

Desperate Desmond

With the Timely Aid of a Bomb the Villain Creates a Panic in Prison

By Hershfield

I.—UNMASKED. Having incautiously given American money to the Grand Duke when asked for a loan, Desmond aroused that nobleman's suspicions, and soon the disguise in which the villain posed as 'Charles' is stripped from him. Naturally the Grand Duke is furious at the deception practiced upon him and loudly he cries to the guards to rush Desmond to the mines.
