Creighton Boy Goes to Meet—The body of John Lowe, the Creighton university student who died early Monday morning has been laid at rest in Holy Sepulchre cemetery. Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. John's church, while Rev. Albert Wise, the instructor of the deceased, delivered an eloquent address. The freshman class of which Lowe was a member, accompanied the body to its last resting place, six of their number acting as pallbearers. The 600 students of the department of arts attended the funeral services in a body. This is the second death in the freshman class during the present year, Rene Choquette having died in January.

Thomas Sheraton Leaves His Mark in Furniture World

Thomas Chatterton was one of England's greatest poetic geniuses. Thomas Sheraton was another English genius who, though he has left no masterpieces that came from his pen, has bequeathed a pathetic similarity in the careers of these two Thomases. Chatterton went down to London to meet neglect, to face starvation, and, finally, to take his own life. Sheraton did not commit suicide, but neglect and hardship were his lot. From his birthplace at Stockton-on-Tees he went to London in his early manhood. For some years he earned a precarious living by writing, teaching and painting. Finding at last that it would be necessary for him to do something or starve, he became a designer of furniture, and came under the influence of Robert and James Adam, two of the notable figures in the furniture world during the latter part of the eighteenth century.

By their close adherence to classic traditions and through their success in interpreting classic details, the Adam brothers made themselves dominant as teachers of the architectural and decorative arts. Sheraton, under their influence and tutelage, developed a degree of artistic skill that entitles him to rank with, if not above, them. But, like many another genius, he was compelled to leave it to posterity to discover his greatness. He lived in poverty and died neglected. Sheraton's wonderful cleverness manifested itself most forcefully in his decorative schemes. He is known as a color poet, owing to the ability he possessed to use highly colored woods as a painter uses pigments. Marquetry and inlay were chosen as the chief mediums of his decorative fancies, although he occasionally chose a carved wreath.

In Sheraton furniture there is a charm and refinement which cause one to wonder how the people of his own time happened to overlook his importance and leave it to later generations to accord to him the honorable place he occupies in furniture history.

Many people who never cared for these foods before are delighted with the rich, nut-like flavor of "Minnesota" macaroni and spaghetti and it is surprising how much better a family will feel by eating more of these foods and less meat.

Good macaroni and spaghetti are the best and most nourishing foods known. They are fine for children—making their bodies strong and healthy. But if you want that rich, nut-like flavor be sure and get the delicious "Minnesota" brand macaroni or spaghetti—made from the finest Northern Durum wheat, with all the nourishing gluten left in. It is easily digested and never gets soggy. All good Omaha grocers sell it.

Sixty-two candidates for the seven city commissions have already filed.

United States Attorney F. S. Howell already has begun preparing his cases for the federal grand jury, which convenes in April. The first subpoenas were given to United States Marshal Warner this morning and will be served immediately so the witnesses will not have time to leave the jurisdiction of the Omaha court.

Four of the subpoenas will be issued to Omaha women proprietors of rooming houses. Besides the customary indictments against persons for introducing liquor on government Indian reservations it is said there may be a number of indictments for white slavery. Indictments against proprietors of small hotels and rooming houses in Omaha for selling liquor without licenses and for refusing to take out licenses when found selling it also are expected.

Roosevelt Failure Keeps Goss Out of Race for Congress

Failure of the Roosevelt tidal wave to materialize accounts for the absence of Charles A. Goss from the fight for the republican nomination for congress in this, the Second district. The contest will now be waged in triangular form between the three B's—Benjamin S. Baker, Howard H. Baldrige and Thomas W. Blackburn—every one of whom is a member of the Taft club. A little while ago it was proposed to bring out Mr. Goss as a distinctive candidate, and he expressed himself publicly as in a receptive mood, and privately as making his determination rest on the reception given the Roosevelt boom. His failure to file, therefore, is taken to mean that in his judgment Roosevelt could not pull him across.

Denver Grain Men Have Engaged Hine

L. C. Hine, who has been with the Omaha Grain exchange eight years, and for six years assistant chief inspector, has accepted a position as chief inspector and weighmaster of the new Denver Grain exchange, and will go to take up his new duties on March 23.

A. F. Kruse, for several years with the exchange, has been appointed by Chief Inspector Powell to the place left vacant by Mr. Hine's resignation and Nicholas Kruse has been advanced to the position of deputy inspector.

The Denver exchange, now in progress of organization, is modeled after the Omaha exchange, a committee from Denver having been here recently to investigate the workings of the local market. All Omaha grain men who have western business are interested in the success of the exchange, and it was Chief Inspector Powell who recommended his best man for the new position.

Club is in Pursuit of Likely Members

Careful preparations are being made for the Commercial club membership committee's big "round up" of new members, to last all through next week and by which it is expected to bring the total membership up to 1,500. To do this a harvest of sixty new members will have to be garnered each day for six days.

Letters are being sent to each member of the club, enclosing a list of 1,500 eligibles and asking him to get busy and secure the applications of some of these men. The letters are going out in series of 100, each series being signed personally by two men prominent in Commercial club work.

These letters will be followed by more, enclosing membership buttons, which each member is expected to wear on his lapel next week.

ENGINEERING EXPERT TALKS TO BUSINESS MEN

In addition to an address by Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, already announced, the Commercial club will hear an address by A. M. Klingman, efficiency engineer of the Adams-Bagnall Electric company, Cleveland, O., at the public affairs committee's luncheon Saturday noon. His subject will be "Adequate Street Lighting as a Business Investment."

Ure Has Plan for Joining the City and County Taxes

Before the Real Estate exchange yesterday County and City Treasurer W. G. Ure, outlined a plan for the consolidation of city and county taxes, which he said would be a convenience for taxpayers. In allowing them to pay all taxes at one time, he would save the county money by making it possible to pay cash to contractors and would out the force in the treasurer's office nearly in half.

At present, with the assessment made early in the spring, the county board has no money to work with after coming into office, until personal taxes become delinquent in December, and not much money until realty taxes are due the following June. Mr. Ure would move the assessment forward into September or October and the money would come in the spring, when most needed, and each succeeding county board would have money to work with all through its term. The payment of county taxes could be made to coincide with the time of payment of city taxes, as now fixed.

The plan would necessitate county assessment twice for the first year of the plan's operation, or to obviate this, the assessment could be moved forward three months the first year and three months the second year.

The Real Estate exchange endorsed the proposition and delegated the legislative committee to outline a plan of action, which must be state wide, as legislative enactment is necessary to make the change.

GIVES REWARD TO WIDOW

Chief Briggs Wires His Share to Go to Mrs. Blunt.

DID NOT FIGHT FOR MONEY

Briggs Says He Had No Thought of the Money While Chasing the Escaping Bandits for Many Miles.

In a telegram received yesterday morning from Chicago, Chief of Police John Briggs announced that he would turn his share of the reward over to Mrs. Roy Blunt, the young wife of the man who was killed during the battle with the convicts.

Chief Briggs was leaving South Omaha when Briggs intimated that he would cede his claim to Mrs. Blunt and his telegram was no surprise to his friends here.

At no time was Briggs actuated by a desire to win the reward. This was apparent Monday evening when he returned to the city after the fight. "How much will you receive, some one asked the chief. "Why, I had not thought of that," said Briggs.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Safeguarding City Cash Raises Rumpus Before Council.

BRIDGES SAYS WHAT THINKS

Declares Proposed Ordinance for Joint Depository is "Kid's Play" —Street Car Speed May Be Limited.

The question of safeguarding cash and securities held by City Treasurer Ure raised a rumpus in the council last night when an ordinance providing for a joint depository to which the treasurer should have access only in the presence of the controller was introduced.

Councilman Lee Bridges voiced his objection in plain and picturesque profanity. "It is kid's play. Nothing else. If I was Mr. Ure, I'd come up here and tell you fellows to go straight to — and say it in clear English.

"You're trying to reflect discredit on Mr. Ure. His bond covers the securities he holds. I've never talked with him about this. We differ politically and personally and haven't much use for each other, but such proceedings as these are an outrage."

"Mr. Chairman, Bridges is talking about something of which he knows very little, apparently. The finance committee examined into this and the legal department drew the ordinance. It is business. I will ask Assistant City Attorney Lambert to explain," said Sheldon.

But Councilman Sheldon's request was not granted. Bridges rose up vehemently to assert, "you think you're playing politics. Why didn't you think of this six years ago, when the same conditions existed? Why is it of such vast importance at the very last minute? Why try to belittle a man? I tell you it's an —"

"Committee of the whole." Judge Herka succeeded in silencing the irate councilman and the ordinance was postponed for discussion to the meeting next Monday.

Mr. Ure's communication to the council stating that some changes in the method of issuing street improvement district bonds was necessary, was not read but was referred to the committee of the whole, pending a reply now being prepared by City Comptroller Cogrove.

An ordinance for a two years' extension of the contract with the electric light company was placed on file.

Councilman Bridges introduced a resolution asking the city attorney to read up on his law and find out if there were any provisions to prevent the street car company from throwing the snow from its tracks into huge piles in the middle of the street on either side.

An ordinance regulating the speed of street cars in that part of the city bounded by Twelfth, Sixteenth, Leavenworth and Cuming streets was referred to the committee of the whole. The ordinance restricts the speed in this district and over viaducts to ten miles per hour and in other parts of the city to fifteen miles per hour, no street car to approach within less than fifty feet of another car. The ordinance was referred to the committee of the whole.

A contract was authorized to be entered into with William D. Marks, expert physical appraiser, who will appraise the property of the gas company.

Street Commissioner Flynn was instructed to use $5,000 more per month in cleaning streets if it was necessary.

M. F. Funkhouser submitted a communication from Lysie Abbott saying the telephone company he controls would make an attempt to answer the questions of a special committee from the council appointed to investigate rates, but that it would take some time. The letter was placed on file.
