

MORE WATER IN BUTTER

Circuit Court Says There is No Limit to Moisture Contained.
NOT HELD TO BE ADULTERATED
 Omaha Creameries Say They Will Continue to Make Butter of the Same Grade as They Have Heretofore.

An excess amount of water in butter in the process of its making does not make the product adulterated and for this reason cannot be taxed 10 cents a pound as such, according to a ruling handed down by the circuit court of appeals sitting at St. Paul, Heretofore butter containing more than 16 per cent water has been subject to the tax making it necessary for butter makers to churn a product containing less than this amount of water to sell the article as unadulterated.

The case is a writ of error questioning a judgment of a bill of information filed by the United States to forfeit 11,500 pounds of butter claimed by the Milton Dairy company of Minnesota. There was a trial by jury in the lower court and at the close of the evidence the court dismissed the suit on the grounds that the evidence failed to sustain the plaintiff's cause of action and that the 16 per cent regulation of the secretary of the treasury was unauthorized under the law. Judge Sabin delivered the opinion of the appellate court, which upholds the decision.

The government has given no intention of appealing the case to the supreme court, but it is thought probable it intends to make a test case of it.

Whether or not creameries and other butter makers could, in the process of butter making, obtain a product which they could sell with any amount of water in it that it could hold has been the cause of many suits brought in different courts.

The case of the Alamito Creamery company against Ross L. Hammond, collector of internal revenue, Omaha, was decided upon in favor of the defendant in a decision handed down by Judge T. C. Munger, December, 1910. The company sued for recovery of the tax paid of 10 cents a pound for butter declared by the internal revenue service to contain more than 16 per cent moisture.

The result of the recent ruling will permit butter makers to float an article on consumers if they choose which will contain from 25 to 30 per cent water, or as much as it will hold without breaking to pieces. The consumer will pay 10 cents for water when he buys butter for 40 cents a pound or 75 cents for every pound selling at 30 cents. The ruling allows a 10 to 15 per cent additional profit to the creameries which the consumer pays.

Omaha makers of butter are not generally committed on what they do or do not do as the result of the ruling. "It will make it easier for the creameries, but we will continue to keep up our grade of butter," said the manager of a local creamery.

Sunday Excursions Abandoned by Roads

Low rate Sunday excursions are things of the past, so far as the Omaha roads are concerned. This is the edict that has gone forth and during the summer none of these excursions will be run from Omaha or from other points on the system.

The Burlington discontinued and frowned upon the Sunday excursions over the Nebraska and western lines some years ago. General Manager Holdrege has always opposed them and consequently they have not been run for years. Other roads have permitted them and have run them into the state and into Iowa. But there will be no more of them.

The roads centering at Chicago and St. Louis placed the ban upon Sunday excursions several weeks ago and now the Omaha roads have followed suit.

Railroad managers contend there is money in Sunday excursions, but that the precedent set is a bad one. Excursionists leave the starting point sober, but upon their return, a large number of them come back hilarious. Another reason for the abandonment, say railroad managers, is that the present idea of good railroading is to give employees as much time for rest and recreation as possible. A Sunday excursion meant the entire day for a train crew, returning home tired and not fit to work on the following day.
