

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Laboring Men to Leave for Kansas, where Many Are Needed.

RELIEVES CONGESTED CONDITION

South Omaha Market Fast Assuming Proportions that Give it Place by Itself Among Big Trade Centers.

Within the next six weeks large parties of South Omaha laboring men will leave for the harvest fields of Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska where it is reported there is a call for 20,000 hands.

The labor conditions in South Omaha have been more or less acute for some time notwithstanding the attempts of the packing houses to relieve the situation.

Every year there is a certain number of men who have both contributed to a short of meat who leave town for the harvest states.

The wage paid harvest men is said to be as high as $3.50 per day with board, which although for only a short time, means much to the man who has a family and children depending upon him.

Pearce Going Camping.

Del Pearce, whose recent pamphlet on the "Philosophy of Pleatatorial Meanderings" has attracted the notice of the disciples of Isaac Walton throughout the country, will leave this afternoon with a large company of enthusiastic fishermen for Dewey lake in Cherry county, Nebraska.

In the company are such well known sportsmen as Del Pearce, P. J. Martin, John Ames, V. V. Foltik and Dana Morrill. The men expect to build a camp and practice the principle laid down by Pearce in his work on fishing. The company will be gone about ten days.

Live Stock Market Grows.

To those not closely conversant with the progress made by the local market within the last year its great advance in hogs comes as a surprise. The surprise is not so much the fact of the success of the market as it is the place now held by South Omaha among the five great markets of Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Sioux City.

Figures show that in the last year the Omaha market has gained comparatively more than all the other markets together. Omaha, for a period extending over the last year shows a net gain of 45,561 hogs over the corresponding time a year prior.

As opposed to Kansas City, which has held to the second place among the hog markets figures show that for a term extending over the present year to date Kansas City received 1,337,024 head of hogs as against 1,707,358 head received at Omaha, giving Omaha a substantial lead of 370,334 head of hogs to date.

Protecting the Sewers.

City Engineer Herman Beal and his office force have arranged for the covering of all smelling manholes with catch basins and sanitary protections and will begin to install the same within a few days. The first trial of the new nasins will be made on Railroad avenue where gas fumes and unhealthy and disagreeable odors have emanated from the sewer until property owners and residents of the section appealed for help to the city council.

DRAWING OF COLOR LINE RESULTS IN BIG BATTLE

Dick Cleveland and William Prefke, both white, have distinctly fixed in their own minds just how clearly the color line should be drawn. Last night, in the Burke saloon, Tenth and Davenport streets, Richard Luster, colored, approached them and suggested that they buy a drink. A quarrel and a fist fight followed. Police Sergeant Samuelsen and Vanous happened along and called the patrol for the trio of fighters.

Mrs. Potter Talks Woman's Suffrage to Omaha Women

It seems almost unfair to the majority of women that any one of the sex should have been so intellectually gifted as has Mrs. Francis Squire Potter of Chicago, member-at-large for the woman suffrage party of the city of New York, who will give an address on woman suffrage at the Country club tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the Equal Franchise society. Those who have met Mrs. Potter say that she is as pretty and womanly as if she had spent her time at pink teas and other purely feminine diversions, instead of in so-called "serious" pursuits.

In giving an enumeration of Mrs. Potter's accomplishments it is easier to name them in chronological order, starting in at the beginning with the literary work and putting suffrage interests last—although they are by no means least. Mrs. Potter took two degrees from Elmira college, the oldest woman's college in the world; an A. M. degree from the University of Minnesota, after which she did research work on Milton in Cambridge university, England. She was for eight years a member of the faculty of Minnesota university, rising from an instructorship in Anglo-Saxon to a full professorship in English literature.

She is the author of "The Ballingtons," a novel handling the economic dependence of women. She did the introduction for the Houghton & Mifflin "Alhambra Tales," arranged by Josephine Brewer, is director of the research and study department of the Twentieth Century magazine, department editor of Life and Labor and contributes to a number of women's magazines.

In club work, Mrs. Potter was a member of Miss Laura Drake Gill's education committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and of the committee on selection for the English scholarship. For the last two years she has been chairman of the literature and library extension committee of the general federation. During this time the federation has done much in forwarding the national movement for the study of the Bible as literature and the study of the Bible in suffrage. Mrs. Potter organized several Minneapolis clubs. She was for one year secretary for the National American Woman Suffrage association and resigned to join the woman suffrage party and the industrial ranks.

It was Mrs. Potter who originated the political settlements, which are organized precincts for political study. Such settlements are successful in New York, Brooklyn, Baltimore and smaller places. She has been made the first woman member of the University Lecture association of New York and her lectures cover a wide range of subjects in literature, industry and politics, including woman suffrage.

The Equal Franchise society has invited the Woman Suffrage society and the Political Equality league and the members of the Country, Field and Happy Hollow clubs to Mrs. Squire's lecture.

Earnestly Support Taft.

The delegates also adopted an address in support of the candidacy of Mr. Taft and of the principles outlined by the Rochester convention, which was presented by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as follows:

The delegates from the state of New York, in conformance with the expressed wish of the republican state convention at Rochester, wish to impress upon their fellow delegates the supreme importance of the issue of principle that now confronts the party.

"That issue we believe to be whether or not the republican party shall enter upon a campaign pledged to reform abuses, remove evils, and to effect needed reforms, without at the same time destroying the essential stable and permanent popular government.

"We therefore earnestly support the candidacy of William H. Taft, who upholds and represents the principles in which we believe, and we oppose the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt, who by his own utterances is committed to the overthrow of these principles."

There is no record vote on the adoption of this declaration, but several negatives were heard on the viva voce ballot. In presenting it Dr. Butler urged action on the ground that the convention should be guided by principle rather than personality in choosing a candidate.

Roosevelt Talks with Chiefs.

The Roosevelt plan of campaign was mapped out tentatively tonight at a meeting of the former president and his chief lieutenants. The conference was an extended one and was held behind doors which were guarded by Colonel Roosevelt's personal guard of six-foot strong men.

When this meeting was begun, with the formalities of his welcome to Chicago concluded, the colonel got down to his real work. To the conference he summoned Senator Dixon, James Garfield of Ohio, William Pinchot of New York, Arthur Hill of Boston, Governor Stubbs of Kansas, Governor Glinescock of West Virginia; Governor Johnson of California, Governor Hadley of Missouri, Frank A. Munsey of New York and George L. Record of New Jersey.

One of the first questions to be taken up was the temporary chairmanship of the national convention. The action of the national committee in the Texas and Washington cases, it was also understood, was discussed. With the end of the sessions at hand the Roosevelt forces were able to know exactly their position in the lineup of delegates.

Before the conference was begun Colonel Roosevelt met a large number of delegates from various states. Gifford Pinchot, who left the conference before its conclusion, declared the whole situation was being discussed, and the plan of campaign being arranged.
