

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Strong Cash Action is Feature of Wheat Trade. CORN BUYING IS SURPRISING Situation is Not So Urgent as it Was a Few Weeks Ago, as the Reserves are Now Freely Offered.

OMAHA, April 20, 1912. The feature of the wheat market today was the strong action of the cash trade. Futures were carried sharply higher, making new high points for the crop year.

Crop advice are coming in surprisingly bad and the extent of damage is spreading to the west. Wheat prospects have been of the best. There are no fears of opposing the full operations of the futures market.

The corn market was supported by bulls on the strength in wheat, but the general situation lacks the bullish snap shown a week ago. Cash corn was higher to 1 1/2c lower.

Primary wheat receipts were 25,000 bu. and shipments 10,000 bu. against receipts last year of 43,000 bu. and shipments of 47,000 bu.

Chicago Wheat, Corn, Oats, Minneapolis, Omaha, Duluth. CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS Features of the Trading and Closing Prices on Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Active buying of wheat resulted today from crop damage in Kansas and because of diminishing stocks.

Wheat closed firm at the highest point of the season. Corn and oats were unchanged to 1/16c above last week.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Trading Still Under Influence of Gloom and Depression. UNDERTONE LOOKS IRREGULAR Weekly Statements of Commercial Agencies Indicate Slight Retrogressive Movement in Some Lines of Trade.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The course of the stock market during today's two-hour session suggested that it had not yet emerged from the gloom and depression of the earlier days of the week.

Business on the exchange was in moderate volume and the undertone was rather irregular throughout. There was some heaviness in Western Union, which rose impressively the day before on news that the bank of discount in the open market for short bills is 2 1/2-3 per cent.

WYOMING WOMEN BEGIN MOVEMENT TO PRESERVE THEIR IDENTITY AND RECORDS.

The club women of Wyoming who recently marked the old stage trail near Laramie with a granite shaft and who put up an imposing monument on the California trail along the North Platte at Casper began a movement which in all probability will be taken up in other states traversed by the stage coaches in early days.

The rapid obliteration of some of the old stage trails has made it imperative to hasten the work of identification. Old stage drivers have been called upon to identify many of the points of interest and the location of stage stations along the various trails.

The old station where Jules and Slade had their camp, a fight which later resulted in the loss of Jules' ears, has been identified and will be preserved. It has been proposed to have the governor set aside Independence rock, on the California trail in Wyoming, as a national monument.

This rock was a famous stopping place in early days, and is covered with the names of thousands of early day transcontinental travelers, scratched deep into the granite.

Besides the main trails across the continent there were many other stage trails that had much to do with making the west, but whose course will soon be lost if some means is not taken to mark them.

The old Smoky Hill stage trail across Kansas and eastern Colorado to Denver is practically wiped out, owing to the settlement of the plains. This old trail penetrated the heart of the hostile Indian country and was the scene of many exciting adventures in the '60s, but even the old Smoky Hill drivers have difficulty in tracing the route today.

The same is true of the several routes to Deadwood, every foot of which is replete with historic interest.

The main line of stages across the continent was several times shifted on account of Indian depredations. The most sweeping change was made in 1862, when "Ben" Holladay, the genius of the overland stage business, moved the line several hundred miles south and effected the change without missing a mail or delaying a passenger.

LOOSE STRINGS ARE SAFEST

Problem of Handling Husbands Made Easy by a Womans. To select and win (catch) a husband is a simple task compared with that of keeping him in leash afterward.

It is the nervous, temperamental kind that is constantly committing the blunder of being in the habit of apologizing for something at least once a day, preferably by choice before breakfast.

It is well with the nervous husband to adopt the manner of one who has made a serious mistake in marrying a tyrant.

But if he be domineering and pippish, treat him like a child and praise his good disposition, even though his temper may be hot-temperish.

Do not argue with him, or he will be quick to make it an excuse for staying out late. When he returns for sleeping deeply, without noticing him, for he will expect to find you weeping.

Do not look to him for sentimental ways after marriage. No for sentimental or flowers or remembrance. Do not look for him to give them, and it may occur to him to give them.

Husbands are constructed in this manner. They will fall at all those things in women which they most run after. He will say of you that your waist is too small, your heels too high and our dress too low.

Do not seem to take him seriously, his going or his coming or his stayings away, when he returns from one of his persistent advertising is the road to Big Returns.
