AGREE TO DIVIDE MISSOURI SEATS

ected or to accept them when they are elected." He asked the committee to reopen the contests of the Missouri delegates-at-large, decided yesterday in favor of the Taft contestants. The committee, however, took no action on the suggestion.

For the Taft forces W. J. Latham, a negro attorney, declared he had affidavits denying that no notice was given of conventions to elect delegates from the Second, Fourth, Sixth and Seventh districts. The affidavits showed, he said, that a regular call was issued for the conventions. He denied that the Taft adherents had opposed negro voters or had declined to have negroes participate in the convention.

The national committee then voted to seat the eight Taft delegates from the districts under consideration. A chorus of "noes" came from the Roosevelt side. Chairman Victor Rosewater ruled the motion carried.

Taft Delegates Contestants. The Fifth Mississippi district contest was called next. In the Fifth Mississippi district the Taft delegates were the contestants. The Taft attorneys announced they would rest their case on affidavits and records purporting to show that their delegates were regularly elected.

A. D. Hill of Boston, appeared for the Roosevelt delegates. "The negro voters and many other Roosevelt supporters were deliberately elected from the convention which the Taft forces called," he said. "The Roosevelt men thereupon went across the street and held a convention which was regular in every respect."

During the discussion Mr. Heney had another interchange with Chairman Rosewater and other members of the committee.

Replying to a criticism of his method of examining one of the contestants, Mr. Heney called across the room to a critic: "I would like to get you on the witness stand."

"Mr. Heney will address his remarks to the chair," said Chairman Rosewater. "I am just trying to protect myself," said Mr. Heney.

The two delegates from the Fifth Mississippi district were seated by the national committee without a roll call. Roosevelt adherents voting "no." A request for roll call was refused. Senator Borah, as a substitute, had moved the seating of the Roosevelt delegates only. Only nine members joined him in asking for a roll call and the Roosevelt motion was defeated, viva voce.

Missouri Contests Taken Up. The Missouri contests, taken up next, were filed by the Taft forces and involved the four votes of the delegates-at-large and two delegates from the First, Third, Fifth, Seventh and Fourteenth districts, fourteen in all.

Governor Hadley's delegation at large numbered eight, selected by the state convention to cast a half vote each at the Chicago convention. The Taft delegation at large, headed by John C. Black, included four members, the number specified by the call for the Chicago convention.

The case of the delegates-at-large opened the fight. Grant Gillespie, attorney for the contesting Taft delegates, took up the history of the Missouri state convention, at which Governor Hadley's Roosevelt delegation was selected. The Taft forces, he said, had controlled the state committee by 18 to 14 and had decided the contests on the night before the convention.

Police took possession of the convention hall at sunrise, he said, under orders of state officers and his police and an equal number of militia were in possession of it in the morning of the convention day.

"It was commonly stated," he said, "that they were there to act if the state committee unseated the Roosevelt delegation from Jackson county."

Hadley and Nagel Agree. A new committee including Governor Hadley and Secretary Nagel, President Taft's representative, then took up the contests, he said, and an agreement was reached to send four Taft and four Roosevelt men without instructions to cast Missouri's four votes at large, in the Chicago convention. This agreement was endorsed by the republican state committee, he said, by a vote of 39 to 2, and it was expected it would be followed in the state convention.

Governor Hadley was made permanent chairman of the state convention. The resolutions then offered, he said, made no reference to Colonel Roosevelt. At this point, declared Mr. Gillespie, Chairman Hadley asked the convention to "indulge" the resolutions committee a few minutes while it corrected a "misunderstanding" in the resolutions. The convention proceeded to elect eight delegates and their alternates.

Chairman Hadley left the chair, said Mr. Gillespie, and went into the room where the resolutions committee was still working. When the committee finally came in with its report, he said, it was "3 or 4 o'clock in the morning and most of the delegates had gone home."

"There were about 200 of the LEE delegates then present," said Mr. Gillespie. "It had been generally understood the convention should proceed peaceably to the end."

Endorsement of Roosevelt. The redrawn resolutions, explained Gillespie, referred in complimentary terms to Colonel Roosevelt, but did not instruct for him. The resolution to instruct for Roosevelt was offered from the floor, he said, when the majority of the delegates had gone.

"There can be no question about the agreements having been made as to the Missouri delegates-at-large," Mr. Gillespie asserted.

Mr. Gillespie said the Taft forces held 494 uncontested votes and the Roosevelt men 464, while more than 200 were in contests. This situation, he said, had resulted in the agreement to divide the delegation.

Theodore N. Joslyn, holding a proxy in the committee, asked Mr. Gillespie if the convention itself had authorized the alleged agreement to divide the delegation.

"No," said Gillespie. "Was it binding on that convention?" "No, but when the leaders get together and make such an agreement the boys usually carry it out."

Mr. Gillespie declared that Governor Hadley had arbitrarily tried to adjourn the convention at 8 o'clock after the Roosevelt instructions were passed.

Taft Men Meet in Hotel. "We then refused to recognize such action and took a recess to meet at the Planters hotel at 7:30 a. m.," said Gillespie.

He claimed Governor Hadley had never "put the motion" to adjourn and that fifty or seventy-five of those left in the

DES MOINES FIGHTING SMOKE

First Prosecution Brought Against Big Carriage Company.

COMMISSION WILL MAKE TEST

Rock Island Gives Order to Engineers to Blow Whistles Less Frequently in Town of Colfax, Ia.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, Ia., June 13.—(Special Telegram)—C. S. Walker, president of the Kratzer Carriage company, was served with a warrant today sworn out in police court by Smoke Inspector McNutt charging him with maintaining a public nuisance by permitting the emission of dense smoke from the stacks of the factory. This is the first prosecution under the smoke abatement ordinance.

The school board has elected to fight the smoke commission in regard to installing smoke consumers in the West and North High school buildings, although the president of the school board at a conference with the smoke commission assured the commission that the school board would co-operate in abating the smoke nuisance. The board has refused to sanction his recommendation.

Lean Noise at Colfax.

Rock Island railroad trains will make less noise when passing near or through Colfax. An order was issued by the superintendent instructing engineers not to blow their warning whistles unnecessarily except to comply with the law and prevent accidents. The whistles have proved a source of annoyance to patients in the sanitarium at the resort.

Pharmacists Fail. Of a class of twenty-eight graduated from the State university pharmacy school only thirteen passed the examination for state certificates held at Iowa City last week.

Aged Surgeon Ill.

Dr. George P. Hanawalt, for many years surgeon for the Rock Island railroad and an old army surgeon well known throughout the state, is reported at death's door. He has been active until recently.

Grand Army of Iowa Objects to Monument For Confederates

MASON CITY, Ia., June 13.—Further appropriations by congress for monuments perpetuating memories of "confederate valor" were vigorously opposed in resolutions adopted by the Iowa encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here today. The resolutions said it was "deemed better that these memories fade away." Particular opposition was made to the proposed confederate monument in the national cemetery at Vicksburg, Miss.

The Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic elected the following officers: President, Mary J. Coase, Decatur; vice president, Addie Drummond of Dubuque and Irene Plummer of Des Moines; treasurer, Hattie Burwell of Clarinda.

Sons of Veterans officers elected are: Commander, R. C. Brown of Waterloo; secretary-treasurer, G. T. Taylor of Cedar Rapids.

step to keep pace. We must rescue our government from the reproaches laid upon it, and we must prevent the establishment of conditions under which liberty and the pursuit of happiness are empty to genuine meaning.

"We need state guides. The good intentions of folly and fury may lead us far astray, while the demagogue is as dangerous as the open enemy.

"I believe that the days when the unpunished crook and criminal can participate in the making of laws are numbered. I believe that the purpose of special privilege is fading and the scepter falling from its hand. There is every indication that the restoration of genuinely representative government is near, and that representative government when restored will enter upon a broad program of social and industrial legislation."

large to Colonel Roosevelt without a roll call. The First Missouri district contest then was taken up, but was delayed, the committee taking a recess. Committee man Mulvane of Kansas announced he had been informed "some compromise might be agreed upon as to the First, Third, Fifth, Seventh and Fourteenth Missouri districts." He secured a ten-minute recess while opposing attorneys consulted. Despite this announcement, however, the hearing on the First district contest proceeded.
