WAIFS FIND GOOD HOMES

Fifty-Six Little Folks Are Adopted by Nebraska People.

COME FROM NEW YORK CITY

Nine Are Taken Off the Trains at the Omaha Station to Remain Here—Numbers on Children is All that Identifies Them.

Yesterday was the day when they gave babies away at the Union station. Occupying a special car, fifty-six little folks, ranging from 1 to 2 years of age arrived over the Illinois Central, coming direct from the Foundling Institute of New York, and in charge of Traveling Agent D. O'Hara and a corps of trained nurses. In the consignment were babies of both sex, blondes and brunettes and in looks they averaged up pretty well with that number of babies at an ordinary show. Some of them were pretty little things, while others were about as homely as could be found anywhere.

In Omaha nine of the babies were left with parties who had made application and had adopted them outright and unseen. The others went west on Union Pacific No. 2, the first delivery being made at Columbus and the last at Grand Island. All of the youngsters had been spoken for in advance.

The New York Foundling Institute is a Catholic institution that has for its purpose the gathering of waifs and children whose parents are unable to care for them. The Nebraska and Kansas work of distribution is in charge of Superintendent McFeely of Omaha. His duties consist in finding homes for some of these children in Catholic homes in the two states. That he succeeds is apparent, for each year he places close to 200 of the little New Yorkers.

Method of Finding Homes.

The method of finding homes for the New York children, while unique, is a business proposition. A family wants to adopt a child. Application is made to Superintendent McFeely. The application states the sex of the child desired, the age, blonde or brunette, color of hair and eyes. Upon the receipt of this application, Superintendent McFeely begins an investigation of the applicants. He ascertains their ability to care for and educate a child, their moral and social standing, their habits, the condition of their home life and everything connected with them for at least two generations back. If the investigation is satisfactory, the application is recommended and sent on to New York headquarters. There it remains until a baby that fills the bill is received at the institute. When this baby arrives, it is given a number that corresponds with the number given the application and then, so to speak, the baby is laid away on the shelf until enough for a consignment is ready to start west.

All Are Numbered.

At the time of making the application, the applicant is given a number, which corresponds with the number of the application and the number given the baby. Then prior to the babies being sent out from New York, all applicants are notified to be at a certain station on a certain day and there meet a certain train and claim the baby picked for them. That's why nine women and their husbands were at the Union station, each presenting their numbers when they boarded the car. The work of distribution occupied but a few minutes, for the little things that were to be disposed of in Omaha were dressed in white, spick and clean; hooded and cloaked and ready to go as soon as called for. On the dress of each was sewed its number—big black figures—and as their foster parents took them away that was all they knew about them. Their past was a sealed book and will remain so for all time to come, as applications and the number given the baby. Then prior to the babies being sent out from New York, all applicants are notified to be at a certain station on a certain day and there meet a certain train and claim the baby picked for them.

Commissioner Will Force Physicians to Report on Diseases

Health Commissioner R. W. Connel has directed physicians of the city to report all cases of contagious and infectious diseases to his office at once. Those who fail to do this will be prosecuted. Dr. Connel has written to the heads of hospitals and to several doctors ordering them to submit complete and immediate reports of cases handled.

Three cases of typhoid fever within the week were not reported to the health office and this led Dr. Connel to notify the physicians in charge of the hospitals where the cases were treated that any such oversight again would be prosecuted under the city ordinance making such physicians subject to a $50 fine. The health department has also requested that physicians be more careful in filling out the vital statistician's blanks.

H. S. STUDENTS VISIT THE O'BRIEN CANDY FACTORY

A class of thirty-five pupils from the business training department of the Omaha High school feasted on Marschino cherries and toasted marshmallows at the D. J. O'Brien candy factory yesterday, where they were the guests of the management for a tour through the confectionery plant as part of their regular course of study in commercial work at the school.

After visiting the O'Brien factory the students went to the smelter, where they were shown the process of refining, with all its interesting features. Prof. L. C. Rumsel, who will be the new principal of the Omaha High School of Commerce, which opens in September, was in charge of the class.

TEACHERS TO GET MORE PAY

Majority of Board Members in Favor of an Increase.

FAVOR TWELVE INSTALLMENTS

Committee of Teachers Has Been Arranging to Make the Request for a Raise by Securing Data.

The Board of Education will increase the salaries of the grade and kindergarten teachers of Omaha.

A majority of the members of the board have announced themselves in favor of an increase or raise, what will amount to the same thing, giving the teachers pay for twelve months in the year.

A committee of twelve teachers has been arranging to make a request for a raise. They have written to other cities to secure data on salaries. Members of the board are doing the same thing.

W. T. Bourke, James Richardson, J. L. Jacobson, Dr. John J. Foster and Dr. E. Holovitchner are emphatically in favor of higher salaries for teachers.

Not Paying Enough.

"We are not paying our grade teachers enough," said Dr. Holovitchner, "not paying them as much as we do our wash-crowner, who will get $2 a day. A minimum of $10 is too small and a maximum of $20 is not enough."

Unless the teachers present their case to the board before the year is out they will not have a case, for the board is planning to take up the question of increasing grade and kindergarten teachers' salaries and may settle it satisfactorily within the next few weeks.

Maximum of Thousand Dollars.

Just how much the salaries will be increased cannot be foretold, but with the exception of one member of the board, who would not "express an opinion until there was some official action," all agreed that there would be an increase, and that it would probably not be less than a maximum of $100.

None of the members uphold a minimum of $10, but all of them are agreed that it is too small, although how much it will be increased is still undecided. The board has had formal discussion, but when it meets Monday night should the question arise each member will be emphatic in supporting his opinion.

Little Star Prepares for Bit of Realism

Little Miss Ruth Thompson, who will have the title role in "Sara Crew," "The Little Princess," which will be given at the Brandeis theater Saturday evening for the benefit of the Visiting Nurses, is having quite a strenuous week between rehearsals. Miss Ruth is spending her time at one of the local bird and monkey shops, getting acquainted with Cingo, the monkey who will be loaned for the performance Saturday evening.

It happens that there is no real monkey actor in Omaha at present, and so a real monkey is to take part in the fairy story. Cingo, the monkey, is the one who climbs over the roof and discovers Sara Crew, the little princess, living in a wretched garret.

Miss Thompson feels quite certain that she will have won the monkey's friendship by Saturday evening and that he will be a desirable member of the company.
