SPYSHI

I.-PRIENDS OF THE CZAR. Claude and Rosamond are now high in the favor of the czar, whose young son Claude so gallantly saved from falling over the bridge. Further, Desmond is as much in the crar's bad graces as the lovers are the other way. It will go hard with the villain now that the caar him be ended in the most painful manner.

IL-TESTING THE PIES. The czar's birthday, and all his loyal subjects send him cakes and ples and Also some subjects that are not loyal may have sent in a few pies especially doctored for the disorganization of the czar's internal economy. So Desmond is to taste each pie. If he comes across a medicated one it will be curtains for him

IL-CHERRY RIPE. Investigating the various pies, dublous and not so dublous, Desmond comes across an appetizing pie with a filling of lus-cious cherries. Now Claude is passionately fond of cherry ple-indeed, one of his reasons for loving Resamond so much is that she can bake a cherry ple that beats anything in New England. Desmond knows Claude's weakness and scatters

IV .- A MIDNIGHT LUNCH. All the palace is asleep-all except Claude, that is. Our hero cannot take his mind off the delicious cherry pie he no-ticed downstairs. With such a piethera of ples, he figures that nobody miss one, and so he resolves to sneak quietly downstairs and have a midnight lunch of cherry pls. It is our hero's one weakness, so we cannot condemn him too

DESMOND IS IN CHAINS. I'M CRAZ

DOWN QUIETLY

TAKE A FEW BITES. THEY WILL NEVER MISS IT!

V.-OUCH! OUCH! Ever step on a cherry stone in bare feet? No? Well, never do. It will make you jump like a bucking bronche and holler like a crazy Indian. Claude, quietly sneaking into the imperial kitchen. has landed on a cherry stone, and when he comes down from his jump he lands on another. In his surprise he yells at the top of his voice, forgetting his position.

VI.-FALSELY ACCUSED. Awakene, by Claude's cries, the palace guards and the coar himself rush to the kitchen. There our hero is discovered in the dead of night, and, of course, he is taken for a spy. Of what use to say that he was merely after a cherry pie. Who would believe such a story? So now Tomorrow shows how they fare.
