FARMERS DENY MAN SHELTER

Albert Peterson, Caught in Storm, Spends Night in Open.

RESCUED AT HOME OF MRS. BARTH

Found Frozen to Seat of Wagon and Unable to Move Without Help—Recovers After Severe Exposure.

Compelled to spend the night with his team stuck in a snowdrift when he had become lost, after being repeatedly denied shelter at a number of farm houses, Albert Peterson, a salesman employed by the Council Bluffs office of the Singer Sewing Machine company, was saved from death by Mrs. Barth, residing five miles southwest of Council Bluffs, who heard his faint calls for help when she arose at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Peterson left Council Bluffs last Tuesday afternoon to drive to Oakland. He had gone only a few miles until the snow and sleet storm that raged all night became so severe he concluded to abandon his trip and seek shelter for the night at a friendly farm house. At the first house his request for shelter for himself and horse was curtly denied. He went on to the next one and received the same treatment. This was continued for a number of miles with the same result. Although he offered to pay any price, he begged in vain to be given shelter from the violence of the increasing and dangerous storm. Owing to the great quantities of snow in the public highways the roads slid around through the fields and in trying to follow the one he was traveling Peterson got lost, and finally his horse succumbed to a deep drift. They were nearly exhausted at the time and wholly unable to pull the light vehicle out.

Peterson got out and tried to trace his way back through the snow, but the howling wind and snow had hidden every track. After wandering around in the darkness for some time, Peterson got back to the wagon and climbed in and sought to protect himself as best he could against the cold and storm. When the long night wore away and daylight came he found he was not far from a house, but when he attempted to get out of the wagon his frozen garments, welded to the seat with a thick coating of ice, refused to yield and he found himself a prisoner. Realizing that his only hope of rescue lay in calls for help, he threw all of his waning energy into his shouts.

"I heard some one calling several times before I spoke to my son about it," said Mrs. Barth over the telephone last evening, "and I had to tell him sharply to go out and see who it was. He saw the team and wagon in the field and went there, but he had to have help to get the man out. When they got him into the house the man was almost dead."

Peterson was kept at the Barth home until afternoon and was given the kindest of care. He returned to town yesterday afternoon still suffering greatly. His condition, however, is not serious as he escaped with minor frostbites. The horses were almost as nearly dead as he was.

Peterson is a man of middle age and has been one of the valued employees of the company for twenty years. He is unmarried and lives at the Ogden house. He does not feel very kindly toward the careless farmers who would deny anybody or anything shelter from such a storm as that which he was compelled to endure all night.

Army of Tennessee Officer is Dead

General G. M. Dodge has received word of the death of Major W. H. Chamberlain, for many years corresponding secretary of the Army of the Tennessee, and well known in Council Bluffs. The aged civil war veteran died at his home in Roxabelle, near Cincinnati.

Major Chamberlain was well known in Council Bluffs, having attended each of the sessions of the society of which he was long an honored member and officer, that were held in this city. He was here at the meeting of the society last October, renewing his friendship with Bluffs residents and with veterans of the civil war in this section of Iowa. He was long engaged in newspaper work, and was correspondent for the Associated Press in his home city of Cincinnati for twenty-eight years before his retirement in September, 1906. He had since made his home in Roxabelle, a small town within a short distance of Cincinnati.

While he had retired for six years before his visit to Council Bluffs last fall, however, he showed none of the characteristics of an old man. He wore his seventy-seven winters jauntily, and aside from his snowwhite locks looked and seemed as young and spry as many a man of 20.

He was first elected to the position as corresponding secretary of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, in which capacity he is chiefly known in Council Bluffs, about twenty years ago. He was a regular attendant at the annual meetings.

Kerns and Papst Each Get Two Years

Judge Smith McPherson yesterday denied the motion for a new trial submitted and argued by Reed Flickinger and W. R. Green, Jr., the young attorneys who defended William Kerns, the convicted mail pouch thief. After announcing his ruling Judge McPherson sentenced both Kerns and George Papst, the latter having pleaded guilty to the same offense, to two years in the penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Judge McPherson was guided by both head and heart in reaching the decision as to the degree of punishment. He took fully into consideration the youth of the bold little thieves, neither of whom is 20 years old, and announced his purpose of giving them every possibility allowed by the law to receive a corrective lesson rather than a severe punishment for their crime.

Before pronouncing their sentences Judge McPherson took occasion to speak in warmest terms of the defense made for them by their young lawyers, neither of whom is much older than the erring youngsters themselves. The contrast between the fruits of wrong and right doing appeared to be realized and deeply impressed upon the minds of the boys prisoners. They were taken to Fort Leavenworth last evening.

He has never before been a candidate for office. George McMillan, candidate for marshal, has been city marshal for twenty years. The ticket is strong and will in all probability be elected without opposition.
