FLORENCE TO ENJOIN CITY

Will Ask Injunction to Stop Tearing Up of the Streets.

SAYS VILLAGE MUST BE PAID

Learned Says City Will Try to Operate Plant for a Profit, in Which Village of Florence Will Not Participate.

Injunction proceedings to prevent the city of Omaha from tearing up the streets of Florence for construction of the new water main probably will be the next move in the fight between Florence and the city of Omaha which has grown out of Omaha's acquisition of the property formerly owned by the Omaha Water company.

According to Myron L. Learned, attorney for the Florence school district, and McCoy and Otmead, counsel for Florence, Omaha has no right to tear up the Florence streets without paying Florence for the privilege and for all costs and damages which may result to Florence.
