Mrs. Joe Watanabe Takes Acid in Husband's Presence.

QUARRELED WITH HER SISTER

Young Woman of Pelia, Ia., Married to a Japanese, Becomes Estranged from Family and Ends Her Life.

Estranged from her people at Pelia, Ia., because of her marriage to a Japanese, Mrs. Joe Watanabe, 25 years of age, swallowed six ounces of carbolic acid last night at 6:30 o'clock in the restaurant of her husband at 231 N street.

The cause of the suicide was assigned to a quarrel with her younger sister, Margaret Visser. She recovered temporarily, insured by the tragic death of her sister, was forcibly restrained by Chief of Detectives James Sheahan from plunging a butcher knife into her heart.

At the time of her death Joe Watanabe, the husband of the woman, was in the room and their baby played a few steps away, while Margaret Visser, the younger sister, waited upon the patrons of the place.

City Physician E. J. Shanahan, who together with Drs. A. H. Koenig and E. J. Humpal attended the woman, said that Mrs. Watanabe had taken enough of the deadly acid to have killed ten persons.

The body was turned over to Deputy Coroner Bernard Larkin, who also notified the woman's relatives at Pelia, Ia.

At the police station Margaret Visser pleaded with the police to be allowed to return to watch beside the body of her sister. Because of her two previous attempts to kill herself Chief of Detectives James Sheahan ordered that she be held until some reliable person could assume charge of her for a day or two.

Children to Take Part. That the children of the city will have a prominent part in the Fourth of July festivities was made certain yesterday when a number of the school teachers of the city met with S. S. Goldstrom in the city hall to arrange for the part of the program to be filled by the youth of the city.

For the especial benefit of the less prosperous children of the city the committee has devised a plan that will make the heart of every child jump with joy. It is the intention of the Fourth of July boosters to give each child something sweet to eat and something capable of making noise proper to the occasion.

At the meeting of the Booster club last night there was not a large attendance, owing to the dinner given by the Twenty-three club in honor of the approaching marriage of Frank Coad, a member of the organization.

Reports of the committee indicate that the collections for the celebration of the Fourth are more than encouraging.

Twenty-three Club Loses Coad. In silent grief last night at the Atlas cafe the full membership of the Twenty-three club met to celebrate the passing of Frank Coad from the ranks of the bachelors to the more staid and dignified state of benedict.

Mr. Coad will be married in a few days and his quondam friends and cronies invoked the ancient rule of their organization which makes it incumbent on the membership of the club to meet for the proper celebration of a comrade's defection from the society of reckless, good-natured, jolly bachelors to the more staid and quiet realms of the hearthstone with its attendant comforts of Morris chair and carpet slippers.

For the occasion the long tables were decorated with crepe and floral designs indicative of the grief of Coad's twenty-two compeers. Large, artistic red-painted cards attached to Coad's automobile announced to the world that he was about to forsake the sacred freedom of the Twenty-three club for the quiet haven of connubial bliss. Twenty other cards carried notices equally tender and delicate. The whole procession lined up at Twenty-fourth and N streets, where the members of the club entered into secret session.

At a late hour last night word from the club was that it had secured the Taffel-Rochell dispute, appointed the national committee to arbitrate the Turko-Italian war, selected Dr. Cox and George Gribble as delegates to the International Mothers' congress, allowed six tax collectors to the office of City Treasurer John Gillin, appropriated several thousands of city money for the payment of ice inspectors and lightning rod investigators and signed the fateful twenty-three to the bachelor days of Frank Coad.

Drunken Orgy Ends in Fatal Shooting

Because he believed that Elijah Crowder, colored, was trying to escape when his turn to buy the drinks came around, Harvey Tyler, alias Posten, also colored, shot him twice, causing fatal wounds.

Tyler then made his escape, but at 11:15 o'clock Detectives Van Dusen, Ring, Sullivan and Murphy arrested him at Twenty-ninth and Farnam streets.

To the officers he said his name was Harvey Posten and that at the time of the shooting he was outside of the house where it occurred. Witnesses who were present positively identified him, however, and he is being held pending the outcome of Crowder's trial.

According to some of the witnesses, the revolver used by Tyler was given him by his brother, Joe Tyler, who was also present when the affair occurred.

Crowder was shot once in the left side of the abdomen, the bullet taking an inward course and lodging near the spine. The other bullet took effect in his left arm. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where it is given out that he can not live.

The police say that several years ago Joe Tyler shot his father three times with a revolver, and that a few minutes later the old man procured carbolic acid and drank it, preferring death by his own hand rather than to wait for the bullets of an ungrateful son to take effect. In some manner Tyler escaped punishment at the time.

City Jail Janitor, Ex-Slave, is No More

John E. Taylor, janitor at the police station during the last five years, died yesterday afternoon at 1294 Dodge street.

He had been sick in bed but two days. The only surviving relative is a sister in Atchison, Kan.

Taylor was an ex-slave, in antebellum days having been owned by Congressman Burns' parents of St. Joseph, Mo. He also served in the civil war.

Years ago he was on the Atchison police department. Shortly before leaving the service he shot and killed a white criminal while trying to make an arrest.

About a year ago he was given charge of several prisoners who were cleaning up the jail. One of them confided to him that his brother had been killed by a colored policeman in Atchison. He said if he ever found the "nigger" he was going to murder him. Taylor killed the man's brother. He lived in agony until the man was released from jail and had left the town.

Taylor was one of the most faithful friends of Mayor Dahlman that ever came to the notice of the city's chief executive. When Mr. Dahlman read the obituary of Chadron, he became acquainted with the old negro, and a peculiar friendship sprang up. The mayor was the first person notified when it became known that Taylor had died.

Ziebarth was walking under the bridge, when he was grabbed by the thief, who held him while he went through his pockets.

LAD THINKS MONEY GROWS ON TREES HERE-WANTS SOME

Leonard Olszanowski, the 15-year-old lad who came here from Buffalo, N. Y., two days ago, because he heard that "money grew on trees" in Omaha, was sent back home yesterday by the local authorities, a ticket having been sent here by his father. At Neola, Ia., however, the boy left the train and has not been seen since. The local police were notified and Sheriff McCaffery of Pottawatomie county is seeking him.

According to Matron Gibbons, who had charge of the boy while he was detained here, yesterday afternoon he wrote on the wash room, "Leonard Olszanowski of Buffalo, N. Y., was poisoned here on June 15, 1912." The police think that he is slightly demented.

When George Wenner, recently discharged from the American Smelting and Refining company's employ, failed to show up at the supper table last Wednesday, Mrs. E. Freds, who operates a boarding establishment at 822 South Twenty-second street, took no notice, but when his absence continued until last night she notified the police, fearing foul play or that he had made away with himself. She told Captain Dunn that when Wenner lost his job he made threats of suicide, and she fears that he will make good on them.

NOT YET READY FOR PEACE

Colonel Banister Believes Patriots Should Prepare for War.

ELKS' FLAG DAY A SUCCESS

Great Crowd Attends Services at the Orpheum Theater, Where Old Glory is Honored by Song and Speech.

Colonel John M. Banister, U. S. A., retired, speaker at the Elks' Flag day celebration at the Orpheum last night, declared the patriotic American man or woman should have no patience with the "fanatics who are advocating universal peace." And our women, he said, "should consider it their highest prerogative, their noblest duty, to instill into the minds of their sons from the cradle up to manhood love and veneration for our flag and should look with scorn upon those fanatical and misguided members of their sex who believe in universal peace. They should emulate the lofty patriotism of the mothers of ancient Sparta, who sent their sons forth to war to bring back a shield that had been victorious or else be brought back upon that shield."

Services a Success. The Elks' services were a brilliant success from the opening number by their orchestra to the closing march, "The Jolly Elk." The theater was draped from the footlights to the gallery in Old Glory. Flowers decorated the stage, in front of a camp scene where was gathered Company G of the National guards, under command of Captain E. E. Sterricker.

Patriotic songs were sung, the audience joining in with ardor when the orchestra struck up the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America." The Elks' quartet, Miss Edith Foley sang "Just Before the Battle, Mother." George W. Long sang the "Song of a Thousand Years." "The Red, White and Blue" was sung by Miss Bertha Henderson. Mrs. Ernest A. Reese played on the violin a melody of American airs and was encored by the enthusiastic audience.

Exalted Ruler Robert W. Patrick pronounced the introductory. Rev. L. W. Heaton, chaplain of the Elks, said the prayer. Thomas Lynch gave the report of the flag. Herbert S. Daniel read the bell on the altar was conducted by Raymond G. Young and chair officers. A great wreath of red roses, another of lilies and a third of violets, surmounted with a bar in which the thirteen stars were woven, composed the "lively bell."

Wife Aids Asquith, Attacked in Public By a Suffragette

LONDON, June 15.—While Premier Asquith was holding an official reception in the India office tonight in honor of the king's birthday, an elegantly attired suffragette, who had been announced as a guest approached and tried to tear the epaulettes off the premier's official coat. Mrs. Asquith tried to rescue her husband from the unwelcome attentions of the woman and then an usher literally dragged the suffragette away from the premier and ejected her from the building.

Mr. Asquith, Mrs. Asquith and Miss Asquith were receiving the guests at the foot of the stairway when the suffragette who was about 30 years of age advanced and was duly announced. The premier extended his hand. Instead of shaking it and proceeding, the woman stooped as if to speak to Mr. Asquith and then placed both her hands on the premier's shoulders and began tugging violently at the epaulettes. The premier shook her off, but the woman persisted in her attack.

Meanwhile Mrs. Asquith came to her husband's aid and the usher seized the woman by the wrist and dragged her away. She stubbornly resisted, however, until she was ejected from the building. A couple of minutes later a pale faced youth of about 30 years was introduced to the premier and took hold of Mr. Asquith's arms roughly and shouted something that was inaudible. He also was unceremoniously thrown out of the room.

According to some reports of the occurrence the woman, whose name was not made public, beat Premier Asquith over the head with her fan.

PROMINENT CITIZENS TALK

Address is Made by Mrs. J. J. Stubbs of Daughters of American Revolution, and Mayor Responds.

Nebraska chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, yesterday unveiled an immense granite boulder at the corner of Lincoln boulevard and Thirty-first street to mark the old Oregon and California trails, which were etched along the course of the Missouri river in the early '40s. Mrs. J. J. Stubbs, presiding, welcomed the mark as an effort to more clearly show the future generations the first encroachments of civilization into a new world, concluding with presenting it as a gift to the city of Omaha.

Mayor Dahlman thanked the society for the gift and predicted the day when Omaha would be one of the nation's largest and greatest cities, at which time, he said, such markers as the granite boulder could show with what honor the people of our day hold the pioneer.

John L. Webster, president of the Nebraska State Historical society, and Mrs. Charles O. Norton, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, made addresses commemorating the occasion. Mr. Webster said in the course of his remarks that monuments such as was unveiled should be erected not only to mark the Oregon trail, but to also bespeak to the future centuries the year of the first continental railroad which pioneered its way across the prairies to the Pacific from Omaha. "But, most of all, let future generations know how Omaha came by its name by erecting a suitable shaft to the Omaha Indians—to Blackbird, who stands out the valiant and brave chief of the Omahas, who but little more than a century ago ruled over a domain which extended over parts of Iowa and Nebraska."

EDNA GOODRICH--Starring in "His Neighbor's Wife" Talks on Keeping the Skin Beautiful

EDNA GOODRICH

It always amuses me when I am asked to give my ideas as to how beauty of any sort can be retained by or imparted to me or any other woman. Everybody expects some wonderful secret formula and the whole thing is so simple after all. Just breathe deeply of good, fresh, pure air, eat simple food and only a small quantity, and exercise early and often in the day. Above all things, keep clean, and by doing so your eyes will be brighter, your skin whiter and your color high. No small part of the beauty and cleanliness of my skin is due to the fact that I use the Melorose preparations in all my toilet rites. The Melorose Cream is a particular favorite of mine and many a frown over a poor rehearsal or an impatient crowd from too much laughing has been massaged from my face by that same delightfully scented and all-healing cream. My maid has a clever little trick of giving me an all-over-the-body-rub with Melorose Cream when I am out of sorts or more than usually tired and the result is almost evanescent in its intense luxury and glorious feeling of ease and lassitude. The Melorose Powder is by all odds the daintiest, most refined complexion beautifier imaginable and has a particularly soothing action on my skin. It has a clinging, evanescent odor of faintest rose that just barely suggests the flower name it bears, and used over a very light coating of the cream it tends to keep off not only sunburn, but also the tan and other dire effects of chilly breezes. You see, I am a real "out-of-doors" girl and walk in all sorts of weather, on every opportunity that I have, and my skin is entirely free from any sort of blemish, and the reason is because I use these Melorose toilet articles. The Melorose Rouge is, I think, the most natural I have ever used and would deceive anyone, and besides I find it is absolutely harmless to the texture of the skin. I am often complimented upon and, perhaps, am rather proud of the beauty of my hands and two of my most important manures indispensable are a tiny jar of Melorose Nail Polish and a block of the Melorose Nail Lustre. The two occupy little space, weigh comparatively nothing and serve to keep my nails always in a perfect condition, with a polish that is simply perfect in its quiet elegance.
