ARE YOU DOING POOR WORK?

Efforts of Continuous Strain on the Eyes Have Some Warning Signals.

How are your eyes? Do they itch and burn and pain you until you are unable to concentrate your mind upon the work you have in hand? If they do, it is only for a time—each day, they are repairing your efficiency, and you should seek a remedy at once.

Many persons, especially clerks, have the mistaken idea that as long as they can see the figures in front of them their vision is all right. The fact of the matter is that the majority of those who suffer from eye strain are persons with sufficient vision. Strain exists where the eyes are naturally out of focus, but can be and are held in adjustment by the pressure of the ciliary muscles.

Take a person who is far sighted, for instance. If the degree of far sightedness is not great, the brain keeps sending through nerve force to the muscle to keep it constantly contracted. The same thing happens in a low degree of astigmatism. The victim can see well enough and refuses to recognize eye strain as the cause of the burning and itching and headaches from which he suffers.

Continual strain upon the eyes causes not only headaches, but, according to Dr. Woods Hutchinson, a majority of the cases of stomach trouble are due to eye strain. This may seem a surprising state-

EXPRESS HERO STICKS TO JOB

Trousdale of Texas Gets Bunch of Money and Many Vaudeville Offers.

From the obscurity of an express messenger at $100 a month the heroism of a few minutes has raised David A. Trousdale of San Antonio, Tex., to fame and to the possession of $2,000, which is to him a fortune. He owes this elevation in his position to his hot temper. A train robber, looting the car of which he was in charge, rudely prodded him in the ribs with a revolver. "This treatment riled me all over," says Trousdale, and he killed the bandit with an ice man and shot his confederate dead with the first man's pistol.

As a reward for this feat the Southern Pacific railroad paid Trousdale $2,000, the Wells Fargo Express company gave him $2,000, the citizens of San Antonio raised $2,000 for him through popular subscription in the newspapers and the detective agency charged with protecting the express company business, together with subscriptions from citizens of Sanderson, Tex., near where the holdup occurred, supplied $1,300 more. With this sum the express messenger will gratify an ambition of many years' standing. He will purchase a ranch in west Texas and enjoy the outdoor life which his physicians have recommended.

For the slaying of Ben Kilpatrick, a notorious and dangerous train robber, and

PASSING OF THE ARLINGTON

Famous Washington Hotel Where History Was Made is to Be Torn Down.

After outliving many reports of its demolition the famous Arlington hotel is really to come down this year, and a sign thereof is the advertisement of an auctioneer that he will begin on May 29 to auction off the furniture and other belongings now in the hotel. It is to be razed in the summer, and in its place is to come an $800,000 hotel, the finest of them all in Washington.

No doubt this will be a splendid affair architecturally. And the site is a magnificent one, the finest in America, facing the broad spaces of Vermont avenue and overlooking on the north the broad vista of that thoroughfare as it crosses the green enchantments of McPherson square and Thomas circle, and at the south the enticing verdure of Lafayette square, and beyond that the noble White House and its superb grounds. It is indeed wonderful that the site has been so long disguised as the site of the best hotel in all the United States.

Still one cannot but feel regrets. The old hotel with its brown stone facade of six stories and a bulbous mansard roof had a very remarkable air, and it has grown storied and picturesque. Few of

THE ROOSEVELT CABINET

It was the headquarters of all diplomats, and the National republican committee. Senator Aldrich used to stop at this hotel, and it was here the stopping place of Senator Crane when he first came to Washington. It is the home now of Mr. Underwood, the floor leader of the democrats of the house of representatives.

Many a famous dinner and dinner have been held in the ball rooms and the banquet hall of the hotel. It was famous for its cuisine and so much old furniture of the treasured kind and pictures of renown hung from its walls that to go through it was like walking in an art museum.

Men of great means held on to their rooms, especially J. P. Morgan, when he used to come to visit the occupant of the White House, Roosevelt especially making him welcome. It is said that Morgan has made special arrangements for a handsome suite of rooms in the new hotel, Washington Correspondent, Boston Advertiser.

Bachelor's Reflections.

All a man seems to need to get the big head is a little brain.

Being a snob is so natural to most people they think it's everybody else.

The more people make a lot of money pretending to show others how to make it.

The more a man talks about himself the more diagnosed you get that it isn't about yourself.

Some men are so lucky that when anybody wants to borrow from them they haven't a cent.—New York Press.
