

1-OFF THE TRAIN.

Claude and Romamond, having been off the Siberian railroad by the Russian employes, are recognised by Desmond, who fears that the lovers will again escape from his clutches, Claude hurries his sweetheart along, but they will have to go fast to get away from the crafty villain now plotting their capture, and the torture of hero Claude.

II.-THE VILLAIN'S POT.

Without his coat, Desmond feels quite at a loss So he plans to enter the private car of a Russian actor and get some ciothes. Actors, you know, are re-nowned for the number of garments they pack around, and Desmond hopes that he will get something nobby and nifty to re-place the coat which Claude so cruelly took away from him on a cold day, too

III .- AMONG THE NIHILISTS. Horrors Claude and Rosamond have fallen into the hands of a band of Nihillsts, the most determined foes that the Russian monarch ever had. These men hand Claude a bomb and tell him that he and Rosamond must at once get on the trail of the Crar and remove him from the map. Caude must at least feign comIV -- A STRANGE DISGUISE.

In the meantime Desmond has entered the private car of the actor and as he sees the array of clothes a bright thought occurs to him. He will don the make-up of the emperor or Russia and thus force all the employes of the railroad to do his bidding. It will then be a simple matter to have Claude imprisoned or sent into

V .- IN THE NAME OF THE CZAR. Fully attired as the coar of all Russians, Desmond, the international crook, hope gaily out of the car and pistol in hand goes forth to set the troops in motion. He will now, he feels certain, capture the hero and condemn him to a life of slavery, while the beautiful Rosamond will be compelled to marry him. Truly a fine plan he has evolved.

VI.-THE FAKE EMPEROR. "I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Des mond, "but I wish I didn't look like Nicholas." Claude, armed with the bomb, is right on the heels of the scared villain, who is afraid to poss longer as crar and afraid at the same time to disclose his own identity. The villain's plan didn't turn out just the way he expected, and towe shall see its final result.
