GUYE GETS MANY INQUIRIES

Labor Commissioner Finds It Difficult to Answer Them All.

Secretary Royse Sends Out Call for Reports of Condition of State

Baks on June 14-Agreemen on Phone Rates.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 19 .- (Special.)-Labor Commissioner Guye has been nearly swamped with letters of inquiry regarding the publication of the Bee article of Tuesday, regarding vacant lands in Nebraska. Mr. Guye says he is not prepared to make answers to these inquiries until he can make a further investigation of the matter. There are, 1,336,471 acres of vacant land in the state subject to homestead entry and the publication of that fact shows that there are plenty of men who would like to have homes of their own. It is the opinion of Commissloner Guye that the next legislature could do nothing better than to appropriate enough money to assist in locating actual settlers on the vacant lands of the state. As it is now the labor commissioner's office is handicapped for lack of funds to continue the work and it would seem like a good investment for the state to place or at least get this land in such shape that it could be taken

One letter of inquiry received by Mr. Guye is from a preacher who desires to be informed if he can take up this land and still hold the pastorate of the church of which he is now pastor. Another feature of the letters received is that nearly all of them inquire about the forty and eighty acre tracts, seemingly prefering those to the larger tracts of a section each. The two acres located in Douglas county seem to have been lost sight of in the letters of inquiry. Royse Calls for Reports.

Heartless Editor Argues in Favor of Penalizing Remarriage of Widow.

Why should it be considered as contrary to public policy to leave money to a wife on conditions that she does not marry again? Colonel Astor's will, we are told, may be nullified because of the clause to that effect, and with all due respect to public policy it seems to be a very sensible clause. The objection arises from the wholly mistaken idea that women bables as possible, an idea from which we wholly dissent after a critical inspection and an involuntary hearing of most of the babies within reach. Let us put upon record the valiant opinion that there are too many babies already and that they are of an astonishingly low grade, and also the opinion that Herod was one of the most enlightened monarchs of which history has any record. What we need is fewer bables and better ones, and we have particularly small hopes of any baby born with a golden spoon in its mouth.

Now when a man puts a clause of this kind into his will his intention is clear enough and sensible enough. He means that while it is his duty and his pleasure it that she never for one moment has an ungratified desire short of the moon, he does not feel under any obligation to support some other man whom he knows nothing of. And why should he? Naturally he assumes that any man wishing to marry his widow will have amassed a sufficiently large fortune to do so, and in that case he prefers his own fortune to evert to the home for lost cats or to the fund for the introduction of freedom to the Cannibal Islands. Probably he has no objection to his widow marrying again if she is sufficiently fleet of foot to accomplish that object. But he does object to finding the funds for the other man s extravagances and luxuries. There seems to be nothing in this that is opposed to public policy. Quite the contrary.-San Francisco Agronaut.

SEEKING FLAG FOR IRELAND

Near View of Home Rule Starts Enthusiastic Patriots on New Tack.

Now that Ireland is within sight of home rule quite a lively debate has arisen as to what should be the national flag. Most people would at once reply that the golden harp on a green ground has always been the accepted emblem. but there are many who declare this is not the national flag but pertains only to Leinster.

At least ten flags have their adherents none of which includes any reference to the shamrock. Brave and Bold Effort to Enroll Left-Handed Folk in Knighthood.

Ushered into being with a sermon for eft-handed people, the Excellent Order of the Knights and Ladies of Ehud was established at Orange, N. J., Sunday evening through the efforts of the Rev. Dr. William A. Frye, pastor of the Change Methodist church. Certificates of membership were given by the minister, who had assembled the southpaws at his church with the special object of raising them out of their slough of despond and making them believe that to be left-handed was to be distinguished, rather than

But when the children of Israel cried unto the lord, the Lord raised them up a deliverer, Ehud, the son of Gera, a Benjamite, a man left-handed."
