OMAHA, June 15, 1912.

Liquidation in wheat was continued today at the opening. Leaders changed tactics quickly on the break and values were run up by shorts covering. However, it will take a lowering of the crop conditions from now on to cause renewed bull operations. The trend of values will be downward until something of a definite bullish feature can change the sentiment.
The change to fine, warm weather over the corn belt caused bearish feeling, as its effect on the growing crop will be beneficial. Opinions are not clear on either side and serious damage from hot winds and adverse conditions may spring winds and adverse conditions may spring

This means that the market is now fully as high as it has been any time this year, in other words as high as it has been in the history of the trade.

cows and heifers of good quality have been free sellers all the week, and they, too, have steadily advanced until they are 25c highr than last week, or as high as any time this season. On the other hand the common canners have been rather slow and uneven sellers, and they are certainly no higher and if anything a little easier than a week ago. In the stocker and feeder trade both supply and demand have been light. Prices have continued firm all the week Prices have continued firm all the week and the country has apparently felt that they were too high to make free buying a safe proposition. As a result the volume of business has been conducted within very narrow limits.

BUTTER-Creamety, 20c, 20c, 20c, 20c, seconds, 20c; packing stock, 20c, seconds, week appears in the continued heavy receipts. $1.000 head being received. For celpts, $1.000 head being received. For celpts, $1.000 head being received. 45.000 unusually good, with weights averaging 46.000 around 225 pounds. A temporary luli in the provision trade has exerted some bearish influence upon live stock values, however, and the market is closing about dormant, prices ruling nominally steady. During the week, trade has been very unsatisfactory at all points, the demand proving draggy with the trend to values lower. Packers have been doing business on a hand-to-mouth basis, owing to the bad condition of dressed mutton trade in first two days of the week, daily runs were limited to less than 2,000 head, supplies on Monday and Tuesday consisting largely of spring lambs from California. Oregon furnished a few pretty good sheep. but excepting the shipments grassers from the range country were offered. Small bunches of common mixed stuff that were plainly the remnants of the corn-belt feeding, continued to make up a considerable part of the receipts after Tuesday.

Naturally, the market has been very uneven throughout. Some good shorn lambs brought $8.15 on Thursday that would do well to clear at $7.55 at present. indicating a decline of about 25@35c on the better classes of stock. Common lambs and sheep are closing all the way from 40 cents to 70 cents lower than they were at last week's finish, lack of competition from feeders being partly respon-sible for sluggish demand. Only three single decks of feeding stock were sent back into the country during the week.
