GERMAN HAT EXPERT COMES

Knows Art of Hat Making, Cleaning and Repairing to the Minutest Detail.

DRESHER BROS.' IDEA

Brought to Omaha and is Flying His Art in the Window of the Immense Dresher Cleaning Plant.

A lot of "half dead" straw hats are going to come to life in Omaha this season.

The weather-beaten, dilapidated, and time yellowed hats that you've held over from last summer, need not be cast in the furnace, but may now be turned into stunning creations if left to the hands of the German hat expert now employed at the Dresher Cleaning and Dyeing establishment of Dresher Bros. at 2211-2213 Farnam St., Omaha.

Notice the window as you pass; see the world's master hat restorer engaged in his interesting work right in one of the show windows in full view of the audience, as it were.

This German expert will restore your old straw hats to almost the same condition they were in when originally purchased; he will clean them to a gleaming white; he will reblock them if necessary and will even retrim them if you wish.

Any work he undertakes will be guaranteed by Dresher Bros. and it must be borne in mind that this new hat department is not a temporary one, but will remain a feature of the vast Dresher Cleaning business in the future also.

Dresher Bros.' German expert will do a magnificent job of cleaning on a straw hat for 50c; for $1 he will clean and block a straw hat, while $1.50 expended here means that your hat will be cleaned, blocked and even trimmed. So you see it pays to put an old straw hat in condition rather than to buy a new one.

If you are the proud possessor of a valuable Panama hat this is the proper place to bring it for a complete restoration; Dresher's expert will clean and block it for $1.50, and guarantees the work absolutely.

Straw hats may be left at the plant or at the Dresher branch agency in the Pompeian room of the Brandeis stores or at Dresher The Tailors, 1515 Farnam St. Phone Tyler 1200 or Auto A-2225 for more detailed information. Dresher pays express one way on all out-of-town shipments amounting to $3 or over.

Former Kansas Deputy Sheriff Admits Crime

CRESTON, Ia., June 15.-[Special.]-Giving himself up as a fugitive from justice Harry George, a former deputy sheriff of Wellington, Kan., is being held here, waiting for the sheriff from Wellington, where he is wanted on a charge of embezzlement.

George walked up to Chief of Police Exline here last night in a restaurant and told him his story and asked to be taken into custody. He says his action is the result of a letter from his wife at Manhattan, Kan., asking him to do this, serve his time and then come home to her and their child.

George stated he had been engaged in the insurance business at Wellington after the expiration of his term as deputy sheriff and had collected many notes from farmers about there in payment of their premiums. These he had made out to him personally, which he later cashed at one of the banks and then left the town. He says he came here about April 1 and secured employment as a laborer on the paving contract, but quit the work soon and went to work on a farm near the city. He says he came here several times with the expressed determination of giving himself up to the officers, but his nerve failed until last night. The Kansas sheriff is expected here this morning for the man.

STATE'S ENDEAVORERS MEET

District No. 2 Listens to Address by Rev John H. Address.

FINDS THAT MEMBERS ARE LAX

Gives Five Reasons Why They Should Make and Keep Pledge-Committees for Session Are Appointed.

The second annual convention of District No. 2 of the Nebraska Christian Endeavor union began last night at the North Presbyterian church, Twenty-fourth and Wirt streets.

The delegates were given inspiration for a good start in the work of the convention by a sermon by Rev. John H. Address of Weeping Water.

Rev. Mr. Address delivered an interesting and inspiring address from the topic, "I Promise Him," giving and elaborating on five reasons why Christian Endeavorers should keep the pledge of their organization.

"In going about from place to place and working with Christian Endeavorers," he began, "I have found a taxman among some in their regard for the importance of the pledge. I always have admired the greatness of the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, not only because of the great work which he inaugurated, but because he was inspired by a pledge to God, a pledge of which he felt the necessity when he made it compulsory for all who would belong to the society."

"As this discussion is rather in the nature of a sermon, I shall take as my text, Jeremiah 15. They shall seek their way to Zion, with their faces thitherward, saying, come, and let us join ourselves to the Lord in a perpetual covenant that shall not be forgotten."

"There are five reasons why we should make a pledge, an iron-clad pledge. The first one is that there can be no development of character without a sense of obligation. We must be held in restraint, must be driven along a given path, must come under discipline before our characters can be developed."

Comparison to Flowers. To illustrate his point the minister compared the wild prairie rose with scattered leaves and broken stalk to the American Beauty, which by restraint and disciplining care had been evolved into the magnificent flower.

"The second reason why we should keep the pledge," said he, "is this: Every blessing we have, all the blessings of God, are based on promises made to Him. The Lord is not going to pour into your life the spirit of the graces until you are willing to give something to Him."

"The third reason is that God wants to know upon whom He can definitely count. He wants to carry on a successful conquest until every knee shall bow and every tongue confess. It is to serve His purpose better to have His soldiers banded together in allegiance to Him in this great army, the greatest of all armies."

"The fourth reason: After all, we all belong to Christ. And the fifth reason is that the pledge is made on the condition that He will give you strength to fulfill it."

At the first session of the convention last night G. M. Southmayd conducted vespers services. The address was made by Herman Ohlswager, president of the Omaha Endeavor union, to which response was made by C. W. Anderson of Irvington.

Willard Slabaugh offered a beautiful solo The wonderful acoustics of the North Presbyterian church lent splendor to the song.

The meeting closed with the appointment of committees.

IOWA FARMERS INSIST 17-YEAR LOCUSTS HERE

CRESTON, Ia., June 15.-[Special.]-Mrs. Fred Edwards of this city returned yesterday from Woodburn, where she visited and brought back with her specimens of seventeen-year locusts. Mrs. Edwards says they have not attacked the corn in that vicinity yet, but the trees are full of them and when they are shaken the locusts swarm from them in great clouds. Each insect brought here shows a distinct "W" on each wing which the superstitious claims means war. A farmer living north of this place says he saw locusts by the thousands a few days ago as he was coming from his home to this city.

Brothers Shoot Each Other and Both May Die

HAMBURG, Ia., June 15.-[Special Tel.]-John and James Hunter, brothers, each shot the other, probably fatally, here yesterday as the result of an altercation the cause of which they have not divulged.

John Hunter, 43 years of age, and James, ten years his junior, each inherited considerable property from their father and John took better care of his share, engaging in the livery business here. James has been working for John, but was discharged this morning. As the result of threats made, John immediately had his will made and attested and bought a revolver.

The two brothers were found shortly after noon in a shed on the barn premises engaged in a pistol duel by Millard Coolidge, proprietor of the Millard hotel, and by a commercial traveling man. When the battle ended James was shot once through the abdomen and John through the lower breast, ranging downward and in an arm and leg.

Both are married, John having a wife living here and James a wife and one child. After the battle each man began calling for his brother. Money matters, it is said, formed the principal topic discussed during frequent altercations.
