Mr. Palmer entered the Harvard law school in the fall of 1909. He was elected to membership in the Blackstone Law club, the Harvard-Nebraska club, and the Harvard Masonic club. The last two years he has been active in settlement work with the Jewish, Italian and Irish quarters in the South End in Boston, and this summer will have charge of Camp Hale, a settlement camp on Squaw lake in New Hampshire. He has given his observations on settlement problems to the press in articles which have been widely copied and has done general correspondence for the Omaha

The nature of Mr. Palmer's work as a legal editor is illustrated by a comment made recently by the toastmaster at the annual dinner in New York City of the editors of the Columbia Law Review, a contemporary of the Harvard Law Review, wherein he referred to one of Mr. Palmer's editorial criticisms as exemplifying the attitude which law journals should take toward current decisions of the courts.
