COUNCIL LETS CHANCE SLIP

Refuses to Save the City Large Sum When it Has Chance.

URE POINTS OUT THE WAY

City Treasurer Repeatedly Has Pointed Out the Inefficiency on the Part of the Council Finance Committee.

While members of the city council have been crying "economy in the city administration," they have been persistently committing a plan of the city treasurer that would save the city as much as $100,000 a year.

City Treasurer W. G. Ure has repeatedly pointed out that inefficiency on the part of the finance committee of the council, headed by W. S. Sheldon, is meaning a heavy loss annually to the city.

Omaha's bonded indebtedness on account of bonds sold to pave streets is $1,200,000. The city now owns of these $1,200,000. There are sufficient funds on hand to pay off or purchase $200,000 of these bonds. If this money was used to purchase bonds, thereby stopping the interest of 4 1/2 per cent, the indebtedness of the city for paving streets would be decreased to $1,000,000.

This $200,000 is now held by the city treasurer, who is expressly prevented by law from investing it in anything else but city bonds or warrants. When the council was reminded that if somebody had not bought the interest on a large per cent of all outstanding bonds would be saved, the finance committee flew into a rage and took it out on the treasurer.

Without heeding threats directed at him when he asked for additional burglar insurance and a safety deposit vault, which he had been forced to secure at his own expense, the treasurer sent a communication to the council. It was read at the last meeting. In his statement Mr. Ure made clear that $25,000 street improvement bonds were for sale and ought to be purchased. His communication was read rapidly and placed on file by a unanimous vote, although Mr. Ure had been explaining his plan and pleading for its adoption for five weeks. Some of the council did not know on what proposition they were voting.

"Don't you think that would have been a good plan to follow?" Councilman Sheldon was asked.

"To be sure," said Mr. Ure, "but the city in that case has lost another chance to eliminate waste," said Mr. Ure.

"I'm in favor of buying up our bonds if the legal department thinks we can do it," said Councilman Thomas McGovern.

Willing to Save.

"I'm for anything that means a saving to the city," said Louis Burnester, who is waiting to be shown.

Councilman M. F. Funkhouser heard Ure's recommendation read and voted against it without comment. Lee Bridges declared the finance committee was trying to run everything and forthwith took his stand with the treasurer.

This recommendation covered bonds falling due in 1912, 1913 and 1914 and offered by Burns, Brinker & Co. at 96-1/2, which, the treasurer explained, would mean a saving of a little more than 4 1/2 per cent to the city.

Could Buy More.

Collection of special taxes in 1912 would enable the city to pay off more bonds, as the paving tax collections from March to December, 1912, will amount to $200,000, which, if it could be used, would further decrease the bonded indebtedness of the city for paving streets to $900,000.

Such a course would by January 1, 1913, clear the city of half of the now outstanding paving bonds. But because the issues were too large and of too late maturity, this money must be held by the treasurer. It is drawing 2 per cent and the bonds are drawing 4 1/2 per cent interest.

AUTO CUT UP AT A WEDDING

Judge Kennedy Ties Knot and Hoodlums Smash Machine.

WAS HIS SECOND CEREMONY

Some One Evidently Tries to Run Away with the Car, but Succeeded in Getting it into a Block.

Judge Howard Kennedy performed his second marriage ceremony Thursday, but the pleasure was marred by hoodlums who took liberty with the judge's new automobile while he was tying the sacred knot.

Mrs. Dorothy Jath, a handsome and attractive young woman who had been employed in the Kennedy home for more than a year, was the bride and the groom was Axel T. Jepperson. Judge Kennedy with all the other judges of the district court disapproves civil marriages and urges that weddings be solemnized by ministers or priests. Rarely do the judges perform such ceremonies and when asked they generally reply with advice that the couple seek some man of the cloth. Mrs. Jepperson and her husband were so insistent that Judge Kennedy consented to officiate.

Judge and Mrs. Kennedy went to Miss Jath's home on North Thirty-third street last night and the ceremony was performed. It was a beautiful ceremony and was carried through with as much solemnity and appreciation of its seriousness as if a minister had tied the sacred knot.

When the judge and his wife stepped out of the house their car was gone. It was found a block north of the house. A plate glass mirror to enable the driver to see the rear of the car had been smashed and the brass supporter had been twisted out of shape. The electric lights had been smashed out of commission. A driving hat the judge had left on the driver's seat had been cut to pieces. It was necessary for the couple to ride home in a lightless automobile.

The work of the hoodlums was reported to the police and to Juvenile Officer Mogy Bernstein, but so far the miscreants have not been apprehended.

Former Omaha Man

Marvels at Its Size

"I am surprised at the growth of Omaha and its apparently prosperous condition," remarked R. B. Ritchie after having taken a motor trip about the city, the guest of George F. West, general agent of the passenger and E. C. Griffin, general agent of the freight department of the Northwestern road.

For many years Mr. Ritchie was general agent of the Northwestern lines in this city. Fifteen years ago he was promoted to the position of general agent of the company lines at San Francisco.

"I am astonished at the growth of Omaha," said Mr. Ritchie. "It has forged ahead wonderfully until it has taken a place among the best cities in the country. It has become a bustling metropolis of magnificent homes and palatial office buildings and business houses and all this without any boom. Omaha surely is a great city and everything indicates that there is a great future in store for it and its people."

RANCHMAN WAITS FOR

THE WATERS TO SUBSIDE

Frank Pivonka, an old time resident of Omaha, but now a rancher at Peetps, Mo., who has been in the city a number of days visiting friends, has returned to his home. He intended to leave a week ago, but was marooned by the floods.

Mr. Pivonka lives but sixty miles from Omaha by the direct route. Had he gone home when the flood was at its height he would have had to travel 80 miles to reach his destination. He would have had to go to Creston, Ia. thence to St. Joseph and thence home.

PROBE DEEPER INTO PAVING

Grand Jury Investigates "Ugly Rumors" of Ring in Council.

PAVING PROMOTERS ARE CALLED

Records of the Letting of Certain Jobs Will Be Examined—Former Paving Report is Not Final.

Investigation of a rumored combination of seven city councilmen effected to safeguard the interests of certain paving companies, was begun by the grand jury yesterday.

Paving promoters and representatives of brick and asphalt paving companies were called to testify as to the legality of paving petitions secured by promoters and recognized by the city council over protests submitted in the form of affidavits.

Members of the city council may be subpoenaed before the probe into the paving situation is ended. Although a report was made by the grand jury in which it was stated most of the paving is of good quality, that report was not final, and the scope of the investigation is being widened. Records of the letting of certain jobs will be examined and their genuineness determined.

Three indictments in routine police cases were returned by the grand jury Friday morning. The indicted men are not in custody and their names were withheld pending arrests.

The grand jury will submit its final report and adjourn some time next week, according to members of the body.

STATE IN GOOD CONDITION

FOR A BIG CROP YIELD

Lon Davis, in from Broken Bow with a load of stock, said that his train was routed via Ashland and Pacific Junction from Lincoln, he arriving here at 11 o'clock yesterday. He said another train which followed was delayed five hours longer going the same route. Davis says fall wheat never looked better and predicts a bumper yield. He believed that plowing should start in earnest next week, for by that time the ground will be dry.

"Old corn, selling at from $1.50 to $2 a bushel, is being used for seed around Broken Bow," he said.

Many Conventions

Already Secured

for Another Year

Eight conventions for 1912 already have been secured for Omaha by the publicity bureau of the Commercial club. Endeavors will be made to congregate three of the larger conventions here at the same time. The three include men interested along the same line. They are the Nebraska Rural Life commission, Nebraska Farmers' congress and the Farmers' Co-operative Live Stock and Shipping association.

The other conventions so far enlisted are the Lumber Dealers, State Hardware association, Midwest Cement Dealers' association and the Federation of Nebraska Retailers.

ALLEMAN A DIRECTOR OF

THE CITY NATIONAL BANK

C. L. Alleman, president of the Standard Oil company of Nebraska, was elected to the directorate of the City National bank at a meeting of the directors Thursday afternoon. The vote for him was unanimous. The City National is one of the youngest banks of the city.
