just sprinkle a little on the head and brush thoroughly through the hair. A harmless, safe and sure way to remove superfluous hair is to apply a delicate paste. Mix enough powdered dextrose with water to cover the hairs; leave on for two minutes, then wipe off, wash the skin and the hair will be gone. To keep the skin smooth and soft and make the complexion natural and attractive, rub over the face, neck and arms each evening a lotion made by dissolving a small original package of mayatone in a half pint of witch hazel. This is much better than powder, for it will not rub off and the complexion needs no retouching all day long. There should be a jar of Mother's Salve in every home. It heals minor cuts, burns and scalds without leaving a scar. It is a splendid remedy for sores, skin eruptions, pimples, eczema and similar beauty destroyers.—Adv.
