The three defendants are charged with enticing the Kinzle girl from her employment at Des Moines and bringing her to Omaha for inuneral purposes. She was discovered locked in a room at pected to show the indictments returned against the defendants were at fault in the fact that the Kimie girl was not transported to Omaha via the Great Western ruitrond as the indictment reads. The girl testified that she came as fur as Council Huffs on that road but as Council Huffs on that road but boarded a street car at that point for Omahs. According to the provisions of the Mann faw, it is a violation to trans-port women over the ines of a common carrier. On this point it is expected the indictment should show the manns of the road on which the girl took passage from one state to another.
