Venner & Co. Make Demand for Return of Forfeit Money

Assistant City Attorney Lambert is examining into the merits of the contention of C. H. Venner & Co. who claim their check for $5,000 given when they made bids on bonds, which they later refused to accept, was given because the comptroller had issued misleading statements about the taxable property of the city.
Venner & Co. have intimated that suit will be brought at once if the money is not returned. Mr. Lambert will be prepared to give an answer when he has thoroughly investigated the case. If the city secured bids when the comptroller's statements misrepresented the amount of taxable property, the check will be returned. If the statements were not misleading the money will be retained and the case continued in the courts.

Former Comptroller Cogrove says there was no misrepresentation in his official statement. Officials before him had made statements, he declared, when they had led bond purchasers to believe the assessed valuation of the city property was the actual valuation. This statement he changed and said instead of "assessed valuation," "property for assessment purposes."
