

HOUSE INVESTIGATES CREDIT

Possibility of Legislation Looking for Aid to Farmers.

MODDED AFTER FOREIGN PLAN

Senator McCumber Says Use of Co-operative Credits in System of Germany for Years Has Been Successful.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, March 30.—(Special Telegram.)—Should the senate look with the same favor as does the senate on the joint resolution by Mr. Norris to create a commission to investigate co-operative banking and credit systems for the benefit of farmers in Europe legislation on this proposition may be expected in the present session. The senate reported favorably yesterday on a similar measure introduced early in February by Senator Green of North Dakota, known as the Green resolution, which provides for a commission to be organized by the secretary of the treasury to study the co-operative credit system of Germany, which has been successful in that country for years.

The senate report states that the proposed action is taken in response to suggestions from many farm journals of the country and seeks to secure a careful investigation of the subject of co-operative land mortgage, land banks and rural unions in other countries to ascertain whether they can be successfully established in America.

Senator McCumber, who makes the report from the Finance committee, says that the system has been in use in Germany for many years and has proved of great value to agriculturists in that country, enabling them to secure loans at critical times. The report states further that while legislation on the subject would be clearly within the domain of state rather than of federal authority, the facts gathered would be of great value in the state and would probably show what states and under what conditions and regulations this foreign system could be utilized in this country.
