POLK HOME TO HOSPITAL

Heirs of Big Des Moines Estate Make Deal with Church.

TAKE VETERANS TO GETTYSBURG

Plan Under Way to Pay Iowa Survivors' Way to Reunion—General Manager Harrison Resigns Position.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Ia., May 10.—(Special Telegram.)—Here to the Polk estate closed a deal today whereby they will deed to Bishop Dowling and the Catholic church the palatial Polk home for the bishop's palace. The consideration involved is an agreement on the part of the church to pay to Mercy hospital the sum of $50,000, this money to be used for the building and for establishing free beds for the needy poor at the institution.

Veterans to Gettysburg. A bill is being prepared by officials of the Grand Army of the Republic of Iowa to have the state pay the expense of sending to the semi-centennial anniversary celebration of the battle of Gettysburg on the battlefield, all of the 16 survivors of that battle who are now living in Iowa and who care to attend. A compilation of the entire list has just been made.

Mineers Disagree. The joint convention of coal miners and operators which has been in session here a large part of the time for six weeks is likely to break up in total disagreement as to certain phases of the wage question for the next two years. Officials report today that no agreement is in sight.

Get Harrison's Goat. J. R. Harrison today announced his resignation as vice president and general manager of the Des Moines Railway company to take effect July 1. It is said here that Emil G. Schmidt of Chicago, president of the Cook county traction company, who served as a member of the board of arbitration in the recent wage dispute here will succeed Mr. Harrison.

Stimson Defended in Minority Report

WASHINGTON, April 9.—A strong defense of Secretary Stimson and an attack on the majority of the house military committee for its report on the circumstances which led to the retirement of Adjutant General Ainsworth after a threatened court-martial were contained in a report submitted to the house today by the minority members of the committee. The minority report declared that the majority exceeded its authority by framing a report containing "intemperate statements."

A CHINESE SHAVING FEAST

Characteristic Celebration in Honor of First Born Pulled Off in Chinatown.

An invitation to a "shaving feast" is not to be despised, especially enough through they be San Francisco. And what is a shaving feast? When a Chinese baby of either sex is a month old its hair is shaved to make it grow faster, and a dinner is given by the parents in their baby's honor. One of these feasts was held not long ago on the third floor of a popular restaurant in San Francisco's Chinatown. It was given by Yong Kay, an interpreter in the customs house, in honor of his first born, Katherine Victoria Kay.

Yong Kay's feast disclosed some of the changes in the San Francisco Chinatown. The walls of the large room were covered with hideous American wall paper, and had no Chinese decorations, fringes or ornaments save one. This was a cheap colored print flanked by hieroglyphs on either side and denoted "Peace, plenty and prosperity."

About 300 guests were assembled, the American and the Chinese women and children being placed at one side, the latter behind screens. The Chinese men were principally merchants, interpreters, students from the colleges and missions, and were nearly all sans queue and dressed in American clothes. Yong Kay opened the feast with an invocation in Chinese. The many round tables, draped with American table cloths, were covered with tiny dishes, many not larger than our ordinary butter plates. On these were placed different kinds of nuts, ginger, cherries, sliced orange and sweetmeats. At each plate was placed a pair of chop sticks and a small china ladle in its tiny saucer. Those were never changed and were used to eat the fourteen courses. As a concession to the Americans a large plate and fork were given to each of us, but no knife or spoon.

The fourteen courses were all hot, served in small four-sided dishes, one after the other, with no vegetable or bread accompaniment of any kind. Small courses were passed for the more liquid courses, when individual ladies were used, instead of soup spoons. Dishes of fish, sliced turtle with green garlic (always sliced) cooked with pickles and small onions, pieces of fungus with greens and bacon, roast duck with grated nuts on top, and green bamboo sprouts in small strips, pigeon, chicken noodles, chop suey, meat of the sea fish, the abalone, and peppers.

As no knives were ever used, all these meats or fowls were shredded in small pieces and shaped in a mold. One could not help making the observation how useless are many of our dishes, and how dainty and simple are the Chinese in their table equipment compared to ours. Chinese napkins were often passed, and many glasses of sparkling champagne were drunk.

Katherine Victoria, always somnolent, was passed by her demure mother and Yong Kay around to the different tables. Her health was drunk standing by the occupants of each table in turn. Many coins, folded in small squares of rice paper, were slipped in a small bag, which was tied around her neck. On this paper, three inches square at the top, was printed in Chinese, "Thanks," and down the right side the date of the dinner and "for the child."

Order and good feeling abounded, speeches made both in Chinese and in English, and as it always the case with the oriental, the greatest courtesy was shown to all. Yong Kay passed continually around to the different tables, talking or drinking with his guests. The speeches were greeted with cheers and handclaps, but (and here the American after dinner speaker can take notice) they were all very short and to the point. One did not notice a single act of exuberance or of over-indulgence. Some excitement was caused by two Chinamen rising and facing each other and playing the game "Chi Mooter" with great enthusiasm and noise. Each would fling his right hand in the other's face, showing any number of fingers and shouting the number as he rapidly went on. The one who was ahead at the end of three or four rounds won. The Italians have a game very similar to this.

Lifeboat Sails Go with Tickets on Pacific Lines of Japan.

Congressman Redfield, in a letter to a New York newspaper, calls attention to the fact that the interest of the Japanese in proposed returns in life-saving service on ocean liners is purely sympathetic. For these good people, who act while other nations talk, have already solved the problem.

On the Japanese steamers plying between San Francisco, Japan and Hong Kong each steamer has within it a "lifeboat card," informing the occupants of the number and location of the lifeboat to which they are assigned in case of dis-
