DALLAM IS HELD BLAMELESS

Incidents heretofore unknown. His contradictory statements of Saturday were explained as having been made while "quiet and out of my right mind."

Both Had Been Drinking.

Dallam admitted that he and Barclay had been drinking heavily for the last several weeks, and that they were probably half intoxicated at the time of the shooting. His statements and those of others indicated that he was staggering and very much under the influence of liquor when they went to Barclay's room about 6 o'clock the night of the tragedy. Barclay, too, had been drinking, but was able to conceal his indisposition. The witness said:

"Barclay and I were the best of friends and had been together almost all the time since my coming here, about April 1. We went to his room in the Chatham about 5:30 or 6 o'clock Friday night after having a number of drinks at a saloon on Fifteenth street. After getting to the room we talked about business prospects for fifteen minutes. I then reached for my penknife to trim a cigar and found that I had my revolver with me. I said, 'Oh, I've got that gun.' Let's set it," says Barclay. I refused to do so and Barclay said, 'Oh, be a good sport and show it to me.' I started to hand it to him across the table. I was then seated upon the bed and in a Morris chair. He raised the safety device was in place. He raised half way up and touched the barrel. I half way raised up, too, and then it went off. He sank gradually back in the chair. I was stupefied for the moment.

Then I realized what had happened. I lost my head and decided to 'go after Barclay.' I mean to kill him. I laid down upon the bed and shot myself. The bullet struck a rib and came out in my back. The wound was not serious, but it made me lose consciousness. I laid there. I don't know how long, got up, and without touching Barclay, left the room. I thought that I threw the revolver out of the window. How I go home I don't know. I was dazed and I went to bed. The next morning before breakfast I told Beall what had happened. We hurried to the Chatham and found Barclay just as he was when I left him. He was dead."

Dallam said that the gun with which he accidentally shot Barclay had been secured in a trade. He told the county attorney that it was a habit of his to place the gun in one of his trouser pockets while shaving in the bath room at his room, 281 Dewey avenue.

assurance, pensions, strike relief, indemnities for injuries and the like. The consular reports state that the virtual beginning of the general co-operative movement in Belgium is said to have been due to the growth of the various socialist and labor parties in 1880 and the years following. The socialist societies are reported to have no affiliation with the International Co-Operative alliance. The development of many of the agricultural co-operative societies has been aided very greatly by the clerical party, the league of church societies comprising 600 associations.

TAX SUIT AT KEEKOK.

The attorney general has received information of another tax suit like that which is in the courts of Decatur county involving the taxes on national bank stock under a law, now declared by the courts to be void. This latest is in Lee county, where the suit is by the Keekok National bank to recover taxes paid for five years under a statute afterwards voided. It is anticipated that a number of similar suits will be commenced in the state.

PROTEST FROM HOMEOPATHS

Prominent Physicians Object to Consolidation of Schools.

RUMPS AT IOWA UNIVERSITY

Order of Holy Cross Plans to Erect Fifty Thousand Dollar High School for Boys in City of Des Moines.

From a Staff Correspondent.
DES MOINES, Ia., May 6.—Special Telegram.—Prominent homeopathic physicians of Iowa and the United States and a number of the alumni of the State University of Iowa met here this evening in formal protest against the act of President John C. Bowman to consolidate the two medical schools of the university.

The homeopathic physicians declare that it is a determination on the part of the new president of the university to put the Hahnemann medical school out of existence and maintain the medical school of the allopathic physicians.

The consolidation affected only that part of the medical work that is common to both schools of medicine such as surgery.

CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL.

A Catholic High School for boys to cost not less than $10,000, will be established in Des Moines by order of the order of the Holy Cross. A petition has been received by the local Catholics from officials of the order, in which they offer to erect and maintain the school providing the site is furnished. A large number of changes are being planned by the new bishop. It is understood that three more parishes will be established in Des Moines.

Tickets Easily Filled.

According to a ruling announced today by Attorney General Conson it will be possible to easily fill out the legislative tickets in various parts of the state. It was feared that because of an apparent conflict in the wording of the law it would be necessary, in case a nomination for the legislature is made by writing in the name to secure votes representing 10 per cent of the entire party vote of the county. But the attorney general holds that this is not the case and that where there has been no name printed on the ballot a nomination can be made by any number of votes no matter how small. This will make it comparatively easy to secure the nomination in some counties of the state where the matter was neglected prior to the last day for filing.

County Officers File Papers.

Today was the last day for filing papers for county candidates. In this county while the democratic ticket was filled, there are to be no real contests for places and the general feeling among democrats is that they have no show whatever of success. There is not now a democrat in any county building in this county, the first time in many years that this has occurred. The republicans have many candidates for each and every office and the fight will be warm because of the fact that several of the candidates are seeking a fourth term.

Fighting Iowa Smoke.

A recently organized smoke commission in Des Moines is engaged in making a study of the problem of how to prevent the waste of coal going up in smoke and meetings are being held from time to time and information secured from experts. It is found that the Iowa coal is especially wasteful and that the prevention of smoke where it is used is practically impossible. Efforts are being made, however, to induce all the large users of coal to adopt the best possible devices for prevention of smoke.

Meeting of Bankers.

Arthur Reynolds, president of the Des Moines National bank, and E. J. Curtin of Decorah, who is president of the Iowa State Gancers' association, left today for New York, with some other Iowa bankers to attend a meeting of the executive council of the American Bankers' association. This will be held at Briarcliff. Preparations will be made for the next annual meeting of the national association.

Arrested on Homicide.

R. C. Shepherd and Mabel Hankins of Marshalltown are on their way back home accompanied by the sheriff of Marshall county today, instead of speeding westward on their honeymoon trip. Shepherd is wanted in Marshalltown for homicide. He was married to Miss Hankins Thursday.

After the marriage ceremony they started to Des Moines. At the same time the Marshall county sheriff phoned Des Moines police to arrest Shepherd. Deputy Sheriff Loper of Polk county arrested Shepherd as he stepped off the train with his bride. They took the next train back.
