MAJOR GENERAL GRANT DEAD

Son of Famous Commander Dies Suddenly in New York.

DEATH DUE TO HEART FAILURE

General, Who Was Supposed to Be in the South, Had Recently Moved from St. Luke's Hospital to Hotel.

NEW YORK, April 12.—General Frederick D. Grant, commander of the Department of the East and son of the famous civil war general, died suddenly at midnight at the Hotel Buckingham where he had been taken secretly on Wednesday evening by his physician. His presence in this city was not known until the news that he had been suddenly stricken was flashed to newspaper offices by the police. A policeman stationed near the hotel had called an ambulance at the request of an employe, who told him that General Grant was choking to death.

Although there had been rumors of General Grant's illness and reports that he would never again take up his duties on Governor's Island, the news of his death came as a distinct shock to the public. According to Dr. Robert Abbe and Dr. Edward B. Dench, his physicians, the death of the general was caused by heart failure. He had been suffering for some time, they asserted, in an official statement, from "diabetes and attendant digestive disturbances."

Recent reports that General Grant had been in a private pavilion in St. Luke's hospital in the city, suffering from a cancerous growth under the tongue, the same affection which caused the death of his distinguished father, were denied today by the hospital authorities. Dr. Abbe, who had been the general's family physician for many years, refused to discuss the subject.

Mrs. Grant was with her husband when he died. A nurse was the only other person present.

Read Comes Without Warning.

The first intimation that General Grant's condition had suddenly become serious was given when Mrs. Grant telephoned to the hotel clerk about 11:45 o'clock.

"The general is dying," she said, hysterically. "Get a doctor quick. She added that he had been seized with a choking spell.

The clerk made an effort to get Dr. Abbe on the telephone. Failing in this, he sent a bell boy to the physician's home nearby. The haste of the boy caused Police-man Malloy to inquire what the trouble was.

"General Grant is choking to death, get a doctor," was the boy's response. Malloy turned in an ambulance call, but before the hospital surgeon reached the hotel both Doctors Abbe and Dench had been located and were at the bedside. The ambulance surgeon and the policeman who went to the apartments, were told there they could do nothing. Dr. Abbe informed Coroner Holshausen that he would file a death certificate promptly and that no inquest would be necessary.

To newspaper men who reached the Buckingham shortly after midnight, efforts were made by the attendants to deny that General Grant was at the hotel. The management finally was persuaded to communicate with the physicians, who announced that General Grant had died before their arrival.

Statement of Dench. Drs. Abbe and Dench later sent down to the hotel management a statement, in which they said: "General Grant died suddenly of heart failure without premonition, at midnight. He had retired at 11 o'clock apparently in better condition than for several weeks. Since his recent trip his condition had given a special anxiety to his physician. General Grant had been suffering from diabetes and the attendant digestive disturbances, which seemed, however, to be perfectly under control. This sudden fatal termination came as a great surprise."

Lieutenant Marion Howe, personal aide to the general, announced this morning that Mrs. Grant was bearing the shock with fortitude. She directed that messages be sent to General Grant's son, Captain U. S. Grant, third, of the engineering corps in Washington, and to his daughter, the Princess Cantacuzene, as well as to other relatives.

Absent from Post for Month. For more than a month General Grant's whereabouts had been a mystery. Following the announcement that he had been granted four months' leave of absence, expiring June 1, reports were current that an illness, believed by many to be cancer of the throat, had caused his temporary retirement. These were denied at Governor's Island, where it was stated repeatedly that General Grant had simply gone south for a rest. Dispatches from Tampa, Fla., last week stated that he was at the winter home of Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago, a sister of Mrs. Grant.

The report that General Grant was in St. Luke's hospital in this city for operative treatment became public Wednesday and while not officially confirmed was widely credited.

The committee of the Buckingham, a quiet hotel on Fifth avenue, stated this morning that he had been told that General Grant had come directly to the hotel in an automobile from St. Luke's. The patient apparently was at that time in good health and spirits and walked from the automobile to the elevator unaided.

Son is Notified.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Captain Ulysses S. Grant, 35, the only son of the late General Frederick D. Grant, did not learn of his father's sudden death in New York until an early hour today. He was overcome by the news and took the first train to New York. He expected to arrive before noon.

No one here was in a position today to make an authoritative statement as to the funeral arrangements, nor was it known whether the body will be buried in Arlington National cemetery. It was suggested the body might be interred in the tomb where his illustrious father lies in the great memorial in Riverside park, New York city.

Having been at the time of his death an officer of the highest rank on the active list in the army the late General Grant will be entitled to a most imposing military funeral if such is the desire of the members of his family.

General Grant's death vacates the post which, next to that of chief of staff, is regarded as the most important in the army—commander-in-chief of the great eastern division. This position is of such importance that it cannot long be permitted to remain vacant, hence it is probable that very soon after the funeral it will be necessary to detail an officer of high rank for the position, probably Major General William H. Carter, now assistant chief of staff.

General Carter was the commander of the famous maneuver division in Texas

Brother in Poor Health.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 12.—U. S. Grant, Jr., a resident of this city for many years, denied himself to all visitors tonight when he received news of the death of his elder brother, Major General Frederick Dent Grant. It was learned that probably neither Mr. Grant nor any member of his family would go east to attend the general's funeral.

Mr. Grant's health has been unsatisfactory of late.

Major General Frederick Dent Grant, eldest son of General Ulysses S. Grant, eighteenth president of the United States, was born at St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1860. He was with his father during a part of the civil war, witnessed the capture of Fort Henry and Donelson and went with his father's command through the Virginia campaign. He witnessed also the fights at Corinth, Vicksburg, Nashville and Petersburg.

After the war young Grant entered West Point, and was graduated in 1871. For a year he served as a civil engineer for the Union Pacific railway, and in 1872 accompanied General Sherman on a trip to Europe.

Grant served as an aide-de-camp of General Sheridan and took part in the campaign against the Indians. He served with Major General Stanley in the Yellowstone expedition and in 1875 in the Black Hills expedition, after which he accompanied his father around the world.

He resigned his commission as colonel in the army in 1881, and for a number of years he was engaged in various enterprises. He was appointed minister to Austria by President Harrison in 1893, but resigned on the election of Mr. Cleveland to the presidency. Under the reform administration of Mayor Strong he was one of New York's police commissioners, but at the outbreak of the war with Spain in 1898 he became colonel in the Fourteenth New York infantry, and was appointed brigadier general of volunteers on May 27. On February 13, 1901, he was appointed brigadier general of the United States army, and reached the grade of major general five years later. He served in Porto Rico and commanded the military district of San Juan.

He was in command of four brigades in the Philippines for several years, returning to the United States in 1902. He commanded the Department of Texas, 1903-04; Department of the Lakes, 1904-05; Department of the East, 1904-06; and the Department of the Lakes again in 1908 and finally in the Department of the East, to which he was last appointed in the summer of 1910 to succeed Major General Leonard Wood.

His wife was formerly Ida M. Honore, daughter of Henry Hamilton Honore of Chicago.

competition, open to all banks alike, the state has ever since received nearly double the former interest on its funds.

"Some members of this 'league' are known as lobbyists, office brokers and dealers in illicit favors with the ring which long disgraced the republican party in Ohio. The 'progress' they want is backward, like the crab's, to the trifling times when they swapped votes they could control in the legislature with the bosses on the other side in return for advantages of some sort to themselves.

"The reforms that have been secured in Ohio had to encounter their opposition and every public officer is a 'reactionary' to them who insists on restoring to the public service honesty, economy, efficiency and devotion to the common interest of the people who pay him, with no favors on the side to anybody."

Democratic Viewpoint.

The speaker discussed national affairs and, referring to the president, said he never could understand how anybody can rest content with being a mere place holder while economic and practical reforms are suggesting themselves all around him, especially in times when the fast growing cost of living strains the resources of almost every home.

"And stand for or permitting special privileges or advantages of any kind through the action of a government maintained by all the people for their equal benefit, is an offense little short of treason in the eyes of the democrats. These are matters of right and wrong with us and not mere economic."

"The intimation that I ever was or could be, actively or passively, guilty of this offense, I resent as a slander, without excuse or mitigation. I would rather be charged with theft, because that would involve no betrayal of trust reposed by countrymen and would admit of restitution.

JURY IN HUNNING MURDER CASE FAILS TO AGREE

ST. LOUIS, April 12.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Annie Hunning, on trial at Hillsboro, Mo., on a charge of complicity in the murder of her husband, Martin Hunning, failed to agree today and was discharged, after being out twenty-one hours. According to a juror, the final ballot was 11 to 1 for acquittal. Joseph Seid was recently convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for killing Hunning. Seid's confession and testimony was that Mrs. Hunning promised him $1,500 if he would kill Hunning.
