OMAHA CARRIES HEAVY LOAD

Interest on Bonds Costs More Than Thousand Dollars a Day. FINANCIAL STATEMENT IS MADE City is Obligated to Pay Interest on Court House Bonds Whether or Not the Building is Finished.

Omaha is paying interest on bonds at the rate of $1,725.50 per day and before the year 1912 expires will have expended nearly $500,000, according to a statement issued by the city treasurer. The statement, including the $30,000 interest on the court house bonds for the year, whether the building is complete or not, is set forth in the following table:

Table with 2 columns: Description of bonds and interest amounts. Includes County of Douglas, School District of Omaha, and City of Omaha.

Omaha is Complimented for the Numerous Beautiful Electrical Signs Which Help Illuminate the Streets. The Nebraska Electrical Association brought its fifth annual convention to a close late yesterday afternoon with the re-election of the officers of the organization.

Flags at Half Mast on Schools in Honor of Brave Americans

Flags hung at half-mast over school buildings of the city yesterday, official "Flag day." Salutes to the flag were recited by the school children, but otherwise there was no further commemoration.

"When the flag was raised over my building," said one of the principals, "I could not see it fly except at half-mast, in honor of the brave Americans who proved when the Titanic sank that there are still heroes and that civility, even when it means the sacrifice of life, has not been forgotten."

Other schools followed the example and Old Glory fluttered at half-mast everywhere, symbol of sorrow for a distinguished citizen of Omaha as well as many another man, prominent in art, business and literature, who met death off the coast of New Foundland Monday morning, with not a tremor of fear or excitement.

INSURANCE SCALPERS BUSY Commercial Club Warns Members Against the Crusade.

Life insurance scalpers have become so prevalent in Omaha during the last few weeks that the Commercial Club has been moved to action. The ban has been placed upon them. It is said they have been making pretenses of telling policy holders how to save money in paying premiums and usually advise him to drop his policy and insure in a new company. The "expert" usually suggests the name of the new company.

WORKING WITHOUT LICENSES Advise Policy Holders to Take Out Insurance in New Lines, Thereby Forfeiting old Policies Held Some Time.

Within the last few days members of the Omaha Commercial Club, especially men carrying lines of old life insurance, have been approached by strangers under the pretext of saving the policy-holder money through advice regarding their policies. The representation is that the policy holder can save money on his premiums, but it ultimately develops that the policy holder, in order to meet the requirements of the situation, must surrender his old policy and take new policies possibly in different companies. Such a change, if desirable or desired, could, of course, be made by any local insurance agent and any saving thereby obtained would necessarily be a result only of a change of the character or detail of the policy.

Laws Violated by Building Owners

Out of eighty Omaha hotels, public buildings and lodging houses inspected by R. D. McFadden, state hotel commissioner, and his deputies, fifty-three buildings have been found with outer doors of egress swinging inward—a direct violation of the law. McFadden made out his report yesterday and unless the law is complied with, prosecutions will be started against the owners of the buildings. It is expected that repair work will begin on a number of buildings immediately.

Grain Exchange Adopts Memorial on Emil Brandeis

The Omaha Grain exchange board of directors adopted this memorial at its meeting today: "The Omaha Grain exchange has learned with profound regret that among those who lost their lives when the steamship Titanic sank beneath the waves was Emil Brandeis. Mr. Brandeis was a member of this exchange from the time of its organization. He was at all times its friend and supporter, and to him and his influence this exchange is indebted for very many favors.

POSTOFFICE TO CLOSE HALF A DAY ON MONDAY

On Arbor day the postoffice will be closed at 12 o'clock noon, except the general delivery will reopen with two windows between 5 and 7:30 in the evening. A stamp window will remain open all day. Five and four-trip carriers will make two morning deliveries, the second to leave the postoffice not later than 9:30 a. m. All other carriers will make one delivery and that in the morning.

Meningitis Epidemic is No Longer Feared

"There is now no contagion of cerebro spinal meningitis," said Health Commissioner W. W. Connell yesterday morning. There are two convalescent cases and no new victims. There have not been as many deaths from cerebro spinal meningitis as have been reported, for some of the deaths have been from other forms of the disease.
