Woman is Attacked; Assailant Run Down After a Long Chase

An attack was made upon Mrs. Eva Goldstein of 202 North Twenty-third street at 11 Thursday morning in front of Creighton university by E. E. Dristoll, a bookkeeper living at 312 North Thirty-fifth street. Mrs. Goldstein says she was standing in front of the college when Dristoll walked by and that without any warning or cause struck her in the face, knocking her down.
 Her screams attracted attention and as five men started to the woman Dristoll ran into an alley. He was chased about a circle for ten minutes and in six minutes five police officers were aiding in the chase. Traffic Officers Wheeler and Emery finally ran Dristoll down in the alley back of the college. He was out of breath and offered no explanation.
 He was taken to Mrs. Goldstein, who positively identified him as her assailant. She told Officers Heil, Chapman, Traby, Wheeler and Emery that she had never seen Dristoll before.
 At the police station Dristoll gave his name as E. E. Davis and his occupation as a clerk. He was booked as a suspicious character.

PASSENGER INSISTS ON DOG AS HIS BERTHMATE

Since leaving New York P. G. Holcomb has had any number of rounds with the trainmen as to whether his dachshund with a pedigree as long as the dog should ride in a compartment or in a baggage car. At the end of each of these rounds Mr. Holcomb has come out second best.
 He is traveling from the Atlantic to the Pacific. When he left New York he insisted that he would take his dog into the drawing room with him. The trainmen insisted that he would not and they won the first round. In Chicago Mr. Holcomb got into his car and again he insisted that he was no better than his dog and that if he rode in the Pullman there the dog would ride. The trainmen took a different view of some portions of the contention, though they admitted that he was no better than the dog. But again master and dog were separated.
 When Milwaukee No. 1 reached Omaha Mr. Holcomb scooted for the baggage car, pulled his dog out and made a bee line for his sleeper. At the steps he was stopped by the porter, who informed him that on the Union Pacific dogs were not permitted to travel first class. Mr. Holcomb offered the porter a bribe of $10, but it would not go and after exercising the dog up and down the platform the animal was turned over to the baggage-man to continue its westward journey.

EXPERTS TALK ADVERTISING

S. Roland Hall Advises Churches to Use the Newspapers.
OTHERS GIVE SOUND ADVICE
Hall is a Believer in the "Science of Advertising"—Says that Ads for Women Are from a Different Viewpoint.
 S. Roland Hall, associate editor of Printers' Ink and manager of Printers' Ink service bureau, delivered an interesting, instructive lecture before the Omaha Ad club yesterday on efficiency in advertising.
 His talk was spiced with accounts of personal experiences during the eight years as director of advertising for the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa.
 He was preceded on the program by three prominent advertising men: Allen D. Albert of the Minneapolis Tribune, A. B. Clark, vice president and general manager of the Permacal company of St. Louis, and Edgar G. Criswell of The World's Work.
 They had attended the convention of the Northern Division of the Associated Ad Clubs of America at Lincoln and were brought here by A. L. Gale, president of the Omaha Ad club.
 Mr. Hall was vigorously applauded when he told of arguing with some church people trying to convince them that a six-inch ad in a church pamphlet which would reach only a few hundred cost the same as a six-inch ad in a daily newspaper which would reach thousands.
 Mr. Hall said he was a believer in the "science of advertising." "I like to hear the use of the words science and psychology in talks on advertising," he said, "because advertising has come to be a science-classified information."
 He advises ad writers to study the various points of view; declared that women had entirely different viewpoints than men and that it was difficult for a man who had not educated himself to appeal to women through advertising.
 You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. That is the only true test. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by all dealers.
 Persistent Advertising is the Road to Big Returns.

Unsupported Wife Pleads With Judge to Punish Husband

The spectacle of a divorced wife pleading with the judge to send her former husband to jail and keep him there, so he could not molest her or her children, was a diversion furnished the attaches and others in police court.
 Otto Roderick, who lives at Thirtieth and Davenport streets, was on trial for assault and battery. Mrs. Maude Roderick, his divorced wife, was complaining witness. She said that without any provocation he cursed, abused, slapped and struck her, and furthermore did not support their children.
 When Judge Foster asked Roderick if he would support the children and leave his wife alone if discharged Mrs. Roderick made her stirring appeal.
 "Please don't let him go, Judge. He'll promise anything, but won't support us, and will abuse me again. Send him to jail; that is what he deserves," begged the woman.
 After considering the appeal Judge Foster sentenced Roderick to sixty days in jail and suspended it upon good behavior.

 The man who wears THE STETSON SHOE is not a transient customer. He seeks a repetition of his STETSON SHOE experience—an experience that makes all other shoes seem inferior.
