chance to come back and get revenge for the beating he got in the first game of the series, when the Saints were shut out after he had hurled a dandy game. Manager Arbogast, intent on getting three games of the series, trotted out one of his stars. Carl Robinson, to do the slabbing. The big fellow staved off the heavy firing until near the end of ning and the Josies slipped one across while Robby was easing up. Powell, the first man up, clouted out the Josies' second hit of the game, a single to left. Watson rolled one down the first sack line to Kane and Powell went to second. Zwilling then spilled the beans with a single to right and Powell raced across the plate. It was considerably more of a battle than the statistics indicate. Until the Missourians slammed the ball in the eghth it was anybody's game. Up to that time neither team had accumulated a single tally. Captain Kelly Settles.

Just before the game it looked like there was to be a repetition of Umpire Johnson's depopulation stunt of the previous day. Captain Kelly, who had been thrown out of the game the day before, had not come across with the big "X" spot which usually accompanies a "can" from the field. Johnson put the 'nothing doing" sign on the game until he did come. Kelly tried to bluff, but Johnson was not in a bluffing mood and finally the big Saint came across and the game was started.
