kept burning on a triangular candlestick, and at the end of each Psalm one is extingulated, except the last one, which is carried lighted behind the altar and again brought forth and replaced, still surning, in the triangle. This is to show that the light of the God-head in Jesus Chem. Christ, whilst becoming apparently dim-mer during His sufferings, was never extinguished, and at the resurrection only burst forth with greater brilliancy.

The institution of the blessed sacrament of the situr and the beginning of Christ's passion in the Garden of Olives are com-memorated in the church today. In some countries it is customary on this day to place on the table, for the first time in spring, and on that account it is known apring, and on that account it is known as Green Thursday. In each parish church but one mass is celebrated, at which the other priests receive communion, because at the last supper Christ alone changed bread and wine into His body and blood, and administered to His apostles. At the mass two large hosts are consecrated, one of which is kept for Good Friday, and at the end of mass, in wiled chalies, is carried in procession. a veiled chalice, is carried in procession to the repository prepared on one of the side altars.

Christ's Death Commemorated.

Tomorrow the church, smid the deepest affliction, commemorates the death and burial of Jesus. Because of this sorrow the services are carried on in black vestments, and Good Priday is not held as a feast. The services begin by the priests and ministers prostrating themselves at the foot of the altar in imitation of the debasement of Jesus. debasement of Jesus.
